Wage, Price Controls Weighed by Cabinet

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Compulsory wage and price controls may soon be imposed in Canada, it was learned from informed government sources.

The cabinet studied the situation Thursday. It could be faced in the very near future with the necessity of imposing mandatory controls, arguing that conditions have deteriorated so much since the election that it has no alternative.

Finance Minister John Turner hinted at such a possibility in the Commons Thursday should the process of arriving at a consensus to combat inflation by voluntary actions ends in failure.

His spring budget to be brought down early in June — possibly June 2 — will spell out the government's position on controls.

Its tone and content will be altered in view of recent developments in which the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) this week issued a nine-point list of demands. They were conditions for its supporting the government's consensus program.

Turner warned in the house that wage settlements in Canada are running so much higher than those in the United States — 16 per cent compared to 7.8 per cent — that this country's competive position in world markets was rapidly disintegrating. The situatio had to be "reversed" or it would lead to massive unemployment.

He said emphatically: "The government is committed to bring prices and production costs into a competitive posture within a range where we can compete in world markets and defend our own markets. This view was shared by leaders of both labor and business."

The other options confronting the cabinet have been examined. But they will not be actively considered until every chance has been given the voluntary process to become operative, it was learned.

Turner will go to Toronto early next week to confer with Joe Morris, CLC president. Later in the week an invitation will go to the executive of the CLC to come to Ottawa to meet with Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and Turner.

The finance minister will also confer with business leaders next week. He is seeking to clarify the present status of the government's consensus program for combatting inflation. He frankly admitted to newsmen that the premature 'leak" of one set of working papers had complicated the negotiations and may have undermined them.

He will canvass the views and reaction of the provinces to the working papers the government had distributed to different sectors of the economy. He tabled the documents in the house at the request of the opposition.

Turner explained to the house in response to opposition questions that the working papers which have been circulated were based on the assumption that every sector of the economy was entitled to bear its burden in the restraint and moderation program. Ottawa is seeking voluntary agreement from all sectors of the economy to go along with the program.

"There is a legitimate bias in favor of the lower paid men and women in the work force," he said.

Strike Kills $197,400 Job Grants

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

The Victoria area has lost $197,400 in job-creating funds as a side effect of the municipal strike-lockout, a spokesman for the capital regional district confirmed today.

Executive director Dennis Young said the district will not be able to handle the Student Temporary Employment Program this year because the strike-lockout meant no staff was available to start project by the May 1 deadline.

"The $197,400 will go to other regional districts. It is very unfortunate but there was nothing we could do during the labor dispute," he said.

Last summer 165 students found work in this area under the program.

Under the terms of the provincial legislation, the money is supplied by the provincial government but must be administered by the regional district. There is no provision for any other groups to supervise the program.

Ironically, the lockout ended at 8 p.m. May 1 and workers were back on the job on May 2, just after the deadline. However, the staff faces a heavy backlog of work and is not in a position to handle extra programs, Young said.

A department of labor spokesman said the $197,400 is frozen at the moment in hopes the capital regional district will change its mind.

However, the funds would have to be released to other districts by month's end if no word was forthcoming from the CRD. The department was also trying to find some way to circumvent the terms of the legislation to make some of the funds available to other job-creating funds in the Victoria area. However, very little if any money would be staying in the Victoria area if the capital regional district did not have a change of heart.

Prices Up Again A Little

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index was up a modest five-tenths of one per cent in April the fourth straight month of relatively low monthly increases, Statistics Canada said today.

The over-all price index in April was 11.1 per cent above a year earlier. The largest jumps in the price index last year came later in the year and by December the year-to-year change was up to 12.4 per cent.

"The real story is in a survey done a month ago and Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the Food Prices Review Board, said today she is more concerned about what has happened since.

"The real sotry is in meats," she said. Wholesale beef prices have gone from 37 cents a pound to about 52 and there has been an increase in pork prices.

This means a sharp increase is expected in the food price index when May figures are announced, she said.

Food accounted for about one-quarter of the April increase and increases in government support prices for milk was a major factor. Statistics Canada said higher dairy prices caused most of the increase in the food price index. Higher prices for milk, fresh fruits, cereals and bakery products were partly offset by lower beef and sugar prices.

Clothing prices dropped on average by one-tenth of one per cent in April while costs for shelter went up by three-tenths of one per cent.

Puget Sound Terminal Out

SEATTLE (AP) — The Standard Oil Co. of Ohio announced Thursday it has decided against a supertanker terminal and oil pipeline on Puget Sound and instead will ship Alaskan oil to the midwest from the Los Angeles-Long Beach area.

The Cleveland-based company said the oil would be shipped from California ports through a 1,000-mile pipeline, including 700 miles of natural gas pipeline already in place.

SOHIO owns a majority of the oil reserves at Alaska's Prudhoe Bay. Its plans are for a pipeline that ultimately would carry one million barrels a day of oil to the midwest.

The plan, announced in Los Angeles and Seattle, would make use of El Paso natural gas pipeline from the California-Arizona border to Midland, in west Texas, a distance of about 700 miles.

The additional 350 miles of pipeline would be primarily within California, with some pipeline needed in other areas for connections with existing pipelines.

The pipeline, when completed in early 1978, would have a 500,000 barrel-per-day capacity. Its ultimate capacity could be twice that, a spokesman said.

SOHIO is negotiating with the ports of Los Angeles and Long Beach, said Joseph D. Harnett, executive vice president of the company, who made the announcement in Los Angeles.

SOHIO spokesman said the announcement was made at the same time in Seattle, because of the obvious interest in Alaskan Oil in Puget Sound and Alaska.

SOHIO said it had considered eight different routes to get the oil from the west coast to the midwest. One of those involved sending tankers around South America to gulf or east coast ports.

The 1,040-mile route chosen was determined to be the best because it would expedite construction and reduce environmental impact at "substantial savings," the spokesman said.

The proposal is still subject to federal power commission approval.

The spokesman said the line would be a common carrier available to other oil companies involved in the north slope oil development project. However, he did not know whether the other companies would choose to join in the SOHIO pipeline.

Building Unions Curbed As Quebec Strikes Spread

Times News Services

QUEBEC — More than 400 workers demonstrated outside the barrier-ringed national assembly today while work at the $380 million Olympic project remained at a standstill.

Nearly 2,000 striking workers at the Olympic site were joined by men from other worksites in a protest against a government report on the Quebec construction industry.

The protest, however, failed to prevent the Quebec government from introducing legislation designed to curb abuses in construction union.

Labor minister Jean Cournoyer met with Quebec Federation of Labor president Louis Laberge and six other union executives who had crossed the iron barricades around the assembly — routinely installed in anticipation of demonstrations.

Then he went to the floor of the assembly to put forward a pair of bills placing four Quebec locals under trusteeship and barring certain convicted criminals from holding union positions of influence.

The trusteeship bill would give the government, under order-in-council, powers to name three trustees who would have wide powers to effect whatever changes they deemed necessary in the affected unions.

The trustees would be able to dismiss or suspend any union administrator, leader or member and name replacements.

Anyone interfering with the trustees would be liable to fines of $500 to $10,000 and prison terms of more than two years or both.

The fiery Laberge has promised the QFL will "fight like dogs" against the trusteeship over its construction affiliates.

He has said such government action would trample on workers' rights and "emasculate" the unions.

As the wildcat walkout at the site of the 1976 summer games entered its second day, Laberge hinted at a postponement of the games.

"We do hope they can still hold them in 1976, but they just might have to hold the games in 1977," he said.

THE GAMES PEOPLE PLAY...

OTTAWA (CP) — Disgruntled Montreal postal clerks have devised a new way of frustrating post office management, Marcel Perrault, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers' Montreal local, says.

He told an Ottawa local meeting Wednesday night that his members use whistles that make it difficult or impossible for postal inspectors to operate portable radio transmitters for staff surveillance.

Besides general supervision of staff, an inspector's job may include keeping an eye open for improper mail handling and theft.

"We supply our staff with whistles," Perrault said, "and when they see the inspectors use their radio transmitters the staff begin to blow their whistles, ruining the transmission."

Meanwhile, postal workers in at least four Quebec communities were off the job today to protest the slowness of negotiations on a new collective agreement, a union spokesman said.

Post offices in Sherbrooke, Joliette, Ste. Therese and Sept-Iles were affected.

"It seems we've had a small epidemic," said a post office spokesman, adding that many workers had called in sick.

Talks were in progress today and are expected to continue throughout the weekend.

Indians Vow To Stay

George Watts, a member of the three-person Union of British Columbia Indian Chiefs executive council, said Wednesday Indian occupations will continue until the federal Indian affairs department shuts down its B.C. operations.

Watts, of Port Alberni, was in Vernon to give moral support to the leaders of the occupation at the Vernon Indian affairs office.

He said Judd Buchanan, Indian affairs minister, has sent telegrams to all Indian chiefs, asking their opinions about Indian land claims. This move is only to create dissension in Indian ranks, he said.

"It's the old divide tactic," he said. "I imagine he is getting asked about the Indian troubles in the House, so he has to do something."

Meanwhile, the provincial government has agreed to meet with Indians to discuss land claims and how to publicize the issue.

Anderson, Jordan Thrown Out of House

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

Two opposition MLAs were ejected from the legislature Thursday when they tried to revive last year's chicken and egg war.

Liberal leader David Anderson, who was ordered from the house five times last spring over the same issue, was ordered out of the chamber first and he was followed in less than an hour by Socred MLA Pat Jordan (North Okanagan).

It was the first time in recent history two members have been thrown out the same day.

The battle was between the opposition MLAs and house committee chairman Hartley Dent (NDP-Skeena) who ruled that discussion of the so-called chicken and egg war was irrelevant to the budget item under debate in the house.

He ruled them out of order and demanded they stop being "tedious and repetitious" and return to proper discussion under the budget estimates.

Both members refused to take their seats or stop talking and Dent finally called in Speaker Gordon Dowding, who asked the MLAs to obey the house rules or withdraw from the chamber.

Anderson said Dent was consistently blocking questioning of Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich and he could not agree with the ruling so he left the chamber.

MLAs exchanged shouts of "communism" and "anarchy." Opposition members charged closure and said "democracy is dying in B.C."

Jordan picked up where Anderson left off, charging that a court case involving the B.C. Egg Marketing Board proved that Premier Barrett lied when he told the legislature last year he did not order the board to take any actions concerning quotas.

The opposition has said either the judgment of Mr. Justice E. E. Hinkson in the case is incorrect or Barrett lied to the house. If Barrett believes he told the truth he should appeal the case, they said, because Hinkson's ruling refers to an order concerning quotas, given by Barrett.

Dent ruled Jordan was being tedious. When she refused to stop talking, he again called Dowding to the house to rule on the matter.

The Socred MLA told the Speaker she is always willing to obey house rules but the chairman was being "extremely provocative" and not obeying the rules himself.

Dowding ruled that she withdraw from the house because of her refusal to follow the chair's ruling.

"I cannot do anything else

BASKETS BLOOM

Victoria's blooming baskets will hang in their usual numbers from downtown lamp posts next month, city parks superintendent Al Smith said Thursday.

At one time there had been fears that only about half the 650 baskets would be ready for display, because the civic strike-lockout left parks administrator Cliff Bate with virtually no manpower.

But Smith said Bate and a small group of volunteers managed to prepare 283 baskets, and since parks staff returned to regular duties on Monday nursery supervisor Horace Lindsey and a four-man crew have been completing scores of baskets a day.

"By Monday the whole lot should be read," Smith said.

'Super War Measures Act'

New emergency powers legislation introduced in the house Thursday was branded a "super War Measures Act."

Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall, who introduced the Emergency Program Act, said the bill simply modernizes and replaces powers provided under the province's former Civil Defence Act to make it more relevant to peacetime emergencies.

But Opposition Leader Bill Bennett said the new bill is "totally and fundamentally different from the act it purports to replace."

It does not define what an emergency is, said Bennett, and therefore has far more excessive powers than the federal War Measures Act.

Asked later about the absence of a definition for "emergency," Hall indicated that amendments will likely be brought in soon to rectify any error in that area.

He said legislation would be used only in the event of natural disasters like floods, earthquakes, slides or avalanches.

"Former legislation (which described emergency in terms of enemy attacks and disasters) was no longer appropriate and so we've reworked it to take out references to things like gas masks and shrapnel. There are no major changes of powers," he said.

One additional section gives the minister power to "procure and fix the price of anything or any service in the province, that in the minister's opinion is necessary to safeguard the public in a state of emergency."

But Hall said powers are only designed for a situation where food had to be purchased by the government and distributed equitably to persons caught in a disaster.

Another operating clause specifies that a person acting in good faith is not liable for damage caused where a state of emergency has been declared.

Although a natural gas shortage could comply as an emergency under the act, the legislation is not designed to allow cabinet powers in that event. In that event special legislation would be introduced, said Hall.

The legislation allows the minister to appoint a provincial emergency program coordinator and other employees as required.

When an emergency is declared, the minister may "do any act and take any measures and proceedings necessary to safeguard the peace, health, safety and welfare of the public."

The province could require a municipality to put an emergency program into operation.

Powers of the municipal council acting jointly with the province include. granting of money for emergency services; purchase or acquire except by expropriation, fire demolition and other equipment or materials useful or necessary for emergency services; authorize an employee of the municipality to demolish any structure made dangerous to the public as a result of the emergency.

Hall said if the opposition continues to complain the government might withdraw the bill altogether.

Bennett said the legislation gives the cabinet "absolute power to rule B.C. without any reference to the legislature."

Without the definition of emergency, he said, the cabinet coul assume emergency powers for the purpose of strike breaking, dealing with protesting Indians or with any kind of civil disobedience.

The legislation may be in contravention of the Canadian Bill of Rights, said Bennett, and he has sent a copy to former federal Conservative leader and father of the Bill of Rights, John Diefenbaker.

Liberal MLA Allan Williams (West Vancouver-Howe Sound) echoed Bennett's complaints and said he expects the B.C. Civil Liberties Association will take some action on the legislation.

LAOS LEADERS FORCED OUT

VIENTIANE (AP) — Five Laotian cabinet ministers closely identified with U.S. policies have resigned under mounting pressure from student groups and labor leaders, highly-placed sources said today.

(Journalists in Phnom Penh, meanwhile, reported it turning into a city of terror. See Page 14.)

The reported resignations mean Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma will have to reshuffle his cabinet and seem certain to mean the Communist-line Pathet Lao, who hold six cabinet portfolios under the terms of the agreement, will emerge in a strengthened position.

Word of the resignations came as Laotian students angered over rising prices threw rocks at the U.S. Embassy and tried to haul down the U.S. flag. A U.S. marine grabbed the flag from two students before it hit the ground and police drove the students from the compound.

The reported resignations include Defence Minister Sisouk Na Champassak and Finance Minister Ngon Sananikone, the sources said. There was no official confirmation. Ngon was reported to have left for Thailand on his way to Paris. Sisouk was believed to be in the southern Mekong River town of Pakse.

Others who are reported to have resigned were Khamphay Abphay, minister of public health, Tianethone Chatharasy, deputy minister for foreign affairs, and Houmphanh Sayasith, deputy minister for public works.

A rally of 3,000 persons in Vientiane's municipal stadium, calling itself the "21 Mass Organizations for Peace and National Concord," defied a government ban issued Wednesday.

Job Funds Lost During Strike

In reply, Young said the issue was closed as far as the CRD is concerned.

"We will not be using the funds this year, even on a modified basis. We will resume the program next year because it is very beneficial to the district."

Besides paying 100 per cent of the salaries of students for the summer, the department of labor program pays regional districts a sum to handle administration costs.

The loss of more than 100 student jobs comes at a time when unemployment is unusually high among young people in the Victoria area. Canada Manpower officials have called the job situation the worst in many years.

Dorothy Gislason, an executive member of the Community Action Group of Victoria, said the loss of the $197,400 represents a double-edge disaster for the district.

"A large number of non-profit organizations were looking to this program to supply them with summer workers to assist in day care programs and recreation activities for the handicapped."

A day-care program at Newton Gardens, a program for teenagers in Sidney and a recreation program in Cordova Bay all were counting on student workers this summer, she said.

"Most of these lost jobs were in the service field and this will be a terrible blow to the organizations counting on summer help."

Students hired under the program last year were from the University of Victoria, Camosun College and district high schools.

Cycle Mishap Witness Sought

Esquimalt police are seeking witnesses to an accident Thursday afternoon at Colville and Phoenix which sent six-year-old Clayton Robinson of 811 Colville to hospital.

Robinson, who is in fair condition in Victoria General Hospital today, was riding his bicycle when he was in collision with a car driven by Maxwell Whyte, 16, of 945 Walker.

Construction Inquiry Set

A special inquiry aimed at restoring industrial peace in the B.C. construction industry has been appointed by Labor Minister Bill King.

Former associate deputy labor minister James Kinnaird has been assigned the task which will likely take more than a year.

Kinnaird, who will be paid $36,000 a year, has been given terms of reference to make recommendations on approved bargaining structures within the construction industry, to determine possible reform of accreditation procedures for employers and to examine the problems of organization of employees.

Recommendations of the bargaining structure and the effect of national agreements on B.C. bargaining must be presented to the minister by Oct. 15.

King said the study is recognition of the fact that collective bargaining in the construction industry "has caused considerable disruption in the economy."

Other areas under Kinnaird's terms of reference will be:

— To consider the problems of inter-union jurisdiction disputes;

— To consider the necessity of measures aimed at ensuring the qualification of construction trade employees;

— To consider whether employers in the construction industry should be required to be licensed as to their competence to engage in construction activities in B.C.

King said it would be up to Kinnaird what form his studies would take but public hearings are a possibility.

Professional staff within the department of labor will be availabe to him.

All three Opposition party leaders praised the move and Chuck Connaghan, president of the Construction Labor Relations Association, said his organization welcomes the inquiry.

He said the CLRA has been trying to convince the government for some time that the construction industry is in a unique stituation and needs investigation.

He praised Jim Kinnaird and said despite the fact he has been associated with the trade union movement through the B.C. and Yukon Building Trades Council, he is recognized as a very fair individual.

Praise for King's choice of Kinnaird as the head of the inquiry also came from union officials.

John Schibli, president of the Victoria United Brotherhood of Carpenters and president of the Victoria Labor Council, said Kinnaird was respected by both labor and management in the construction industry.

Schibli said he thought the construction trades would welcome the inquiry but we "have to wonder if the government will deal with any recommendations or will we simply have another report to look at and dust off in four years time."

Schibli said the construction trades had been trying to impress the government for years of the unique difficulties in organizaing employees in the construction industry.

"We have no designated work sites in the construction indusry. About 98 per cent of our work sites are of a fluid nature and a short duration and the Labor Code only provides for organizing in a traditional sense where there is a stable work site like a factory," Schibli said.

He said he expected the unions would argue for some sort of licensing regulations for contractors.

"As it is now, a guy can simply label himself a contractor. All he needs to be a contractor is $15 for a licence at city hall."

King's announcement of the inquiry apparently came as a surprise to both unions and the construction association.

Wage Controls Studied

There is an assumption that there would be sufficient flexibility in the program for "catch-up for those areas of the working force that had fallen furthest behind." The working papers that had been published as a "leak" in the press did not reflect fairly the totality of the propositions the government has put forward, said the minister.

Turner explained that the proposals of the federal government for its voluntary program provide for a series of alternative suggestions as to whether a board or boards should be constituted. These boards would have a monitoring power but no power of enforcement except the scrutiny of parliament and of public opinion.

Business is being called upon under the program to limit price increases to increases in cost. With respect to dividends, said the minister, it was recognized in all quarters there would have to be some equilimbrium between a moderation in the payment to shareholders and the necessity for the private sector and for companies to remain attractive enough to attract investment.

That was required to sustain the momentum of the economy. Business needed funds to expand to provide more jobs. If business was strangled it would mean jobs would dwindle and unemployment increase, he warned.

This had to be worked out carefully in the discussions, said the minister. He vigorously rejected suggestions from organized labor that the government's proposals made labor the "scapegoat."

Referring to the nine-point list of demands issued by the CLC Turner said many of items reflect the current thrust of government policy.

Sag Stays In Home Building

OTTAWA (CP) — The rate of new homebuilding continued to sag in March to an annual rate of 144,400 units, the lowest level for any month since May, 1970, Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. reported today.

Housing starts in the first three months this year, projected to an annual rate, have averaged 161,100 units, compared with a record rate of 283,900 units achieved in the comparable 1974 period.

Actual starts in urban areas during March were 6,261 units, for a three-month total of 18,367. This is a 49-per-cent decline from the 35,826 starts made in the first three months of 1974. Starts in all areas were 23,950 in the three months this year, compared with 43,267 last year.

MLAs REJECTED

and I regret it very much," he said.

Jordan said later she would not have defied the chair if Dowding had agreed to bring in a new chairman.

Both MLAs insisted Dent is not unbiased on the issue of the chicken and egg war because he attended some of the meetings in 1972 when it is alleged Barrett ordered the egg board to change levys they had planned to charge one Interior egg producer.

When Barrett was asked about the meetings last spring session, he denied he had ordered the board to do anything.

Egg board people who attended the meetings signed affidavits verifying that Barrett threatened them and demanded they change the levy against Prince George producer Sy Kovachich.

On the basis of those affidavits, Anderson accused Barrett of lying and was thrown out of the house three times.

He was ejected twice more when he continued to bring up the issue.

Thursday, the house was in an uproar all afternoon and evening over the dispute and little progress was made on debate of Stupich's spending estimates.

During the evening sitting, Anderson ran into another battle with Dent but the situation cooled when NDP backbencher Roy Cummings (Vancouver-Little Mountain) challenged Dent's ruling.

A formal vote was taken and while Cummings supported the opposition in opposing the chairman, the government majority defeated the challenge.

Cummings said later he felt the opposition should have been allowed to debate the chicken and egg war. He said he did not agree, however, that Dent had a conflict of interest in the issue.

Dent was replaced at that point with deputy chairman Carl Liden (Delta) and the debate was much smoother for the remainder of the evening.

Northern Island College Approved

Cabinet has given formal approval to the establishment of a new community college on northern Vancouver Island.

Education Minister Eileen Dailly said she hopes the college, and another in the east Kootenays, will be offering courses this fall.

The island college will be a decentralized facility serving Courtenay, Campbell River, Vancouver Island West and Vancouver Island North school districts.

Appointments to college councils for the two new schools have yet to be made.

Two more new colleges are expected to be built in northwestern and northeastern British Columbia.

the weather

Over most of B.C. sunny skies will prevail today and Saturday while on the north coast cloudy periods will occur on both days. A disturbance approaching the B.C. coast will spread cloud and occasional rain or drizzle to the westcoast of Vancouver Island overnight. This weather will spread slowly across the remainder of the south coast on Saturday with most of the precipitation confined to the outer south coast. Over the southern interior and southern portions of the central interior a few afternoon showers or thundershowers will develop today and again on Saturday.

Gov't Offers Indians Three-Point Talks

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

The provincial government has issued a three-point proposal for negotiations with B.C. native Indians for settlement of the controversial cut-off lands claims.

Native Indian representatives reacted with caution and optimism to the proposal and promised Thursday to "do what we can to keep our house in order with regard to militant demonstrations — but we can't make guarantees."

The statement was made by Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs president Philip Paul, following a statement on the government's proposal by Human Resources Minister Norman Levi in the legislature.

Levi said tentative date for initial meeting between native Indians and a cabinet committee is June 26 or 27.

Although he has made no formal requests, Levi said later he hopes native Indians will "cool-out" protest demonstrations in the meantime.

A letter ot Union executive members, Paul, George Watts, and Bill Wilson outlines the purpose of the meeting:

—To set up terms of reference for continuing discussions on the question.

—To provide an opportunity for exchange of information.

—To agree on mechanisms to acquaint the general public with the facts related to cut-off lands.

"It is important to remember that all of the people in B.C. have an interest in the lands in this province, and therefore, the people must understand the issues our committees will be discussing."

He said he is hopeful the June meeting will initiate a series of meeting to develop adequate techniques and procedures for disscussions.

Reacting to the proposal, Watts said Levi "seems to be saying — how can we form a team so the whole thing will be acceptable to the public."

He said there are native Indians who will be relieved, but cautioned they shouldn't get too excited because no commitment has really been made.

"All we've done is agreed to negotiate what we're going to negotiate."

The 22 Indian bands involved in cut-off lands negotiations will meet in the near future to discuss both the government's proposal and the issue of future protest demonstrations he said.

But he said the majority of demonstrations, sit-ins and barricades were enacted by native Indians protesting lack of government action on the land-claims issue, a decidedly different question.

"The Union has little to do with it and I don't see why they will stop — it's the general land claims at issue there."

Most important aspect of the upcoming meeting, said Watts, is the public information program.

"The general public has to acknowledge the claims of the Indian of B.C. — if that happens we'll be prepared to live as equal people."

Opposition leader Bill Bennett said he is happy the government has agreed to the meeting and he hopes the discussions will set guidelines for negotiations.

All delegates concerned should set a summer's end target date for conclusion of negotiations, said Liberal leader David Anderson, adding he hopes native Indians will be able to make their situation and case known to the people of B.C.

The native Indians want compensation for 36,000 acres of land, cut-off from reserves after a royal commission in 1916.

RENDLE

3-WAY RACE?

A 43-year-old Victoria businessman announced today he will seek the Social Credit nomination for Victoria riding in September.

Ian Rendle of 1971 Lansdowne, vice-president of Gardner Agencies, is the second man to declare his candidacy.

Lawyer George Jones is also seeking the nomination, and incumbent Socred MLA Newell Morrison is also expected to run again in the two-seat riding.

Rendle, Jones and Morrison will all be at the official opening of the Victoria constituency office of the Socred Party, 1728 Douglas, Saturday at 11 a.m.

Rendle said he thought it was time that Liberal David Anderson be replaced as Victoria's other MLA.

A Social Credit member for 10 years, he said he is disturbed by the financial irresponsibility of the New Democratic Party government, and welcomes the formation of one strong free enterprise party to fight the NDP.

ICBC to Raise Rates For Body Shop Repairs

VANCOUVER (CP) — An Insurance Corp. of British Columbia spokesman said Thursday that ICBC will raise its rates before June 30 for body shop repair.

Bev Penhall said the hourly rate to be paid is the major item of a general review the corporation is conducting into the whole body repair segment of the automotive industry.

"The new rates will be determined before June 30, he said.

"We're very pleased to hear that but, we're hoping for an immediate increase," said Ron Baldwin, manager of the automotive retailers association, which represents a major part of the B.C. auto body repair industry.

The association has suggested, in a brief to ICBC, an interim increase to $19.05 an hour to maintain current profit margins.

Baldwin said the interim increase is necessary to cover increased labor costs resulting from a contract agreement with lower mainland body shop employees calls for an April 1 wage increase to $8.30 an hour from $6.90.

Baldwin said his association is not likely to advocate unilateral action such as that announced this week by auto body repair dealers in Victoria, who said they will raise their hourly rates to $20 from the $15.50 stipulated by the ICBC, beginning May 15.

"We feel the best approach is to approach the corporation with the facts (of body shop operating costs) and to work it out with them," Baldwin said.

Penhall said the corporation will not take any action on the unilateral rate raised by the Victoria shops.

UVic Comes To Rescue

The University of Victoria senate decided this week to allow students from Notre Dame University in Nelson to finish their studies at UVic.

Notre Dame is closing in 1976, and the Universities Council of B.C. has asked UVic, the Univerity of B.C. and Simon Fraser to permit transfer with full credit for Notre Dame students completing third year next year.

Students entering fourth year university would normally not be accepted for transfer.

CUBA WON'T GET EXTRA $11M

OTTAWA (CP) — Cuba did not and will not get an extra $11 million in Canadian aid proposed in a confidential committee report quoted in Wednesday's Ottawa Journal.

The pledge came in the Commons Thursday from Privy Council President Mitchell Sharp.

"The amounts disclosed by CIDA Canadian International Development Agency were the amounts authorized," Sharp said in reply to a query from New Brunswick Conservative Gordon Fairweather. "There was no concealed amount."

Outside the Commons, the privy council president and government House Leader said the committee plan to channel additional funds into Cuba was "a proposal that was turned down."

He suggested full details could be given at a later date, either before the external affairs and national defence committee or in the Commons.

"There was no effort by CIDA to conceal funds for Cuba," the minister said. "Cuba did not receive another $11 million as it may have appeared on the surface."

Sharp said Cuba got only the $10 million loan and $2,675,000 in technical assistance grants, as announced earlier by CIDA.

Credibility Problem

The flap over comments Premier Dave Barrett made about Social Credit's finances and the involvement of three prominent Vancouver lawyers and businessmen illustrates one unpleasant feature of the premier's character — his mouth works faster than his mind.

Seeing conspiracies behind every bush in B.C., the premier said last week former MacMillan Bloedel chairman J. V. Clyne, ex-attorney-general Robert Bonner and lawyer Arthur Fouks met almost weekly to make disbursements — first set at $75,000 then raised by Barrett to $125,000 a month — from a mysterious $4.5 million party fund.

All three men have denied Barrett's claims, calling the premier a liar of assorted shapes and sizes. Social Credit leader Bill Bennett denied there was any such fund and said Barrett's remarks were untrue.

Now the premier has offered no proof, except his say-so, and he seems to be trying to wiggle out backwards with as much grace as he can salvage. The premier made his remarks in a casual, offhand way.

He was bantering with a couple of reporters in the corridors of the legislative buildings a week ago and suggested neither of their newspapers would print any of what he said because of the political beliefs of their respective publishers.

Of course, the premier's comments hit the headlines. Whatever the premier of B.C. says is news. Presumably he based his remarks on some evidence stronger than NDP gossip and political hearsay. Obviously he didn't, and once again the office of premier is being tarred with the label of liar. Barrett has a bad credibility problem.

He's brought up the subject of political party finances time and again, each time promising — threatening? — to introduce airtight election spending laws, the toughest in Canada. For the sake of the prestige of the office, if not out of concern for his own personal reputation, Barrett should stop all the wild talk about secret cabals handing out fistfuls of money to political operatives, and let the legislation speak for itself.

To dispel all the rumors Barrett himself has helped create, it should cover all types of political spending, not just election expenses. Make it a requirement that all sources of party funds be listed along with quarterly statements on the manner in which that money is spent.

It's the only way we'll all have a full deck of cards and everyone can judge for themselves the validity of the wild charges that have gone back and forth recently over secret spending and lying about same.

". . . I'm sorry Harold, I can't come for a swim now . . . I'm ironing and I have to defrost and do the dishes yet . . . then I've got to dust and wax and put the dinner on . . . maybe some other time, okay . . . ?"

Recognizing Reality

The beleagured Canadian International Development Agency is again under fire from the opposition for allegedly concealing loans and grants to Cuba totalling $23.5 million. If CIDA is hiding allocations from parliament the practice should be stopped immediately and the officials responsible purged. In fact, considering the internal dissension that has surfaced in the oganization which handles Canada's foreign aid program — $497.95 million was budgeted in 1974 — CIDA needs close scrutiny from a royal commission or an all party committee.

But the anomaly in the current tempest is that opposition MPs seem more incensed over the money going to a communist country than they do about the alleged secrecy surrounding the deal. On purely pragmatic grounds, Cuba seems a logical recipient for Canadian altruism. Since the United States has no truck or trade with Castro's regime Canada has benefitted through increased trade with the Latin country in recent years.

Premier Fidel Castro has promised that Canada will not be neglected when U.S.-Cuban relations are normalized, probably in the near future. But a little foreign aid is not going to hurt our foreign trade, especially as so many CIDA programs are conditional on buying Canadian.

The self serving aspect there is no point in fuming against communist regimes, because of their nature. We have to live with them and trade with them even though we find their political system repugnant to our needs. In what has become a global village, where the majority of governments are socialist to some degree, we have to recognize reality.

W. A. WILSON

The Right Man 20 Years Ago

OTTAWA — When the prime minister reaches out for a figure from the country's past to conduct a royal commission inquiry into a major problem of the country's affairs he automatically asks people to think, to draw conclusions and to stop being just formally polite.

Robert Bryce, the aging mandarin to whom Pierre Trudeau has turned for contemporary thinking on economic affairs, was in his day the most respected figure in town, He was a brilliant one-man show. He took the finance department over in gravely weakened condition. He left it in gravely weakened condition. Along the way, personal brilliance increased his reputation.

He was never a team-builder — that job was left to his successor.

Bryce was a formidable figure. It has long since been admitted, however, that many of the defects in the original tax reform proposals were included in the report because he was too exhausted to spot the weaknesses in Jim Brown's approach. When people first began to notice this exhaustion, some of the most important figures in government were outraged when it was mentioned. Later on, they started mentioning it themselves with considerable freedom.

The new royal commissioner, apart from being a key figure in the self-perpetuating Ottawa mandarinate, was intimately associated with a certain stage of thought. He was, first and foremost, one of the ardent anti-nationalists, one of the people most closely associated with the Liberal party's determined, and for a long time successful, effort to persuade Canadians that they were not up to the challenges and opportunities of the greatest growth period the world has ever known.

Refuses To Yield

The Trudeau government clings to the past with tenacity. In the days when increasing provincial needs were being acknowledged only with the meanest reluctance in Ottawa, it was Bryce who steadily refused to yield the federal pass. The cost to the country was great. Yet when he finally withdrew as deputy mininster of finance, Trudeau's instinct was to shove him into a new spot as his personal adviser on federal-provincial affairs.

It was more than an accident of history that, after Bryce went to Washington and the World Bank, the federal government's fiscal relations with the provinces began to be less bitter and less divisive. New political thought began to prevail. Relations with the provinces, and hence the national strength, have improved and have withstood far greater strains than they did when the men at the centre were trying to stifle the new community needs finding expression in the regional centres of political power.

Commission chairman Robert Bryce as deputy finance minister.

Twenty years ago Bryce would have been the right man for Louis St. Laurent to have appointed to a royal commission charged with this task. He would already have been the wrong man, too associated with a different approach, when Lester B. Pearson secured power from John Diefenbaker.

During those long years of Liberal dominance, in which the country's political leaders found their alter egos in the bureaucracy, Bryce was an outstanding exception. He was the man whom both Liberals and Diefenbaker could trust, the man who more than anyone else bridged the gap between the parties in the brief period during which the country got away from one-party regimes. He performed an enormous service and became justifiably respected during that period. That does not mean, however, that everyone must continue to pay homage for all that followed and there are good reasons to do nothing of the sort.

The poverty of government thought on the whole question of concentration of economic power leads one to wonder what all the government seminars have been engaged in for the last seven years. The prime minister declares that he has no idea whether great new mergers would be in the national interest or opposed to it. The fundamental issue is the one that the United States came to grips with half a century ago in Teddy Roosevelt's day.

Canada is late in approaching the same issue because it is so late in approaching nationhood. Partly this is because men like Pierre Trudeau have been so determined to prevent the growth of a healthy nationalism and have, instead helped spawn what begins to appear as a singularly unpleasant xenophobia.

It can be argued, of course, that the determination of the country's political and business leaders to block the growth of a normal nationalism was one of the factors that led to Quebec separatism. If belief in a Canadian nation was so deliberately thwarted by men at the top, why would a francophone not turn to his more natural nationalism and cling to belief in the possibility a French-Canadian nation? The fundamental answer to it would have been long ago to have tried to develop a sense of Canadian nationhood to which we all could have adhered.

Now, half a century late, after so much of the national economy has gone, we come to the question of economic size and of concentrations of power. Some good may come of Bryce's royal commission. There is uncertainty between the questions of optimum size and mere bigness and no one has really attempted in this country to resolve it. Rather, we have gobbled up an idea of "world-scale" without seeking to define it or know what we really are talking about. Bryce may help answer that sort of technical question.

Allmand Wrong

Solicitor-General Warren Allmand according to newspaper reports states he "won't be associated in any way with a hanging."

Since by law hanging is legal for those convicted of murder of police officers or prison guards, would it not be logical to assume that Allmand should never have accepted his present portfolio. How can a man in such position blatantly state that he has no intention of upholding the laws of the country which I believe is one of the primary functions of his position?

From other published comments it would appear that many Liberal members have no intention of upholding the law as it is written or of carrying out the wishes of their constituents where it happens to differ from their personal beliefs. — C. W. Morris, 37-42 Qld Island Highway.

Unlimited Licence

Isn't alcoholism bad enough already without making the stuff available at every corner store, and consumable anywhere in public places? We need restraint, not unlimited licencing. — E. W. Abraham, 1125 Faithful Street.

CIDA Praised

The current public controversy surrounding the Canadian International Development Agency, its administration and its projects, has raised some important issues about the whole problem of Canada's foreign aid program. It is clear that these issues are serious and that they deserve more public and parliamentary attention than they have received in recent times. It would be unfortunate, however, if quick conclusions were to be drawn from the current debate before Canadians have had an opportunity to make a balanced assessment of the issues that have been raised. Having been privileged to be able to follow closely the evolution of Canada'c development assistance activities over the years, the authors of this letter believe that it would be helpful to bring into the discussion certain matters that are in danger of being overlooked.

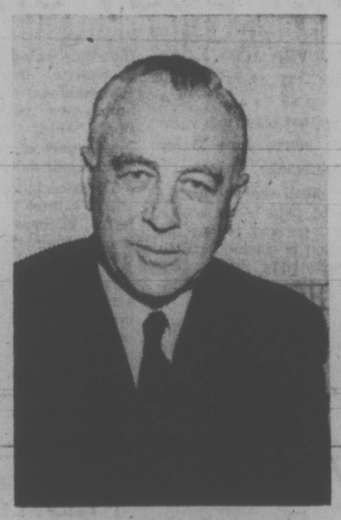
Thus far, criticism seems to have been concentrated on the personal style and on some CIDA projects and practices. In past years each of the undersigned has been critical of various activities and policies of CIDA and its predecessor, the External Aid Office. We do not now suggest that CIDA should be beyond criticism, or that some of the recent attacks may not be fully justified. Indeed, this kind of public attention to Canada's role in international development should be welcomed. But criticism should be based on a more balanced assessment of CIDA's activities than has sometimes been the case.

Our concern is that some critics, by highlighting the negative aspects and largely ignoring the very considerable positive achievements of CIDA, run the danger of undermining and even destroying an organization of which, on the whole, we should all be proud.

The official reports of the development assistance committee of the OECD which conducts continuing critical reviews of the foreign aid programs of all countries, gives Canada high marks. It is true that our official development assistance continued to fall below the international target of .7 of one per cent. But it has been increasing in the past few years, and in any event, the rate of contributions is determined by government policy and not by CIDA.

Assisting developing countries is a very complex and difficult business. It involves trying to adjust the priorities, perspectives and practices of the donor country to the needs of the countries receiving aid. Some of the things that they request from Canada — and legitimately need — may appear strange because of our inadequate knowledge of the background and intent. For example, several years ago India asked for snow ploughs. While providing snow ploughs for India might appear to be a questionable use of money, in fact the ploughs were badly needed to keep open important transportation arteries in the mountains of northern India that experience heavy winter snowfalls. And clearly, Canada is the place that knows how to make snow ploughs. The point is that denouncing isolated projects can be a dangerous and unfair method of evaluating CIDA's activities — unless the critic has a full knowledge of the facts.

Because of our position on the North American continent, Canada has been able to forego the proportionate expenditures of defence which many other nations feel compelled to make. Development assistance is thus one of the principal ways in which Canada can continue to contribute to the creation of a better, more equitable and more stable world order. It is a role which suits Canadians and in which Canadian leadership is both welcome and needed. We have made mistakes in our foreign aid activities in the past and we will continue to make them. This is a field in which no one is perfect but in which we all must keep trying to do better.



HUGH KEENLEYSIDE
. . . moderates criticism of CIDA

We must not allow recent criticism of the Canadian International Development Agency, however justified it may be in some particulars, to obscure the fact that CIDA has made great and positive strides during the past few years. We believe that any objective examination would confirm that while many improvements could be made, it is, on the whole, well equipped to play its expanding role as the principal agent for carrying out Canada's program of assistance to a world in desperate need. — Milton F. Gregg, John Magwood, Hugh Keenleyside, 3470 Mayfair Drive.

Obeying Directives

Your editorial titled Tampering With Success about the Greater Victoria public library board's decision to stop lending framed prints was both accurate and timely. However, the library board is in fact obeying directives from the five municipalities which support the Greater Victoria public library.

At this time it seems as though we are losing ground because the Victoria public library was a Canadian leader in circulating audio-visual material beginning in 1951.

Today public libraries are expected to be the leaders in providing not only books but every type of community information service ranging all the way from car manuals to organic gardening. Hopefully the various councils will in their 1976 budgets heed the library requirements of all their constituents. Name withheld by request.

Lovely Thought?

The statement by Warner Jorgenson of Manitoba published in the Times today (May 6) was very interesting and has a lot of merit. It sounds so much more exhilarating than that deathly brand of politics exuding from Ottawa. We have the zest and the men. We must hang on to Peter Lougheed for he could play a leading part in forming a separate western state. Anyway, it would be wrong to let him waste himself on federal leadership. Premier Dave Barrett would also be most valuable for we have already seen him in action against the Ottawa clique over the question of MPs' pay. We were so pleased to see him sail into them in true Nelson style and fire a telling broadside at close range and handle the abuse that was hurled back at him.

Yes, I am sure that Warner Jorgenson has the right idea; it has so many advantages. For one, we would rid ourselves of our self-inflicted French-speaking masters in Ottawa. What a lovely thought! — Philip Saville, 515 Foul Bay Road.

Misled Voters

I'm sure as least 90 per cent of the misled voters that put Mr. Barrett into office must feel very disheartened and let down. Especially after so many lies are finally catching up with him. Surely you can detect the panic in his voice as he shrilly accuses anyone he can think of. I have talked to dozens of people in our area (Port Coquitlam) who can openly admit now they were wrong not only in their choice of a leader but their vote to put him as premier of our province. All they can say is wait till the next election, we'll help undo the wrong. We never realized he knew so little. It's easy to see how people can be swung by a few rash promises of an incompetent. I know our natives are rueing the day as well as the small people who are now pushed right out of business. It's time British Columbia was set free again. We challenge you to an election, Mr. Barrett, and the sooner the better. — P. Brown, Port Coquitlam.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of May 9, 1915

Crowds of Victoria residents rioted in the city Saturday and Sunday nights, attacking the premises of well-known citizens with German names and stealing thousands of dollars in goods. The dry cleaning establishment of Herman and Stringer on Yates was broken into and windows and many fixtures were smashed. The worst looting took place at Schaper and Stringer tailors on Fort street, were the crowd smashed every window in the establishment and walked away with practically everything that could be carried off. A quantity of beer was stolen from the Victoria-Phoenix brewery and the store of plumber Edward F. Geiger on Fisgard was also attacked. The looting was of the most open-faced character. Women were holding open sacks for their husbands to stuff loot into and in some cases people returned for more than one load. Simon Leiser, a Canadian citizen and proprietor of Leiser warehouses which were looted, said today he intends to demand damages of $40,000 from the Dominion government.

The Querulous Old Man and the Sun-King

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — The sharpest barbs of John Diefenbaker's fierce speech in the closing debate on the pay raise for MPs, senators and ministers were put into the absent Prime Minister, rather than into Bob Stanfield.

The attack on Stanfield got the "play" because he was sitting there, taking it, and because the old Chief's snide remarks about the failed and unforgotten Tory policy of wage and income freezes in the election last year exposed again the harrowing difficulties of a party and caucus leader whose predecessor has refused to disappear.

In his forceful but rather scrambled arguments, Diefenbaker was rougher, as I read it, with Trudeau. Although he did touch on the lack of leadership Trudeau has shown by not supporting and explaining the legislation, the former prime minister did not examine closely the irony and paradox of the present prime minister and his spending.

The irony is that Trudeau has behaved throughout the debate over the pay increases (which began with the pre-Christmas package that floundered) as though he couldn't care. Somehow it was up to the collectivity of MPs, not he nor his ministry, to take responsibility for the raises.

The paradox is merely the further irony that if he were not a wealthy man, and so somehow in too many people's minds above a sordid grasp for more, there'd have been a hell of a lot more public reaction than there has been, both to the grab for more pay and the astounding scale of spending he and his family and his staff have indulged in since he replaced Lester Pearson. The late Pearson wouldn't have gone on such a spree because of his own traditions and conscience. On the other hand, he wouldn't have dared.

. . . rude questions

Diefenbaker said without exaggeration: "There have been fabulous expenditures to make the Prime Minister's Office attractive so a person with artistic taste will feel at home . . . It was one of the finest offices in Canada. The President of the United States came here and said what an attractive office it was . . . by 1974-75 the total amount spent on renovations was $45,907 and on refurnishings $41,838, for a total of $87,745."

Diefenbaker made references to spending on the cottage of the PM at Harrington Lake, at the astounding sums that have gone into restructuring and refurnishing 24, Sussex Drive, quite aside from the swimming pool and its bizarre emergence as a federal bill of expense. He referred to the fact that unlike himself or Pearson, this prime minister pays no rent for Sussex Drive, how the incumbent uses government planes and staff to support his private holday plans.

One example of this lavish spending is the total cost in 1973-74 to the government for 24 Sussex Drive, of $33,000. The same year the summer cottage cost over $44,000.

Diefenbaker concluded: "Such an orgy and expenditure on the part of the leader of a government leads to a looseness that has no regard to the effect it has on inflation within the country."

In one sense, I think he's right; in another, very wrong.

It seems unfortunate to me but most people are hardly aware that the prime minister's spending has been so extravagant.

If they did know about it, I doubt it would bother them enough to begrudge it. There's the pity. Because of his wealth, there's the all too common assumption that such spending for and around Trudeau is somehow mete.

There is a tendency almost to scorn the old man who makes the point that expenditures on the prime minister and his office were infinitismal in comparison in his day. Such simplicity, such frugality, are not of the times. Nor is there any respect for the old man when he talks about the small staff he had or the fact that he's going to die comparatively poor.

The insidious thing about the Prime Minister's extravagance with government funds on his personal, family and staff spending is not that it is so much a model for everyone in the country but that it is a model for the senior bureaucacy.

Consider the income scales these mandarins have gained and the luxurious ambience of their offices and their travels or their staggeringly high and indexed pensions. Recently two men retired as deptyminsters at age 55, taking indexed pensions of over $30,000 a year and within weeks they were back in the federal trough for more as directors and consultants.

More and more ministerial offices are taking on the grandeur in decoration and furnishings of the master. More and more ministers are moving around with an expanding court of executive assistants, aides, consultants and chaffeurs with big limousines. Figuratively speaking, the style is that of an $88,000 Cadillac.

The material living standards of most of us have risen much in the past decade or so. I know mine has, and my family's along with it. I know it may seem petty of me to contrast the frugality of Diefenbaker with the Onassis-like existence of the prime ministerial family and entourage. I can even hear Liberals saying how modest Trudeau's $69,000 a year is, compared, say to Yves Pratte's $125,000-a-year plus $30,000 annual expense account as head of a mere offshoot of the federal government.

Well . . . as it was so often said after the post-1968 election adulation: "The style is the man," and that style translates in 1975 as though this is the richest country in the world and our prime minister a sun king deserving his Versailles. And John Diefenbaker and Stanley Knowles are anachronisms.

TRUDEAU . . . deserving of his Versailles?

Asia Returning To Own Frictions

By FLORA LEWIS
New York Times

PARIS — The sudden and sometimes apparently contradictory twists of the various Indochinese Communist parties have surprised knowledgeable French officials and scholars.

A number of these experts are revising their assessments and concluding that a major result of the way the Indochina wars have ended is likely to be a reassertion of deeply Asian attitudes and possibly a re-emergence of ancient Asian frictions.

"Two Western religions have been implanted in Vietnam — Catholicism and Marxism," said Jean Jacouture, a French expert on Indochina. "They are bound to leave profound traces. But they are being nationalized, Vietnamized."

★ ★ ★

Despite intense French efforts in the last few months to play a mediating diplomatic role in Vietnam and Cambodia, the effect of the efforts seems to be not so much of much a resurgence of French influence as a reversion to attitudes of the pre-colonial era.

The Cambodian Communist representatives here, for example, have recently displayed a much more intense sensitivity to the role of their North Nietnamese allies than they showed during early phases of the war in Cambodia.

"It hurt us very much when the Western press said there were North Vietnamese in our revolutionary army units," Chau Seng, the Cambodian Communist delegate here, said when Communist forces entered Phnom Penh last month. "There were other forms of aid, yes, but they were never incorporated in our forces."

He did not deny that North Vietnamese troops had been involved, but he went out of his way to reject the idea of continuing influence on Cambodia by Hanoi.

Speaking privately, other Cambodian Communist representatives here have permitted themselves expressions of the ancient Cambodian antagonism toward Vietnamese, regardless of political systems. They not only emphasized their determination to be part of the non-aligned group of nations but also insisted that the evolving political situation in Asia would favor their chances to maintain that position.

Their argument is that China favors non-alignment for the countries of Indochina as a buffer to Soviet influence, which is still strong in Hanoi. The Cambodians have looked to Peking for protection against domination by the historically expansionist North Vietnamese. Hanoi's relations with Moscow contain a similar desire to balance the influence of China, Vietnam's traditional enemy.

★ ★ ★

Last fall, before the sudden North Vietnamese military successes in the South, Hanoi was already considering joining the non-aligned bloc of nations. This information was confirmed by neutral diplomats stationed in Hanoi, by high Yugoslav officials who were involved in transmitting messages and by Cambodian Communist officials who cited it as proof that Peking favored non-alignment for all the Indochinese nations.

The same sources said that North Korea was planning a similar move, again apparently with Chinese support for a way of limiting Soviet influence.

The intricate web of regional and national fears and ambitions is coming to the fore again as the Cambodian and North Vietnamese Communists achieve victory, the French experts now feel.

As an indication of this trend, the Cambodian Communists have said that it would be a slur on their national independence to permit the continued operation of foreign charitable and cultural institutions in Cambodia.

★ ★ ★

"There is no reason for a private foreign hospital, a private foreign school," Chau Send said, indicating that the French will not be allowed to reopen the facilities that religious and humanitarian groups have provided for generations.

The French considered the way they were ordered to evacuate their embassy in Phnom Penh to be a brutal reversal of an agreement that they thought they had reached with the Cambodian Communists through Prince Norodom Sihanouk, their nominal leader. The Cambodian Communists made clear that they did not consider relations with any foreigners, certainly not any Westerners, to be privileged.

There have also been some hints involving attitudes among Vietnamese Communists.

A North Vietnamese official, for instance, expressed open surprise that intermarriage with Chinese is common in Thailand. "It's because they're farther away from China," he said. "It wouldn't be possible in Vietnam."

The same official spoke much more freely about the prospects for Vietnamese reunification than has been the habit of North Vietnamese in the last few years, when the responsibility of the Provisional Revolutionary Government for the fate of the South was stressed.

But he predicted a gradual retransfer of populations, with a return northward of the many Catholics who fled south after the 1954 partition and a return southward of those who moved to Communist North Vietnam.

It was, in effect, an acknowledgement of the ancient differences between the north, the central region and the South in Vietnam and a surprising omission of political and ideological factors.

Lacouture, who had long felt that the South's Communists represented an authentic assertion of South Vietnamese identity, said that he had come to change his mind.

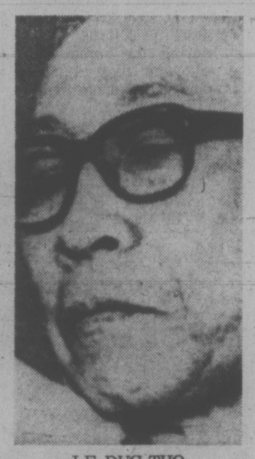
"I began to wonder when they allowed Le Duc Tho to negotiate the fate of the South," he said, referring to the North Vietnamese official who negotiated the 1973 Paris Accords. "And now, with all those North Vietnamese troops there."

★ ★ ★

"But," he added, "if Hanoi tries to swallow the South, it will have a very sore throat, I think they realize it."

No expert here is eager to predict what will happen in Vietnam in the next few months, during what Lacouture calls "the transition phase."

But from a longer perspective, there is a consensus among Indochinese officials and French experts that what is ending is not just 30 years of revolutionary war. Some 150 years of Western dominion in Indochina is also ending.



LE DUC THO
. . . sore throat?

And that, they say, may prove more important for what emerges in the long run than the essentially Western doctrine of Communism.

SOMETIMES SILENCE BEST

The GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

Is the federal government secretive or garrulous, taciturn or loquacious, evasive or effusive?

The answer is yes.

There are days when it inflates the word "security" to include everything up to the time of day; and there are days when it will buttonhole anyone within reach and, like a tiresome drunk, pour confidences in his ear.

But let's take the secretive tendency first — that being really the more sinister trait to find in government. Individual members of a Commons-Senate committee studying the subject have said that security provisions designed to protect Canada from foreign threats or subversion are widely misused for the internal convenience of the government.

In some instances, the prospect of embarrassment was enough to put the Top Secret stamp on information; in others, the achievement of a political objective could be the reason for withholding or delaying information. With appropriate safeguards (income tax information and genuine aspects of national security, for example), the members concluded that the government has an obligation to provide full, objective and timely information and citizens have a right to it.

Unfortunately, citizen entitlement in these matters seems to be little more than an academic matter, and the debate is entangled in such questions as whether the public is entitled to a share in the advice now poured privately into ministerial ears by senior advisers.

It would be nice if this situation were offset to some extent by the talkative side of Ottawa's nature, but, alas, the things they want to tell us are the things we don't particularly want to hear. All the things you never wanted to know about government (and were too bored to ask) can now be yours, courtesy of Information Canada.

It's a new service: IC's weekly Information Bulletin which contains (oh, joy!) summaries of federal government press releases, new programs, appointments, events and publications. Provincial government news releases also to be included. It's a sort of Reader's Digest of government, with the full-bodied flavor of a paid party political broadcast.

Who could ask for anything more?

A few weeks ago I dropped out of the nostalgia market. The nostalgia salesman had called at the house, as he regularly does, and opened his sample case and spread out the Kennedy assassiation of 1963.

"This will really take you back," he said. "Revivals of the 10 most lurid conspiracy theories of the assassination. Memoirs of what the CIA was doing that day in Dallas. A reissue of that all-time great assassination flick, the Zapruder film, and—."

I put him out of the house, threw his sample case after him, went upstairs and packed my suitcase to get out of there. With the slightest encouragement, I suspected, he would offer me a Lee Harvey Oswald sweatshirt and a TV Talk show featuring an exact replica of the fatal bullet.

My defection did not affect the market. Since then, the Kennedy assassination has been selling briskly. Just the other night, I had to turn off the television set to prevent a pack of talk-show performers from re-enacting the whole thing just at bedtime. A few days later, the mail brought an invitation to a screening of the Zapruder film, and the cover of New Times displayed Kennedy's face at the moment of impact.

★ ★ ★

There may be some motive here toward ascertaining some truth still unknown about the assassination, but I am skeptical. This revival smacks too strongly of other revivals we have paid for in recent years as the nostalgia industry has fed the American passion for sentimentalizing the past.

Since World War II we have turned the past into a consumer good. Its sale is one of the great American industries, in a class with steel and advertising.

Playing the right melody on the American nostalgic nerve can turn a fortune in records, movies, television, books, clothing, household furnishings, haircuts, magazines and grandmother's cobwebbed junk.

The demand for nostalgia is so ravenous that we are now running out of past to consume, having chewed up "the Roaring Twenties" in the 1950s, and Depression hoboes, the Second World War, Tiffany lampshades, F. Scott Fitzgerald, Humphrey Bogart, greasy kid stuff and the Civil War in the 1960s.

★ ★ ★

In the 1970's so far, we have run through movie musicals of the '30's, Harry Truman and grandfathers' mustaches, to cite just a few.

Running out of unused past for us to be nostalgic about, nostalgic tycoons are forced either to narrow their focus or to do remakes. This latter was the strategy of the "Great Gatsby" producers, who seem to have reasoned that since 1920's-type nostalgia hadn't had a good run since "The Untouchables" moved out of prime time, there might be a new generation ready to relive it again. A miscalculation.

The narrowed-focus approach concentrates on some small phenomenon of a past so recent that only an 11-year-old could possibly view it as past, as, for example, the student antiwar demonstrations of the late 1960's, which are already being sentimentalized among present students and aging faculty alike as some great turbulent but glorious phenomenon of a dead long-ago.

The Kennedy assassination will probably always be surefire for nostalgia salesmen. It invokes the myth of a golden moment lost in an instant. Like the Lincoln assassination, it is vulnerable to the fascinating exploitation of conspiracy theories which can probably never be laid to rest and are, therefore, assured of an enduring series of revivals.

Nostalgia in heavy doses, which is the way we have been taking it lately, is probably a symptom of sickness. The word says as much. It derives from two Greek words—one meaning "return home" and the other "pain," whence comes its original meaning, "homesickness." As a race of wanderers, Americans have always suffered more than their share of homesickness, but in the past this was probably cancelled out of the national psyche by the excitement and challenge of arriving in a new place.

Nowadays, we seem to be more acutely aware of being wanderers through time rather than, old-style, through continents. In this time through which we have lately been traveling the present seems neither exciting nor challenging and the future does not glow on the horizon, and we sink into homesickness for the past.

Asian villagers living for generations in one place would be baffled by nostalgia. It is an affliction of traveling races who do not like where they have arrived and have no taste for the next destination. They sit about reviving the great assassinations of yore ifistead of throwing the nostalgia salesmen out, going upstairs and packing the suitcases again.

Communications Gap Hurts Heritage: Bawlf

Two city aldermen complained Thursday that a communication gap within City Hall too often leaves the Heritage Advisory Committee powerless to act in cases where heritage buildings are threatened by demolition.

Ald. Sam Bawlf, who heads the committee, directed his criticism at the city's Advisory Planning Commission, but Ald. Murray Glazier also laid part of the blame with the planning department.

Both were referring to the Heritage Advisory Committee's ignorance of a proposed land-use contract for a 26-unit motel development on property at 352 Gorge Road East, formerly the site of an old building used as a seven-suite boarding house.

Council approved the bylaw authorizing the contract, following a public hearing which was told that the 1926-vintage home was in dilapidated condition.

But Bawlf said in the brief debate that the structure was older than indicated, and deplored the fact that his committee had not been informed of the application.

"It's about the third time I have had to say this," he added.

The demolition of the Gorge Road home that very morning, prior to the public hearing and without council being consulted, was "reprehensible," said Glazier.

He said a similar lack of knowledge surrounded the demolition on a recent Sunday morning of an "important" building on Avalon Street.

"If the Heritage Advisory Committee is to serve its role it must be involved in the (rezoning and land-use) process more than it has been," Glazier added.

One of only two objectors at the public hearing was Jack Mathieson, of 427-200 Dallas, former owner of the Estrella Motel at 360 Gorge, adjoining the site in question.

Mathieson said he only recently disposed of the Estrella on an assurance from city officials that the neighboring property was less than the minimum site area required under motel zone regulations.

The minimum stipulated is 20,000 square feet and the property has an area of 19,870 square feet. Mathieson said the developer knew this before he acquired the property, and his application for a land-use contract appeared merely a means of circumventing normal zoning.

Ald. Bill Tindall noted, however, that the present zoning on the site is light industrial, and said he would prefer to see a motel than some kind of industrial use.

Only Bawlf voted against final approval of the bylaw.

Council also approved rezoning of property at Esquimalt Road and Robert Street to clear the way for a 25-unit townhouse development.

The heritage building now standing on the site, Muirhead House, has been offered free of charge by the developer to the city or its nominated agent.

Glazier told council negotiations have been held with representatives of the Victoria West community association with a view to moving the old building from the site, and prospects for doing so appear hopeful.

VGH DEATH 'ACCIDENT'

The death last monday of Mrs. Laura Wilson, 67, in Victoria General Hospital was an accident, district coroner Edmond St. Jorre ruled Thursday following an inquiry.

Mrs. Wilson had a brain ailment, he said, and was confined in bed by a belt but she worked free. She was discovered by hospital staff with her head between two bed rails.

St. Jorre indicated the cause of death could have been cardiac arrest.

Sea Law Conference Winds Down

GENEVA (CP) — The United Nations law of the sea conference ended today with an appeal for countries not to take unilateral action before the next international gathering opens in New York on March 29.

Conference president Hamilton S. Amerasinghe of Sri Lanka told the delegates from 150 nations at a closing plenary session that any action by a country in taking over seabed minerals or coastal waters might spoil chances for eventual completion of a global ocean treaty.

"I should like to make a fervent appeal not to take action which would jeopardize the possibility of concluding a treaty," Amerasinghe said.

"There is too much at stake for the conference to be imperilled by precipitate action."

Canadian External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen says his country is still hoping for international agreement on a global ocean treaty, but unilateral action to take over fish stocks on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts remain a "lively option" for Canada.

MacEachen told a news conference Thursday the conference had made "great progress" in its eight weeks of deliberations.

"I would be less than candid, however, if I were to leave you with the implication that we are entirely satisfied with the result of the conference."

MacEachen said that texts being prepared by committees of the conference to serve as negotiating bases for next year's international gathering would reassure Canadian fishermen who believe their livelihood is threatened by the operations of foreign trawlers. But Homer Stevens, president of the 9,000-member United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union of British Columbia, said his province's fishermen cannot wait for more sea law conferences.

"I'm not fully convinced that Canada is prepared to take unilateral action," Stevens said after MacEachen's news conference.

Aerosol Death Toll

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Consumer Product Safety Commission said today that aerosol products kill an estimated 125 Americans annually, most of them young people who deliberately inhale everything from spray paint to deodorant to produce a "high."

The commission's estimate, based on examination of death certificates nationwide, was prepared for a meeting with industry leaders today to determine whether federal action is needed to curb aerosol abuse.

Aerosols are also under attack because of suspicions their fluorocarbon propellants may harm the earth's ozone, which shields the planet from ultraviolet radiation.

Manufacturers and inventors were asked to describe what has been accomplished since hearings 13 months ago to discourage intentional misuse.

In 77 death certificates from 40 states over an 18-month period ending in December 1974, the agency's bureau of epidemiology found aerosals the culprit. The agency's estimate of 125 deaths annually was derived from this finding.

All the deaths were the result of intentional abuse except for the case of a motorist who sprayed a can of vaporizer inside his car. Two elderly persons committed suicide with aerosols, the commission said.

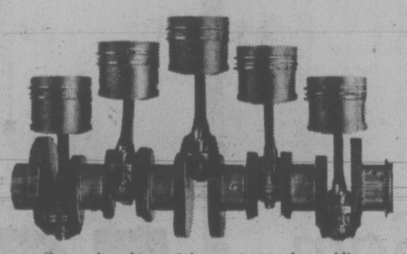
Unquestionably one of the best investments of our time–the new Mercedes-Benz 300D at $12,985.*

Again Mercedes-Benz quietly astonishes the engineering world.

The new Mercedes-Benz 300 D. The world's only 5-cylinder automobile.



Internal workings of the new 300D, the world's only 5-cylinder automobile.

Mercedes-Benz pioneers yet another engineering milestone: a 5-cylinder Diesel engine that rivals today's gasoline engines in smoothness, quietness and power—while providing the unmatched economy and durability inherent in Mercedes-Benz Diesels since we introduced the world's first production Diesel passenger car in 1936.

The 300D clearly flies in the face of engineering convention. It establishes a whole new category of Diesel—a whole new category of automobile.

Why a 5-cylinder?

Mercedes-Benz wanted to make a performance Diesel. A new car that had much greater horsepower and torque, but did not sacrifice the economy and reliability of previous Mercedes-Benz Diesels.

Nearly four decades of Diesel experience told the Mercedes-Benz engineers that a major power increase would have to come from an entirely different engine. Not one with bigger cylinders—one with more cylinders.

If engineering convention were to be served, the next step up from our standard 4-cylinder Diesel should have been a 6-cylinder engine. But because of the unusual strength necessities particular to all Diesels, it follows that a 6-cylinder Diesel would have to be substantially larger and heavier than a 4-cylinder.

The Mercedes-Benz solution was typically unconventional: A 5-cylinder Diesel engine.

The most advanced Diesel

The 5-cylinder Diesel engine was a technical challenge for Mercedes-Benz engineers. But, they made it work.

The new engine's size was set at 3 liters. Torque was raised nearly 20%. Horsepower was up a full 25% over any previous Mercedes-Benz Diesel. The result is the new 300D, the most advanced Diesel passenger automobile. For a full descriptive brochure on the 300D, the well-known 240D, and other Mercedes-Benz models, write to Mercedes-Benz of Canada Limited, 849 Eglinton Ave. E., Toronto, Ontario, M4G 2L5.

The new 300D has superb acceleration and a 500-Mile-Plus cruising range.

29 mpg in town, 37 on the highway

According to the most recent U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's test report, the new 300D can get up to 29 mpg in city driving, and up to 37 mpg on the open highway. And since Diesel fuel is usually cheaper than gasoline, the 300D goes more miles on cheaper gallons.

Performance, economy, luxury

While the new 300D acts like an economy car, it doesn't look or feel like one. In every major appointment, the 300D is equal to the Mercedes-Benz 280 Sedan. It blends performance and economy in a luxury package.

A final thought. No manufacturer anywhere in the world has a greater safety involvement than Mercedes-Benz. Evidence of the decades of Mercedes-Benz safety engineering is everywhere in the 300 Diesel.

The best resale value

The record shows that Mercedes-Benz automobiles have a better resale value than the Big 3's standard or luxury cars. This reassuring fact, along with many other unique attributes, combine to make the new Mercedes-Benz 300D an exceptional investment.

The most enjoyable and rewarding method of evaluating any Mercedes-Benz automobile, however, is the test drive. Just contact your local Mercedes-Benz dealer.

Soviet Space Lab Abandoned, Watchers Theorize

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Soviet Union appears to have abandoned its orbiting Salyut space station, which would be the fourth straight time the Soviets have launched one of their $500 million space laboratories without revisiting it.

Western space observers say that Salyut 4 appears to be drifting aimlessly in orbit, each day slipping a little more off course for Soviet cosmonauts to reach it. The 20-ton space laboratory was put into space late last year and visited only once, by the cosmonauts of Soyuz 17 last January.

Another sign that the Soviets have given up plans to revisit the Salyut space station is the departure of the Soviet tracking ships from their normal stations in the Gulf of Newfoundland and the Gulf of Guinea. The tracking ship Komarov has returned to its Black Sea port of Odessa and the Korolev to its port in the Baltic Sea.

In another development, the Soviet tracking vessel Gagarin left port in Cuba and steamed to a position in the Atlantic just north of Puerto Rico. This strongly suggests the Soviets will attempt a deep space flight to Venus, since the "window" for a Soviet flight to Venus opens up in the second week of June.

Soviet tracking ships position themselves near Puerto Rico to help relay radio signals to unmanned spacecraft that have left the Soviet Union and have been put into "parking" orbit around the earth before leaving for Mars or Venus. Presumably, the Gagarin put to sea a month ahead of time for practice sessions with ground controllers in the Soviet Union.

"There's a good chance that this time the Soviets will attempt to put a spacecraft into orbit around Venus," suggested Charles Sheldon, Soviet space expert of the Library of Congress. "It's just possible we'll see two Soviet flights to Venus next month, one an orbiter mission and the other a lander."

Sheldon pointed out that the Soviets did not launch a spacecraft toward Venus the last time earth was close enough to attempt a flight to the planet. Such opportunities occur every two years.

"The last time the Soviets skipped a window was to Mars more than two years ago," Sheldon said. "It turns out they skipped the window while they were upgrading their launch vehicles, so they could be getting ready to carry a lot more weight to Venus with the bigger launch vehicle."

Price Hike for Export Gas Sends Oil Stocks Soaring

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

News that Canada will increase the export price for natural gas sent petroleum stocks soaring this week, pushing the oil index up more than 18 points as of the opening of trading today.

The index of 19 western oil stocks began the week at 167.52 and rose 18.49 points to 186.01 at the close Thursday on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

The gas export price increase in November will raise 1976 profits from natural gas by as much as 30 per cent, according to market analysts. This assumes that the companies will be able to retain a large share of the added revenue.

In British Columbia, the government will await a report from the B.C. Energy Commission before deciding whether to share the increased revenue with producers. The government-owned B.C. Petroleum Corporation purchases all B.C. gas from producers.

Alberta and Saskatchewan also have not decided how much of the increased revenue will be retained by the companies. The export price of natural gas will rise from $1 per thousand cubic feet to $1.40 in August and to $1.60 in November.

Investors took an optimistic stance and bought heavily in oil and gas shares on the strength of the announcement of price increases.

Even highly-diversified Imperial Oil gained from the buying enthusiasm, being the top trader Tuesday and rising to a 1975 high of $30.75. It opened at just under $30 this morning.

Companies mainly or exclusively in natural gas were in the forefront of the price rise. Universal Gas, Aquitaine, and Pacific Pete all hit highs for the year. Gulf Canada and Shell Canada also moved up this week.

Canada's announcement it would reduce the export tax on crude oil, making Canadian oil more competitive in the U.S. market, also added to the optimism about petroleum shares.

While the oil index was rising more than 18 points this week, the industrial index fell 2.63 points in the same period at Toronto.

Pulling the index down was investor disappointment over falling profit trends in beverages such as Hiram Walker and Seagrams. Hiram Walker was trading at a seven-year low this week and Seagrams was at its low point of the year.

In New York, the market analysts were saying the big board was basically on the upside despite occasional dips this week. Declines were being called technical corrections and the index continued to respond to favorable economic news.

In Vancouver, three more companies have been delisted in the annual housecleaning of stocks. Removed from the list are Boston Bay Mines, Capri Mining Corp. and General Resources.

The following companies have been suspended for 15 days for failure to pay fees and submit reports: Earlcrest Resources, Conolidated Cleveland Resources, Lucky Strike Mines and Toronado Development Corp.

These suspensions can be rescinded or extended.

The superintendent of brokers has issued cease trade orders for the following Vancouver stocks:

Buckley Explorations, Buval Executive Mining, Demsey Mines, Frontier Explorations, Gunn Mines, International Tika Resources, Leemac Mines and Native Mines.

RECEIVER'S SALE OF FISH PROCESSING and CANNING BUSINESS

R. W Denson, Receiver of the assets of D. D. & C. Holding Co. Ltd., 235 Russell Street, Victoria, B.C., offers the following business for sale. (Consideration might be given to the sale of individual pieces of equipment). Arrangements can be made with landlord for lease arrangements on premises.
Equipment includes some of the following:
*Can sealer and retort
*Complete cooler room (3.2 ton)
*23 cu. ft. Admiral freezer
*Hussman Display Case

Offers are subject to Provincial Sales Tax. Parties interested in viewing should contact R. Andersen at the Industrial Development Bank, 850 Fort Street. (Phone 385-3375).

Closing date for bids is May 20th, 1975. Tenders (to be submitted to R. W. Denson, C.A., of the firm of Roberts, Denson, Hill & Co., 759 Courtney St., Victoria), are to be accompanied by a certified cheque in the amount of 15% of the tendered price. All or any offers will not necessarily be accepted.

Reap some benefits from all the cheques you write.

If you write ten or more cheques a month, consider a Commerce Key Account.

Because at 16¢ each, ten cheques already cost you $1.60. That's for the cheques you write, period.

But an extra 90¢ makes it a whole different story.

With a Commerce Key Account you can get a preferred rate on most consumer loans, (and that's a nice thing to remember). You can get this summer's travellers' cheques for no extra service charge.

You'll have an identification card which allows you to cash a personal cheque, up to $100, at any of our 1600 Commerce branches in Canada.

And that's not all. There is no service charge when you use 24-Hour Cash Dispensers, you'll get special cheques, money orders, domestic drafts, and a whole raft of other services.

All for a flat $2.50 a month. Or, in your case, maybe 90¢ more than you are paying now for cheques alone.

But hold on. We don't think everybody should get a Commerce Key Account. If you're not writing ten or more cheques you could be wasting your money.

And that's exactly what a Commerce Key Account doesn't want you to do.

IT'S YOUR MONEY. MAKE THE MOST OF IT.

U.K. Pound's Unstoppable Dip Raises Confusion as to Cause

By KEVIN DOYLE

LONDON (CP) — With the British pound moving dangerously close to a dizzying plunge in value on international exchanges, confusion is rampant here about the real causes of its apparently unstoppable decline.

The overseas purchasing power of the pound, at times recently, has dropped more than 25 per cent from its level of December, 1971.

But unlike other periods when there has been a sterling crisis, newspapers, magazines and specialist journals carry only the barest reports of the problem instead of the lavish coverage and analysis they usually provide. Some simply acknowledge they are deeply baffled.

In financial circles, however, there is a lingering suspicion that the treasury and the Bank of England may have decided to refrain from supporting the pound as part of the campaign to convince Britons to vote for remaining in the European Common Market when a referendum on the issue is held June 5.

The immediate cause of sterling's decline is that more institutions and individuals wish to sell it than wish to buy it.

But the question now puzzling analysts is why the current pressure on the pound seems to have developed so suddenly.

It is possible, of course, that large sterling holders, such as Arab oil states and multinational firms, are simply losing faith in the British economy and they wish to switch their wealth to the banks — and currencies — of other countries.

But this alone would not explain why everyone chose to act at this time rather than months ago, when the economy was even weaker.

In the past, the government has said it does not want sterling to fall anywhere near a 25-per-cent devaluation and has indicated it would prefer to hold the depreciation closer to 20 per cent.

The Bank of England acknowledges that it has frequently gone into the markets itself to buy sterling and bolster its strength at times when it has shown alarming weakness in the past.

So the question now being asked is why the bank isn't doing this again. Britain has official reserves of foreign currency equal to about $7 billion with which to buy pounds if it wishes.

If this kind of suspension of the Bank's normal market intervention is the real cause of sterling's fall, some observers believe it may not lead to any permanent weakening and can be corrected fairly easily after the Common Market referendum.

Unless, that is, the current plunge sets off a sustained panic, in which case nothing short of a massive international rescue attempt would be likely to save the pound.

Bell Canada

Bell Canada Wednesday said its consolidated net earnigns for the first quarter of 1975 declined to $45.7 million or $1.21 a share from $52.1 million or $1.41 a share for the corresponding period a year ago.

The lack of growth in earnings reflects higher wage costs, rising expenses and higher taxation, said Robert Scrivener, Bell Canada chairman.

Playboy Enterprises

Playboy Enterprises Inc., the parent company of all Playboy operations, Wednesday reported a net loss for the second successive quarter.

The company said it had a net loss of $387,000, or four cents a share, for the third quarter ended March 31.

Its second quarter ended with a loss of $356,866, or four cents a share.

Cdn. Superior Oil

Canadian Superior Oil Ltd. has reported net income of about $10.7 million or $1,25 a share for the first quarter of 1975, compared with $6.6 million or 77 cents a share for the same period last year.

Gross revenue from all sources increased 54 per cent to $32.3 million.

A shareholders' report said the improved results reflect oil and gas price increases. However, gross production of crude oil and natural gas liquids averaged 38,987 barrels a day during the three months, down 12 per cent from the corresponding period of 1974.

Voyageur Petroleums

Voyager Petroleums Ltd. has reported net income of $847,196 or 21.8 cents a share for the first three months of 1975, compared with $432,473 or 11.2 cents a share for the same period last year.

The company, in its interim report for the three months ended March 31, said increases in gross revenue, cash flow and operating income resulted from increased natural gas sales, averaging 34.6 million cubic feet per day, and higher gas prices, averaging 61 cents per thousand cubic feet.

Canadian Pacific

Canadian Pacific Ltd. reports consolidated net income for the first quarter was $25.4 million, or 34 cents an ordinary share, compared with $37.4 million, or 51 cents a share, in the corresponding period of 1974.

The company said CP Rail lost $8.3 million compared with net income of $4.5 million last year. Expenses were up $31 million, or 15 per cent, while revenues increased by $18 million, or nine per cent.

Mortgage Report Incorrect

A Canadian Press report from Toronto that Canada Permanent Trust has stopped issuing mortgages because it has run out of funds to loan is not correct, says Hamish Manson, Victoria manager for the company.

The story appeared in Wednesday's Times.

The Toronto office of the company has stopped issuing mortgages temporarily because of a backlog of paperwork. It has ample funds on hand for mortgage loans, he said.

In Victoria, the company is continuing to make mortgage loans.

Doctors Could Halt Services —BCMA Head

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Private doctors in B.C. could withdraw services if government-salaried doctors are forced to join the Professional Employees Association, Dr. Bill Ibbott, president-elect of the B.C. Medical Association said Thursday.

Dr. Ibbott told the association's annual meeting that a walkout like one that ended two weeks ago in Manitoba is "a foreign concept in B.C."

"But it is a concept that might become more familiar if the government fails to answer our petition," he said.

Also at the meeting, outgoing president of the association, Dr. H. S. Gillespie called for an increase in government payments to the province's doctors.

Dr. Gillespie said doctors "have been struck a damaging economic blow" by inflation.

He warned, however, that "We should follow inflation, if indeed it continues, and not lead it in our request for benefits."

Kootenay Arsenic Probe

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial health officials will test creeks in the area surrounding Kootenay National Park following reports of high arsenic levels in Radium Hot Springs pools.

A Parks Canada spokesman said there are no plans to close the bathing pools which tests this spring showed to contain 10 to 15 times the maximum levels of arsenic for drinking water.

Testing has already begun on St. Clair Creek which flows into the Columbia River near the hot springs, East Kootenay medical health officer Dr. Arnold Lowden said in Vancouver.

"So far, there is no indication of a health hazard but we are going to run the tests to make sure," he said.

Dr. Lowden said the provincial health department has no jurisdiction over the park but will test the surrounding areas. He said the few people living along St. Clair Creek have been warned not to use the water for drinking because of the possibility of organic pollutants.

In a press release from the Parks Canada Calgary office, William Turnbull, western region director, said medical authorities say the pools are safe for bathing.

He said the only people endangered would be those who drank a great deal of water at one time or over a prolonged period. There have been no reports of people becoming ill from the water, he added.

VERNON (CP) — Charles Bernhard, president of the British Columbia Fruit Growers Association, Thursday predicted an apple shortage later this year, brought about by heavy consumer demand coupled with a low crop last year.

Prices, already at their highest-ever level, could go higher, he said.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The lawyer for an accused murderer, William Robert Sackville, who hanged himself Wednesday at the Lower Mainland Regional Correctional Centre, said Thursday his client left a letter in which he admitted killing Port Moody secretary Elsie Faye Van Haren.

ENDERBY (CP) — Fire severely damaged the L.A. Fortune Junior Secondary School here Thursday.

About 50 firemen from Enderby, Salmon Arm, Armstrong, Spallumcheen and Vernon, which is 23 miles south of here, fought the blaze for about five hours.

A school district spokesman said no damage estimates were available. He said efforts would be made to find temporary accommodation for the school's 340 students.

PENTICTON (CP) — Construction of the new Cherry Lane shopping centre was halted today when a construction crew of about 100 left the job site as a result of a dispute betwen sheet metal workers and carpenters.

Allan Kenyon, president of Kenyon Construction, which is building the centre, said the dispute concerns which group of workers will apply the exterior siding to the buildings.

Beef Prices 'Outrageous'

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Retail beef prices in western Canada are outrageous and totally unjustified, a federal commission of inquiry into beef marketing was told Thursday.

A survey of retail beef prices at chain stores in eastern Canada showed the average markup is between 19 and 41 per cent, a spokesman for the B.C. Cattlemen's Association said. A similar survey in western Canadian stores showed an average markup between 33 and 58 per cent, he added.

Olympics' Brundage Dies

BONN (UPI) — Avery Brundage, 87, a towering figure in the world of Olympic sports for more than two decades, died Thursday night.

His doctors said Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee for 20 years until 1972, entered the hospital two weeks ago for a respiratory infection. They said he died at Garmisch-Partenkirchen Hospital of a heart failure.

"His death is an enormous loss for everyone. He was a man whose stature and personality went far beyond the world of sports," Willy Daume, president of the West German Olympic Committee said.

Brundage, an engineer by profession, spent his life trying to free amateur sports from politics and professionalism and earned as many epithets as awards for the effort. He left his home in Chicago March 9 to join his 39-year-old wife, Princess Mariann Von Reuss, in their summer home in the Alpine retreat in southern Germany.

In his 20 years as head of the IOC, Brundage was often the focus of controversy.

"At one time or another, I've been called a capitalist, a communist, a socialist, a fascist and a lot of other things that are unprintable," Brundage once said. "Kinder people have called me the last living amateur and I'm proud of that. The defence of an idea is more important than popularity."

In 1920 he had the American track and field championships moved from New Orleans because the organizers refused to let blacks compete.

Following the massacre of Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympics in 1972, Brundage, his voice shaking with emotion, said:

"We cannot allow a handful of terrorists to destroy this nucleus of international co-operation and good will that we have in the Olympic movement. The games must go on."

And they didn't.

He then ended two decades as IOC president.

With one final fervent cry against commercialism, particularly the Winter Olympics and Alpine skiing, Brundage stepped down and Ireland's Lord Killanin took over the leadership of the Olympics.

Weary and lonely following the death in 1971 of his first wife, the Detroit-born Brundage retired, admitting that years of controversy over such things as communism, racism, nationalism and, above all, commercialism, had taken its toll.

Ford Prices May Rise Six Per Cent

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. says it will raise car prices between three and six per cent this fall, making it the last of the big three United States auto makers to annouce price increases and the first to indicate their size.

General Motors and Chrysler said last week that price increases are unavoidable because of continued cost increases. American Motors has not said if it will raise prices, but the company is expected to follow suit.

Meanwhile, GM confirmed Thursday that its Supplemental Unemployment Benefits SUB fund has run dry, cutting in half jobless pay for 55,000 laid-off production workers. The company said it did not know when it would be able to resume payments, exhausted by extensive, long-term layoffs.

PEKING ENVOY TO ECM

By JOHN BURNS
Special to the Times

PEKING — In a move that underscores China's support for a united Europe, Peking has decided to establish officfal relations with the Common Market and appoint an ambassador to the European Commission in Brussels.

Announcing this in Peking Thursday, Sir Christopher Soames, the market's commissioner for external relations, said:

"I believe there is a Chinese proverb that says that the longest journey begins with a single step. We have now taken the first step towards a closer and more fruitful relationship which I hope and believe will be of considerable significance, both for the People's Republic of China and for the European Community."

At a press conference, Sir Christopher also announced that China has agreed to negotiate a trade agreement with the Community. The aggreement, to be negotiated in Brussels, will replace individual trade agreements between China and Community members which became invalid by Community regulations at the beginning of the year.

During his visit here, the first by a community official, Sir Christopher has had talks with several high-ranking officials, including Vice-Premier Li Hsien-nien and Foreign Trade Minister Li Chiang. The importance Peking attaches to the visit as marked by the brief meeting Sir Christopher had with Premier Chou En-lai after yesterday's announcements, in the hospital where Premier Chou has spent most of the past year with a heart ailment.

Relations with the community are not likely to be of major importance to China themselves, at least until the Community advances further towards political integration. But Peking obviously regards the step as an important symbol of its support for European intergration.

Auto Workers Offered Shares

Manchester Guardian

LONDON — Chrysler U.K., the American-owned car manufacturer, which is facing serious financial and labor problems, Thursday produced a far-reaching plan for pulling itself and its 27,000 workers out of trouble.

The plan, described by Chrysler as "a bold new program to ensure industrial peace and the growth of the company," includes proposals for worker-participation in management and for employee shares in company profits.

The proposals took union representatives by surprise when they were put forward by Don Lander, managing director of Chrysler U.K., at talks in Coventry. One, Ray Wild, a convener at a Chrysler plant in the city, said the ideas appeared "even more radical than British Leyland."

Frank Chater, Coventry district secretary of the engineering union, said that he was "amazed" and added: "It is something I did not anticipate, but something I welcome."

But there were still considerable doubts Thursday night whether the proposals would avert the start of a strike threatened by some Chrysler workers from Friday night.

Anesthetist Strike Spreads

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) Anesthetists in two more big California cities have agreed to join their counterparts here in a strike protesting escalated malpractice insurance rates.

Sacramento's 60 anesthetists and San Jose's 70 said they would leave the surgical theatres of their hospitals May 19. There was growing strike sentiment in Los Angeles and San Diego.

Late Thursday, officials here said about 2,000 more hospital employees would be furloughed or laid off Monday unless there was an immediate settlement in the dispute. So far 3,000 workers have been let go in the crisis, which began May 1.

Dale Morgan, president of the San Francisco Hospital Conference, said the city's 20 affected hospitals were losing $200,000 a day because of the work stoppage. He called upon the legislature to meet in special session at once to come up with a solution.

The dispute started when the anesthetists let their insurance lapse. They were angered because the Argonaut Insurance Co., of Menlo Park, Calif., discontinued its group rates and boosted individual rates by some 300 per cent.

The striking anesthetists did agree to provide doctors in life-and-death cases, but the patient population at hospitals dropped drastically because surgical services were curtailed.

The crisis was intensified when Travelers Corp., a major carrier of such insurance, said it might raise its premiums for the specialists from 400 to 600 per cent on Nov. 1.

Dr. Seymour Wallace of San Jose, president of the California Society of Anesthesiologists, said the mood of his associates as "uter anger and frustration" because of Travelers' announcement.

World Bullion Dealers Flock To Relieve Refugees of Gold

Manchester Guardian

FORT SMITH, Ark. — A small task force of Swiss-American bullion dealers flew in here quietly late Tuesday night, joining dozens of immigration, Red Cross and welfare officials who have arrived to help the thousands of South Vietnamese refugees gathering on a nearby army base.

The bullion dealers admitted, however, that their reason for coming "is not wholly altruistic" — they have come to relieve the Vietnamese of what are believed to be "considerable amounts" of gold bars, gold coins and gold dust.

With this in mind the three-man team from Dean, Perera and Co. — a large combine with offices in Zurich, New York, Washington, Macao and a dozen other major banking centres — has brought thick rolls of bank notes, a set of precision scales and large bottles of acid with which to test the refugees' bullion savings.

"I expect my people to be here for two weeks at the very least," Otto Ruesch, the Swiss-born vice-president of the company said here Wednesday. "We have been told by the State Department that many of the people coming here have brought out lots of gold and foreign exchange. We are (here) to buy it from them — and make some money for the company as well."

Ruesch said he had also sent a team to Eglin Air Force Base in Florida, another refugee resettlement centre, for the same reason. The Los Angeles office also will be sending a team to the west coast resettlement centre at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

"Our real reason for coming is that we were caught by surprise when the refugees came to Guam. We have an office there, but things happened too fast for them and they have not been able to cope. So head office decided, after talking with the state department, to start the operation on a large scale down here."

Bearing in mind the huge sums of money involved in the operation, the group — Ruesch; Stephen Ober, a bullion expert; and Karen Swan, a foreign exchange specialist — brought its equipment and funds in with a surprising lack of security. They arrived on a regularly scheduled flight from Washington via Memphis, Tenn., and carried $100,000 in the new bills in cardboard boxes. "We gave in to the desk clerk at the motel here and told him how much it was," Boer said. "He nearly flipped."

Ober said that a major problem would come in testing the fineness of the gold brought in—most of it smelted and stamped by Saigon and Hong Kong dealers. "We have a big stock of gold needles, balances, bottles of nitric acid and stuff," he said.

The only major problem Ruesch foresaw was reselling the bullion. "The Zurich market have said they will not accept any Saigon gold, so I guess we will have to try and get rid of it in London and Paris, and I am looking into the possibility of selling it in Beirut."

Miss Swan said she had been told the evacuees had also brought in large sums in Swiss and French francs, "which I will be happy to exchange for them." Unfortunately, anyone who brought any South Vietnamese piasters will be disappointed because "they are not worth a damn any more, and we are not taking them."

Phnom Penh Turned Into 'City of Terror'

Times News Services

The Khmer Rouge capture of Phnom Penh three weeks ago turned the Cambodian capital into a city of terror, says Swedish journalist Herman Lindqvist.

A correspondent for the Stockholm newspaper Expressen, he said joy over the end of the war turned into fear soon after the conquerors shut down communications with the rest of the world.

"Then came terror and the nightmares began," he said.

Back-up for Lindqvist's report came today from a French doctor who remained in Phnom Penh after its fall and who said in Paris former premiers Sirik Matak and Long Boret were executed and another 300 Cambodians had their throats cut by the incoming rebel forces.

Dr. Bernard Piuart, chief surgeon of Calmette Hospital at Phnom Penh, also told the French state television network that he treated French women raped by the Khmer Rouge.

He said he saw 300 corpses with their throats cut on the central market of Phnom Penh.

He said he carried out surgical operations in the French hospital after the capital's seizure and that he "treated wounded Khmer Rouge with a grenade at my back. They told me, if you make a mistake, you will be blown up."

Reporter Lindqvist, who was evacuated from Cambodia after being trapped when the Khmer Rouge seized Phnom Penh, made his remarks in the first of a series from Bangkok.

He said the first jubilant Khmer Rouge troops to enter the capital were followed by grim soldiers who "did not laugh."

"They opened fire," he wrote. "They shot in the air and along the street."

Lindqvist said the conquerors ordered residents by loudspeaker to leave the capital immediately but failed to explain where the people should go.

"If any of the confused people hesitated, one in a group was shot so that the others knew that the (orders) were for real," he said.

Lindqvist was one of a handful of foreign newsmen who stayed in Cambodia after the takeover and took refuge in the French Embassy. He had refused to write anything about his experiences until all other foreigners left.

He said he saw young Khmer Rouge soldiers stop fleeting refugees at gunpoint and take watches and radios from them.

"The guerrillas went into stores and took food, medicine, watches and alcohol," he said. "They wanted motorcycles, cars and bicycles."

Lindqvist said more than 2,000 persons sought asylum at the Hotel Le Phnom, which the Red Cross set up as a neutral zone barred to soldiers.

"But a large group of guerrilla soldiers came up to the hotel and forced their way in, armed with pistols and automatic weapons," he said. "The guerrillas then stole the Red Cross medicine."

Lindqvist said the Khmer Rouge then gave everyone in the hotel a half-hour to leave the area, forcing the Red Cross to leave behind wounded and ill. The ailing were later driven into the street by the Khmer Rouge.

On his way to seek refuge at the French Embassy, Lindqvist said a Khmer Rouge soldier approached him with a sub-machinegun.

"I tried to laugh and shake his hand, but he stared at me with ice-cold eyes . . . at the end he took my camera bag and dismissed me. The last I saw of him was as eh was trying to look through my telephoto lens."

Additional substantiation of the horror stories also came from UPI correspondent Richard Boyle, also reporting from Bangkok. He was among nearly 1,000 foreigners caught in the fall of Phnom Penh and was later evacuated to Thailand in a road convoy.

Boyle told of seeing the first Cambodians venture into the square in front of the French Embassy to talk to the Khmer Rouge.

"There was quiet conversaaion for a few minutes, and then someone started cheering. Within moments, the square seemed to be filled with hundreds of people, many of them young," he wrote.

"They shouted and waved white flags that they obviously had kept ready for the moment. They startled some of the Khmer Rouge by swarming around them.

"A sniper fired toward the crowd from somewhere and everyone scattered for cover. But the sniper did not stay long, and soon the square was filled again.

"But the welcome did not last long.

"In the afternoon the Khmer Rouge circulated through Phnom Penh with loudspeakers, telling the people to leave for the countryside.

"For several days we watched as the city's population — swollen to well over 1 million at war's end — went past in a steady procession, clutching their meagre possessions.

"Some went in cars and some were in oxcarts, but most walked. Patients, ordered out of hospitals, were accompanied by relatives.

One Khmer Rouge official we met later during our truck convoy trip to Thailand told us the new government had moved the people from the towns into the countryside so they could learn to live like peasants.

"Members of the first convoy to leave the French Embassy reported mass destruction of property in stores and homes by the Khmer Rouge.

"Some people waved in villages that had been under control of the Khmedr Rouge for some time. In the areas recently captured, the villages were deserted, and one village we passed was burned to the ground," he said.

Brezhnev Lauds Vietnam Victory

MOSCOW (WP) — Soviet Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev hailed the Communist victory in Vietnam Thursday, calling it a "triumph of the effective and militant solidarity of the Socialist countries."

In a major speech to mark the 30th anniversary of the defeat of Nazi Germany, Brezhnev said: "It is high time that those whom this concerns realized the simple truth: attempts to suppress the liberation movement of nations in our time are doomed to fail."

CONG DEMANDS RETURN OF EVACUATED VIETS

Times News Services

The Viet Cong rulers of South Vietnam asked the U.S. today to return home all those Vietnamese it said were forcibly evacuated from the country, the Yugoslav News Agency Tanjug reported from Hanoi. It said such evacuation was a crime.

The Viet Cong's provisional revolutionary government accused the Americans of forcing 80,000 Vietnamese, mostly women, children and old men, to leave the country and alleged that in some cases they used chloroform to put the people into the ships bound for Guam.

The Viet Cong also promised to provide "favorable conditions" for foreign correspondents in South Vietnam and said the Communists would protect all law-abiding foreigners in the country.

In Washington, House appropriations subcommittee, cutting the Ford administration's request by $102 million, approved $405 million Thursday to pay for the maintenance and resettlement of Vietnamese refugees in the U.S.

About 530 Cambodian and South Vietnamese military men continue to receive training at U.S. bases and service schools even though their armies, navies and air forces are no more.

Death Car Involved In Race?

Central Saanich police are appealing to residents along the 7600 to 7700-block of Wallace Drive for information about a possible two-car drag race Wednesday about 11 p.m.

Police are investigating the death of Paul Charles Whillans, 20, of 1315 Gladstone, who was killed when his sports car hit an oak tree at West Saanich Road and Stelly's Cross Road about 11:05 p.m.

Chief Robert Miles said today a witness saw a car believed to be Whillan's go by alone on Stelly's Cross Road, but added that the two cars may have raced down Wallace and then split.

A Wallace Drive resident has told police she heard two cars race by at about 90 miles an hour just after 11 p.m.

Miles appealed to the driver of the other car to come forward, if there was a race.

Suez Ships Freed

CAIRO (UPI) — Two more ships in the fleet of vessels trapped in the Suez Canal were liberated today, this time under tow from tugboats, the canal authority said.

SEA PROCESSING

Legislation which allows processing at sea of shrimp, clams and other species that require fast handling was introduced in the legislature today by Recreation Minister Jack Radford.

Radford said the new law is designed to assist commercial fishermen faced with processing species that deteriorate in quality quickly.

Salmon and tuna canning operations afloat, however, are still prohibited.

The Fisheries Amendment Act also includes minor rearrangements that would change the name of the department's commercial fisheries branch to marine resources branch. Radford said the new title is more indicative of expanded branch activities.

An additional feature requires all commercially-licensed fishermen under provincial jurisdiction to be Canadian citizens. Radford said the law applies only to a small number of freshwater commercial fishermen in B.C. and is in line with federal legislation.

The commissioner of fisheries would also get a name change — to director of fisheries.

CUPE Pact Ratified

Greater Victoria school board Thursday ratified a contract settlement with its 345 clerical employees, members of Local 947 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

The contract was ratified by the union at a membership meeting several weeks ago.

Local president Kay Cleghorn said today the contract will be officially signed as soon as it is typed.

The agreement provides a 17 per cent increase minimum retroactive to Jan. 1 and an additional 3 per cent increase in October. In 1976, the employees will get a 6 per cent raise and a cost-of-living adjustment allowance.

Local 947 was neither on strike nor locked out during the recent CUPE dispute, but members were off work for some time as they honored the picket lines set up by the striking custodial staff of the school board.

'Canadian' . . . Without Canadians

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Secretary of State Hugh Faulkner said Thursday it is conceivable that periodicals could receive tax benefits as "Canadian" publications without a single article by a Canadian writer or about a Canadian subject.

"Conceivable but, I am bound to say, not desirable," he stated.

This was about the only clarification Faulkner gave on the controversial "content" issue when he opened debate in the Commons on his bill to remove tax benefits for Time and Reader's Digest magazines.

He passed on to Revenue minister Ron Basford the responsibility for deciding when a magazine is or is not a Canadian magazine and therefore entitled to tax benefits.

"In the case of uncertainty in the mind of any publisher contemplating the publication in Canada of a periodical with a certain format and editorial content, it is possible, I am assured by my colleague the minister of national revenue, to obtain an advance ruling from his department on the eligibility or not of that periodical for the (tax) benefits," Faulkner declared.

The bill under consideration, an amendment to the Income Tax Act, would remove the 10-year-old exemption for a handful of foreign-owned Canadian-based periodicals and the two large American-owned magazines from tax regulations imposed on foreign publications circulating in Canada.

It would also disallow deductions against income for Canadian firms advertising on U.S. border television stations received in cities like Vancouver and Toronto.

Officials of Time have complained that the government has not sufficiently defined the "Canadian content" requirement—one of several which must be met to allow them to keep publishing in this country.

Faulkner also attempted to wipe any suggestion of censorship from the government's move to end tax privileges for advertisers in the Canadian editions of Time and Reader's Digest.

"It in no way implies government interference with the editorial policy of periodical publishers," he said.

Scattered cries of "censorship" rang from the Progressive Conservative benches during Faulkner's speech. Gordon Fairweather (PC-Fundy Royal) told the House his party believes both magazines should be given time to increase their Canadian ownership.

Cyril Symes (NDP-Sault Ste. Marie) said the bill is long overdue. Neither magazine had a legitimate claim to be a Canadian publication although between them they had 48 per cent of the country's magazine advertising revenue.

He noted that Time is wholly-owned by its U.S. parent while Reader's Digest has less than 32 per cent of its shares in Canadian hands.

Symes said much television and newspaper news gives Canadians "a viewpoint on the world through other people's eyes and our own lifestyle is becoming very Americanized."

"In terms of newspaper content, because there are not many Canadian foreign correspondents, there is a heavy reliance on The Associated Press, United Press International and Reuter."

The Canadian Press, the national news co-operative, distributes foreign news supplied by AP, Reuter and Agence France Press. CP has its own bureaus in London, Paris, Washington and New York.

AIRLINE TRAVEL AGENCY PLAN STILL ALIVE?

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal travel agency official said Thursday he is unsure whether an Air Canada plan to invest in a country-wide string of travel agencies is still alive.

Raymond Tarbet, secretary-treasurer of McGregor Travel Co. Ltd., told the Air Canada inquiry he was informed by one Air Canada official that a deal for a nationwide travel agency would not go ahead.

But R. Y. McGregor, McGregor Travel president and Mr. Tarbet's boss, had been told by Yves Menard, former Air Canada vice-president, that the deal would probably go through.

Mr. Tarbet said he considered a $100,000 payment by Air Canada to Mr. McGregor last November as an investment in McGregor Travel and a first step to a larger national agency.

Mr. Justice Willard Estey, presiding over the inquiry, suggested Air Canada was getting a poor bargain if it was paying $100,000 for a 1.7-per-cent interest in a national agency.

"It looks like someone paid 10 times too much for a 1.7-per cent interest," he said.

Mr. Justice Estey of the Supreme Court of Ontario is investigating the $100,000 payment as well as the financial control and management of Air Canada.

Air Canada is not allowed under the Air Canada Act to own a travel agency.

The document approving the payment to Mr. McGregor said the money was for his consulting services in influencing provincial, Middle Eastern and Latin American governments for Air Canada.

Mr. Tarbet told the inquiry these terms were a "total surprise" to him as previous negotiations had concerned an Air Canada share in a national travel agency which would include McGregor Travel and Burke's Worldwide Travel of British Columbia.

He said there was a "gentleman's agreement" that the $100,000 payment would give Air Canada an option on 10 per cent of McGregor shares.

This would, in effect, give the airline a 1.7-per-cent share in the larger national company.

Mr. Justice Estey noted that the total value of the enlarged national company would be $1 million but Air Canada would be entitled to only 1.7 per cent of the shares with a payment of $100,000.

He suggested this was an inflated price for such a small interest.

Socreds Raided, Tax Men Seize Documents

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal taxation officers seized documents and records from national Social Credit offices in Rimouski, Que., party leader Real Caouette said Thursday.

The raid, earlier this week, came as a surprise and has left party officials puzzled, he said after raising the issue in the Commons.

He was unclear about the motivation for the raid, but indicated it concerned new tax deduction privileges in the election expense law passed last year.

The law covers both cash and service contributions to political parties. He indicated that tax officials question receipts issued by the party for services rendered by supporters.

Revenue Minister Ron Basford said he is awaiting a report on the seizure but will attempt to have the documents returned and to confine the investigation to party premises.

Caouette said the party is prepared to submit to an investigation but it does not want records removed. The documents were taken to Quebec City, he said.

"Since when are electoral funds subject to income tax?" he asked.

The Social Credit leader said his party "did exactly what the law says we can do" and has nothing to hide.

He called the raid discriminatory because nothing similar had happened at Liberal, Progressive Conservative or New Democratic Party offices.

He said he does not know how much money is involved but it would be in the thousands of dollars.

Published reports say the figure in question may be more than $500,000.

BREAD PRICE STABILIZED

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill designed to stabilize the price of bread for the next five years was given final Commons approval Thursday.

Retroactive to 1974, the proposed legislation—that now requires Senate approval and royal assent—fixes the price millers pay for wheat at $3.25 a bushel until the end of 1980.

It provides for a federal subsidy of $1.25 a bushel, which fixes the price farmers receive for their bread wheat, basically the top grades, at $5 a bushel.

Antibiotics Foul Milk

OTTAWA (CP) — A fair amount of meat and milk may be contaminated by antibiotics, a health department official admitted Thursday.

Dr. A. B. Morrison, director of the health department's health protection branch, was answering questions in the Commons health and welfare committee.

He said such contamination is known to occur but is difficult to trace to the farmer because of the complexities of the marketing system.

Gus Mitges (PC-Grey-Simcoe), who raised the question, said he thinks that since farmers face little likelihood of prosecution, there is probably a lot of contaminated meat and milk.

Sex 'Rights' Passes

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The California Legislature has approved a sexual "bill of rights" for adults, but refused to relax penalties for marijuana possession.

Thursday the assembly passed and sent a bill to Governor Edmund Brown that repealed the state's 100-year-old sex laws and makes legal all heterosexual and homosexual acts in private between consenting adults.

But the assembly rejected by a narrow margin legislation that would have made an individual found in possession of an ounce or less of marijuana subject to a maximum $100 fine.

Current law allows a judge to treat possession as either a felony or a misdemeanor, with a possible sentence of up to 10 years in prison.

Backers of the marijuana measure said they would seek reconsideration of the bill later.

. . . producer benefits

Ottawa will receive one quarter of additional profits coming to B.C. because of increases in the price of natural gas.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said in an interview Thursday increased export prices announced this week will escalate Ottawa's estimate of fair market gas value, meaning higher government taxes going to the federal government on behalf of gas producers.

Macdonald also said he expects B.C. gas producers will receive an increase in the price they are paid for gas by the B.C. government.

Producers now receive an average of 22 cents per thousand cubic feet while the new export price of gas will be $1.40 on Aug. 1 and $1.60 on Nov. 1.

No gas price increases have been promised the producers and the B.C. Petroleum Corporation is studying the well-head price of gas in B.C.

Macdonald told the legislature no decision on price increases will be made until the study is completed in late August but he said later he expects adjustments will be made.

He also said the BCPC will show earnings of $92 million last year—its first year of operations—but $18 million of that profit will go to Ottawa in the form of new taxes on gas, paid by the BCPC on behalf of the companies.

The figures will be released soon in the BCPC's annual report, he said.

Macdonald said he is not sure exactly how much the 25 per cent of additional revenues going to the federal government will represent but Premier Barrett has said the increase in price would mean about a $60 million increase in revenues.

"So it (the amount going to Ottawa) will probably be about $15 or $20 million," said the minister.

The additional money to Ottawa is the result of a floating fair market value of gas.

Earlier this year, the federal and provincial governments came to an agreement over natural gas taxation and agreed that gas producers would be taxed on the basis of what Ottawa believes to be a fair market value, even though producers are paid a much lower price by the BCPC.

Gas is now sold at $1 per thousand cubic feet on the export market and about 60 cents on the domestic market for an average price of 80 cents. Allowing about 20 cents for transportation costs, Ottawa sees the fair market value as 55 cents, said Macdonald.

So the taxes on the difference between the 22 cents the producers receive and the 55 cents Ottawa thinks is fair, is paid directly by the BCPC to the federal government.

When the export price increases in August, said Macdonald, the fair market value will rise to 80 or 90 cents and therefore the taxes B.C. has to pay for the producers will increase.

Since the rate of taxation on gas companies is about 25 per cent, said Macdonald, B.C. will have to pay about 25 per cent of its increased revenues in taxation to Ottawa.

'Terrible' Brochure Scene

The old system of tourist brochures on ferries lead to brow-beating and even attempted blackmail of ferry employees, Transport Minister Bob Strachan said Thursday.

"It was a terrible scene," said Strachan, with individual tourist operators trying to force ferry workers to promote their brochures.

Strachan ordered all free brochures removed from the ferries last November to end "that bad scene." Vancouver Island Tourist Services Ltd. is now responsible for the brochures, by contract.

For about $75,000 a year, the company will service all the display racks and businesses will be able to have their pamphlets displayed at no cost through the VITS.

The new contract is a revised version of the original agreement negotiated by Strachan, which would have seen tourist businesses charged as much as $250 a year to display their pamphlets.

Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall said the government subsequently decided businesses should not be charged so the contract was changed, and business which paid VITS money will have it returned.

He said the change did not constitute any kind of friction or dispute between himself and Strachan.

Gregory Connects Drugs, Society Ills

The breakdown of society is reflected in marijuana statistics, Victoria police chief Jack Gregory says.

In an interview, Gregory, president of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police, referred to recent Statistics Canada findings which reported that 29,067 persons were convicted of offences involving marijuana and hashish last year.

Known new cannabis users last year totalled 36,494, compared with 23,251 in 1973 and only 24 in 1962.

Gregory said one of the major reasons for this increase is the lack of parental supervision of children.

"With both parents working in many families today, they simply do not have available time to devote to their youngsters," Gregory said.

"Related to this is also a lack of personal motivation in today's youth to achieve a worthwhile goal in life."

He said everything comes far too easily for kids and there is too much leisure time for them to get into mischief.

Yet, what punishment can be inflicted on juvenile offenders, Gregory asked. "Probation."

"And for subsequent crimes committed . . . again probation."

Gregory said repeated juvenile offenders should be taken out of their present environment and placed in institutions conducive to rehabilitation.

"I don't urge jails but I do feel rehabilatative institutionalization is needed."

He suggested forestry, parks and recreation, games and conservation and fishery camps for juvenile delinquents.

"This sort of institutionalization would provide education leading up to employment and would be a benefit not only to the delinquent but also to soceity as a whole," he said.

But what about an adult heroin addict?

"All we can do is to contain them . . . they're a lost generation."

Gregory said he fears that if marijuana is legalized, it may well have the same effect as legalizing crime because "marijuana can definitely lead to a dependency on heroin."

"Like with other drugs, one builds up a tolerance for marijuana and to get continued kicks, one must use greater and greater quantities until the next step is heroin."

He said that based on an average daily usage of two capsules of heroin at $50 a capsule, an addict would require $3,000 a month to support his habit.

"And no heroin addict can earn that kind of money legally."

OIL DIG DEADLINE

Deadline for applications to explore and develop petroleum and natural gas resources on Crown land is June 12, the provincial petroleum resources branch said today.

The competition will be held Aug. 20.

More Policemen No Cure—Mountie

VANCOUVER (CP) — Recruiting more policemen to catch more criminals will not solve society's problems, the RCMP's second-highest-ranking office in British Columbia said Wednesday.

"There is nothing that can be cured by enforcement, per se — not a bloody thing," assistant commissioner Gordon Cunningham told the convention of the Canadian Society for Industrial Security.

"You may not agree with me — practically nobody does — but what I'm saying is you can't cure any kind of a social problem with police enforcement."

Asst. Comm. Cunningham, who will retire in July after 35 years with the RCMP, said: "I am not leaving the force with much of a feeling of satisfaction."

The reason, he said, "Is what is going on out there in the social order — it doesn't look very rosy."

And policemen, while doing as much as they can, "are not doing much really to correct it," he said.

"Freedom as we know it can't survive if there is no morality in the society we are living in," Asst. Comm. Cunningham said. "When I talk about morality, I am talking about people being honorable, honest, having some backbone now and again to stand up and be counted.

"This is the society where people say 'I do my own thing and I do it when I want to do it. And I don't want anyone getting in my way. When they do get in my way, then — bang — get them out of my way.'

About $150 million will be spent on policing and administration of justice in B.C. this year, he said, and millions more will be spent by industry and others on private security.

"To put a rule of thumb on it, one half of the social order is stealing the other half blind."

Thieves Drain Grain Away

THUNDER BAY (CP) — The theft of wheat, oats and barley is turning into a lucrative sideline for some area residents, officials of Canada's two national railways said Thursday.

John McKay, a CP Rail sub-inspector, said there have been a number of recent instances of people — sometimes groups with trucks — punching holes in the interior paper walls of grain cars and making off with sizable amounts of grain.

The railways have been aware of minor thefts from unloaded boxcars for years "but we are concerned now because thieves are starting to punch holes in sealer walls."

Inside each loaded grain car is a heavy cardboard liner designed to prevent the leakage of grain from cars as they travel from the prairies to the west coast and Thunder Bay port elevators.

McKay said the major problem is that after an individual has punched a hole in the sealer and taken six or a dozen bags of grain and left, the spill continues.

"It is not unusual that where you get a hole punched in the wall you can lose 15,000 pounds of grain."

Dick O'Reilly, a sub-inspector with the Canadian National Railways, said CN hasn't had as much trouble as CP but there have been instances of theft. He said CN appears to have more problems in the Fort Frances, Red Rock and Atikonan areas.

He said most of their problems is with grain being swept from cars after they have been unloaded.

"To some extent that is the problem of the elevator companies because they are familiar with what is going on but they don't seem too concerned by it."

O'Reilly did say the CNR has laid charges of trespass against grain sweepers.

McKay said there is a more ambitious thief; the kind who sweep out unloaded cars along elevator trackage.

Armed with brooms and sacks, they can sometime retrieve as many as 10 sacks of grain from a car that has been unproperly unloaded.

Electrician Tops MD Pay

EDMONTON (CP) — After taxes and expenses, the average Alberta doctor has less money to spend than an electrician working the same number of hours, Dr. Bryce Weir says.

Dr. Weir, president-elect of the Alberta Medical Association, said that because of this, the tasks of prying more money out of the Alberta Health Care Insurance Commission will be his most important task in the coming year.

His term starts in September.

POLICE WIRETAP HOSPITAL ROOM

EDMONTON (CP) — Two hospital rooms and 19 jail cells were among the 59 places bugged by Alberta police last year.

A total of 26 wiretap orders, with an average lifetime of 31.8 days were approved in 1974, says a report published in the Alberta Gazette.

The report, required by the criminal code provisions that made illegal all except court-authorized wiretaps, says the taps have been "helpful."

But since the wiretapping provisions only came into effect last July, the report says, it is too early to judge the long-term effectiveness of the new law.

Bookmaking and breaking and entering offences were the ones most often specified in requests for the wiretap orders, the report shows. It points out that taps have also been granted to allow police to investigate possible breach of duty by a public official, extortion, robbery and fraud.

Drivers Rehabilitated

WINNIPEG (CP) — The provincial government is supporting a pilot program initiated by the Alcoholism Foundation of Manitoba for the rehabilitation of drinking drivers.

Acting Highways Minister Sam Uskiw told the legislature's estimates committee Thursday the first course began last week in Winnipeg. If the experiment proves successful, he said, the program will be extended to communities throughout Manitoba.

$1.5M Appeal Set

SASKATOON (CP) — Saskatchewan Attorney-General Roy Romanow has announced the provincial government will appeal a court decision declaring Saskatchewan's potash regulations unconstitutional.

Romanow said the provincial government's advisers do not agree with a decision handed down Tuesday by Mr. Justice D. C. Disbery of Court of Queen's Bench, ruling the government's pro-rationing regulations on potash unconstitutional.

Court awarded Central Canada Potash Co. $1.5 million in damages.

Gas Policy Defended

REGINA (CP) — Premier Allan Blakeney Thursday defended provincial government attempts to purchase Alberta natural gas while potential Saskatchewan reserves remain undeveloped.

Speaking at a news conference, Blakeney said the Saskatchewan Power Corporation had discovered the gas field in question and it wished to develop them in the same way "anyone else does who discoveres natural gas."

Egg Price Hike

EDMONTON (CP) — Producers in Alberta will be getting one to five cents more a dozen for their eggs next week but will still be facing a deficit of 15 cents a dozen, Dave Guichon, general manager of the Alberta Egg Marketing Board, said Thursday. Guichon said egg producers in the province have been operating at a loss for the last five or six months.

Dep't Takes Over

NORTH BATTLEFORD, Sask. (CP) — The department of Indian affairs has taken over administrative control of the Moosomin Reserve near here. However, Jim Wright, the departmtnt's acting regional director for Saskatchewan, declined comment Thursday on whether the takeover and anything to do with allegations of misuse of band funds on the reserve.

Bears Win Reprieve

Plans to capture and destroy all male black bears within two 20 square mile areas in the vicinity of Smithers and Francois Lake have been turned down by fish and wildlife branch headquarters in Victoria.

Branch director James Hatter confirmed today the department would not carry out the predator control program recently recommended by a local advisory committee at the Skeena regional headquarters in Smithers.

The plan was reluctantly aggreed to by regional branch staff.

"The program was not approved because some landowners in the experimental areas do not want bears destroyed on their lands," said Hatter. "A large number of bears would have been killed and there is considerable doubt that this would reduce cattle losses."

Hatter also pointed out that snares would have been used to capture the bears and there had been no intentions of using leg-hold traps.

Before The Judge

A presentence report was ordered in Victoria provincial court Thursday for a 19-year-old man who pleaded guilty to stealing stereo equipment from "friends," and jewellry from people who had given a party in his honor.

"The accused appears to be a bad man to invite to parties," prosecutor Nicholas Lang told Judge Fred Green.

Lang said Robert James, of 1687 Donnelly, who had been to a party at 225 Montreal Street last August, returned to the home April 19 and entering through an unlocked door, stole two stereo speakers and one amplifier. Total value of the equipment is $425.

Then at a party given in his honor April 23 at 519 Rowan, James stole two rings and a necklace charm from the bedroom, Lang said.

James was remanded to May 16 for sentencing.

Green disclosed that District Court Judge William Oslter has asked that all afternoon court sessions start at 2 p.m. rather than 2:15. This change will be effective in all cases except those which have already been set for 2:15. Green said the change is part of the court's attempt to maximize available court time.

On April 1, morning starting time was changed from 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.

'Impulsive' Abductor Granted Probation, Sent Back to the Farm

A 21-year-old Saskatchewan man who pleaded guilty April 28 to abduction, extortion and theft was placed on probation for three years today by Judge E. J. C. Stewart in county court.

One of the conditions of probation is that Douglas Stanley Halstead return to Unity, Sask., where a farmer is holding a job for him.

Sentence was suspended on the offences.

Judge Stewart said the offences are "most serious" and "seem to cry out for a severe custodial sentence."

★ ★ ★

But the crimes were committed in such a "bizarre fashion with no actual violence involved" that they couldn't be treated as many people might think they should be treated.

The primary principle, he observed, in this case was deterrent to Halstead rather than to others and "jail is not the answer in this particular case."

Prosecutor Wally Anderson described Halstead as "impulsive, hostile, critical, explosive, resentful and having difficulty in controlling his temper" and medical tests indicated "anti-social conduct."

The charges stemmed from an incident last Nov. 12 when Halstead entered Plimley Motors showroom, 1010 Yates, and while on a test drive in a sportscar produced a brown paper bag telling salesman George Salvador it contained a bomb.

★ ★ ★

After ordering Salvador to hand over his wallet containing $20, Halstead forced the salesman to accompany him on the ferry between Swartz Bay and the mainland.

Salvador was released unharmed at Tsawwassen and Halstead drove off in the sports car.

Anderson told court April 28 that reports of Palestinian terrorist activities and other abduction and extortion attempts partially influenced Halstead.

Defence counsel Dean Wilson had called the action "strange . . . bizarre", but there was no premeditation.

Liz Hodding and the Cantelons handle 40 patients

● Three ounces of methadone mixed with orange juice induces a euphoria that allows the addict to function in a society stymied by a solution to a terrifying drug problem

H-Addict Program Survives

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Shunned by the medical profession, disdained by police, condemned by citizen groups and largely ignored by politicians and the public, the methadone program manages to survive.

It has been operating out of the provincial government funded Victoria Treatment Centre at 951 Alston in Vic West for the past three-and-a-half years. In that time, 235 men and 93 women have passed through the clinic's doors.

Last week there were 40 patients—all heroin addicts—reporting daily for their three-ounce cup of liquid methadone mixed with Tang.

Supervisor Kathy Cantelon says more than half the current number have been on the program more than a year. One man has been using the heroin substitute more or less continuously for seven years.

The euphoria induced, she says, is not as potent as heroin but longer lasting (24 to 36 hours) and at least allows the addict to function in a society unable to solve the terrifying drug problem.

"If we have one aim," says Mrs. Cantelon, who has been dispensing the drug in carefully controlled and monitored dosages since January, 1972, "it is to minimize the drug involement in an addict's life."

Treatment No Cure-All

She says because methadone is free, clinically pure, and unlike heroin, doesn't build up a tolerance in the body, the addict is released from the endless worry of drug supply and can channel his energies into more constructive areas. Many of the patients work, or attend school. One man is in his fourth year at University of Victoria studying toward an arts degree.

Mrs. Cantelon, a 34-year-old mother of two teen-aged children, used to have qualms about methadone treatment.

"I've gone through many feelings since I've been here. Seeing the patients as we do, one begins to redefine the criteria for success. Now I think of methadone as good."

She admits, however, it is no cure.

"But it is the answer for some . . . you have to accept some people need a crutch . . . some can face reality, some cannot."

For years publicity about methadone has been low key and often adverse—a fact, she says, that has led to misunderstanding, irrational misapprehension and downright ignorance about the program.

Only 10 per cent of heroin addicts have opted for methadone treatment, Mrs. Cantelon estimates, and attributes the low ratio to a widespread fear the drug is tougher to kick than heroin.

"Yet, in my experience, people withdrawing from methadone indicate no more severe physical problems than those withdrawing from heroin. It's all psychological."

She says there has been little communication with the medical profession over the years.

"Most doctors don't understand the problem. They are too used to treating normal (non-addict) people and are often put through a lot (deceived) by the addict."

Police Attitude Unfavorable

But the most vocal critics are the concerned parent groups, which complain the treatment is only perpetuating the addiction problem and attack the centre for the things an addict must do to get on the program.

The biggest issue is the requirement of an addict to supply heroin-tainted urine samples for five consecutive days before treatment begins.

Mrs. Cantelon explains there are reasons for such a requirement.

"We have to determine first the person has a narcotic dependency and second we have to test his motivation to help himself."

She and her staff of two—one is her husband, John, who is the clinic counsellor, the other is Liz Hodding, a case aide—run a strict clinic.

The patients must show up at a specified time—generally between 7:30 and 9:30 a.m. If they don't they are given one chance to be late every two months. Any more, and they forego the medication that day.

The addict has to come in every day, holidays excepted, unless he has a clean track record for a year in which case he can take his weekend dosages home with him on Friday and report back the following Monday.

Before receiving the medication, the addict gives a urine sample in the presence of a clinic worker. The sample is then sent to Vancouver and tested to determine what other drugs, if any, the patient may have been taking.

The occasional presence of heroin in the sample isn't enough to cut the addict off the treatment program, although regular, repeated presence is.

Security in the clinic is tight. Only the exact amount of methadone needed each day is picked up in the morning at a downtown pharmacy and kept at the centre. And the dosages, which vary slightly according to an addict's need and tolerance level, are placed in styrofoam cups, name-tagged for each patient, in a locked, private back room.

"Everyone freaks at addicts," says Mrs. Cantelon. "The truth is the addict is a person with a lot of underlying phychological problems.

"I'm not saying he isn't a criminal too. Most of the people we see have a long history of disciplinary problems.

"But if there are two things that underscore the addict's personality, they are his total lack of responsibility and his penchant to place blame for all his problems on someone else.

"We tell the addicts when they first come here they are responsible for their own treatment and must follow the rules," she says.

"And if they don't, well, for once in their lives, they have no one to blame but themselves."

Summer Start Scheduled For Widening Bottleneck

Victoria Times
FRIDAY, MAY 9, 1975 19
SECOND SECTION

Preliminary drilling and clearing will start this summer on widening the Trans-Canada Highway to four lanes between the Thetis Lake interchange and Tillicum Road, a highway department spokesman confirmed today.

The official said the work will be tackled in "bits and pieces" by the highways department's own crews, and therefore should cause little interference to traffic.

Survey crews are already at work on the 2.7-mile section of highway, which is heavily used at all times but carries between 1,300 and 1,500 vehicles per hour in peak periods.

Highways Minister Graham Lea announced the widening project last November as an "interim" measure to handle traffic needs over the next five years. At that time, officials estimated it would take at least two years from strart to completion.

Lea said his department was basing its long-term planning on the principle that the artery eventually must have at least an eight-lane capacity to cope with future growth, irrespective of transit and other transportation improvements.

When that stage was reached the four central lanes would be reserved for through traffic and buses, he said, with the flanking lanes handling local commuter and other traffic.

Under the first-stage widening to four lanes, ramps at the Thetis Lake interchange and also the intersections along the route—at Helmcken, Burnside and Tillicum—will have to be redesigned to ensure smoother traffic flow.

The department spokesman said today that work will also start this summer on widening the improved alignments to the narrow, twisting East Sooke Road which is the only road access to East Sooke regional park.

That project will also be undertaken on a "progressive" basis stretched over three to four years.

Some 12 miles of the Jordan River-Port Renfrew road have been paved north of Jordan River and further upgrading of the road is scheduled in the coming months, he said.

Strike Votes Defeated

Two strike votes taken at The Victorian Newspaper this week were defeated by members of the International Typographical Union, Victorian publisher John Damgaard said today.

Damgaard said the votes were taken Monday and Thursday. The publisher called the votes a "vote of confidence for management."

About 17 employees in the production department of the three-times-a-week paper are seeking a first contract.

Phone Computer Wakes Up

Computer trouble which blocked connections between two dialling areas in the Victoria telephone system for 10 hours Thursday cured itself inexplicably at 7:10 p.m.

It was as if the computer controlling automatic switching equipment said, "I'm having a rest," a B.C. Telephone spokesman said today.

He said a memory drum that would normally handle calls from the 38- series of numbers to the 59- series in South Fairfield and Oak Bay became faulty about 9 a.m. and to prevent putting a strain on its remaining capacity, circuits were shut down until servicemen could examine it in the quiet period after 10 p.m.

At 6 p.m. it was noted the drum failed entirely, remaining out until 7:10 when normal operation resumed—automatically.

Jenkins' Friends Rally

Lawyer Brian Smith was to appear late this morning on behalf of a 23-year-old man wanted on an Indiana murder charge and ask that his deportation hearing be recessed until Thursday.

John Brady Jenkins, who lived here under the name John Brady, was arrested Wednesday while at work on a Saanich construction site.

He was indicted for murder and attempted murder following a shoot-out in 1972 on a farm near Lebanon, Indiana, that left one man dead and another paralysed for life.

Smith said today he will ask for a recess at this morning's federal immigration inquiry at Wilkinson Road jail, and he will also ask that Jenkins be released on bail pending a decision on his deportation.

"I'm finding there's a large number of very fine friends and citizens who want to help him and testify for him," said Smith.

He said Jenkins has led a stable life since coming to Victoria in November, 1973, and has been employed by the same firm for the past seven months.

"There's every sign that he knew the police were looking for him, but he didn't run away," he said.

Early Start For Clatter

A one-hour earlier start to the construction racket in Victoria will be sanctioned by city council under an amendment to its noise abatement bylaw introduced Thursday.

The change permits "construction and excavation noises" between the hours of 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. from Monday to Saturday inclusive. The bylaw in its present form limits the din-making to the 8 a.m.-8 p.m. period.

The new hours, requested by the construction industry, become effective in two weeks when the bylaw is given final reading at council's next meeting.

In Adversity, a Continuing Greatness

FROM THIS CANADIAN to a United States of America approaching its 200th anniversary, congratulations!

Many happy returns.

Hang tough. Don't let 'em get you down.

You're a good neighbor, U.S.A. I'm glad of your large and reassuring presence across the border we share. And from long association through peace and war, good times and bad, I esteem you as a personal friend.

This sweet-talking isn't from the corner of my mouth. Nor does it overlook the fact that Canadian-American relations aren't always of the smoothest. I simply feel more at ease with Americans in their country, and more kindly disposed to them in mine, than I could with any other nationals.

Canada is my land, and I'm glad of that. But if it weren't—if Canadian citizenship were denied me—I would choose to be a citizen of the United States.

We have heard a great deal lately about American excesses and mistakes, flounderings and failures. Watergate, with its revelations of political corruption at the highest level. The Indo-China adventure, rashly conceived, costly in execution and predoomed to failure.

But it should also be remembered by critical onlookers that both disasters put a nation's conscience to the test with such results as we have witnessed.

Watergate was not permitted to become a skeleton in the American closet. That domestic scandal was dealt with before the world in a manner that any nation burdened with a like situation could do worse than emulate. That same conscience, stronger than Pentagon or president, forced the withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam.

I think it's time we talked less about our neighbor's troubles—remembering that we are not without our own—and gave more thought to American greatness.

For the greatness is there, tarnished at times but enduring, and the man or nation that would write the United States off as a decadent power on the verge of eclipse is blind to the lessons of history.

No great power—not even Britain in her imperial years—has exerted so profound an influence on world technology, agrarian development, resource utilization and the reduction of population-decimating plagues.

No power has addressed itself more boldly to implementing the dream of a world order in which reason would supplant force of arms in settling international disputes. And if the dream has yet to be realized, where lies the blame?

Most certainly, the blundering giant that emerged from isolationism to crash about in world affairs cannot escape its share of blame for the failure of the League of Nations and the United Nations as global peace-makers. Great enterprises invite great errors. But no other power has undertaken the thankless role of brother's keeper with more goodwill and with so lavish an expenditure of its means.

It is easy to be cynical about the American contribution—to see the United States as the pedlar of wooden nutmegs with a shrewd eye on the return from dollars invested.

As a Canadian, I would have my country be independent to the extent that independence is possible for any nation.

Our mere proximity to the United States makes it essential that we keep firm control of resources we can't afford to squander. The working out of our domestic problems must remain in our own hands.

But as a Canadian and a North American, I remain cold toward the ingrown nationalism that would have us turn away from this neighbor who has worn well through the 200 years since the British outpost colonies of the New World chose their respective directions.

We have had our disagreements. We have not seen eye to eye on matters ranging from boundary lines to trading practices. Our differences are as extensive as our similarities: I doubt we will ever fully understand each other.

Still, a man learns where his friends are, and to this friend with a third century coming up, the best of luck. May your future be bright and your troubles fewer in a world that would fare poorly without you!

Meeker, The Blazers, A WFL Comedy Script

The things you get in the mail, or across the desk. And it was nice seeing Harold Turner again. Turner is one of the old school of city basketball, once organized and managed the KVs association with teams of all ages, is father of Moe Turner who coached First United Saints to the Canadian Juvenile Girls' championship two years ago, and dropped by to drop off a story on Howie Meeker which appears in this month's issue of Saturday Night. Because that's his business, see.

Saturday Night? That is Canada's oldest magazine, which has been reborn as the masthead says, with a new style, new writers . . . the whole bit . . . and Meeker, well, he's hockey's analyst par excellence and the story of how he lost the Toronto coaching job makes interesting reading. "I got caught in a power struggle," he explains in part. Hey, and the mag is pretty good otherwise, too.

Meanwhile, those bound for the '76 Olympics may be interested to learn that spectators in the Olympic Stadium will have to glance only to right or left to read instant results of competitions taking place before them. That's the gist of another Olympic bulletin. The screens measure 33 by 66 feet and will be visible at any distance up to 1,100 feet. Times will be recorded down to one-hundredth of a second.

The scoreboards actually will be like massive television screens capable of displaying live TV shows, animation, slow motion, replays, 16 mm films, 35 mm transparencies, photos, and 25 special effects. Get your tickets early.

Ah yes, and the demise of the Vancouver Blazers was to be expected, or as president Jim Pattison said: "It's those empty seats. Why should people buy season tickets when they know they can always get tickets for any particular game?" Then, of course, where was the indisputable fact that the Blazers lost the power struggle with the Canucks. The Canucks came up big, the Blazers didn't, and if winning isn't everything, it sure helps; and in Vancouver the Blazers simply came out second, and far from the best. And their payroll, 'tis said, was higher than that of the Canucks!

And a note too about a fact that shouldn't have escaped attention in the first place. Cyril Connorton, who passed away last week, was the first Victorian to run the 100-yard dash in under 10 seconds. And for that other questioner, no, I don't have all the figures on the struggling World Football League, but someone said the financial toll was around $40 to $50 million. But there were some peculiarities that bear repeating.

In Detroit for instance, once the team couldn't practice because it had not tape; another time it couldn't get its uniforms out of the laundry. In Jacksonville, the owner was reported to have borrowed $26,000 one day from the ex-high school coach he had hired as his head coach and then fired him two days later. In Charlotte, N.C., the team, in an effort to save its uniforms, snuck out the back door of the dressing room while the sheriff's deputies were coming in the front. In Portland, well-wishers gave mass feedings for the players. Finally in one three-day period the league playoff structure changed from eight teams, to three, to six, to four; and the teams competing would be those which would accept the collect call inviting them to play.

Oh, yes, and it was Birmingham which won the World Bowl, defeating Orlando in the final, 22-21, and it wasn't a bad ball game either. But, keeping to form, eight hours afterwards, some more of those sheriff's deputies showed up and seized the uniforms. Nobody skipped out the back, because after all, the season was over, and who needed uniforms?

JAMMED AGAINST BOARDS and held away from puck by Buffalo's Jerry Korab (4) is Montreal scoring ace Guy Lafleur. Tenacious checking by Sabres in Montreal Thursday night was too much for Canadiens. Scotty Gives Sabres Marks

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach Scotty Bowman of Montreal Canadiens quietly peeled a tab off a soft drink can in the Montreal dressing room Thursday night.

A group of reporters had clustered around him to hear his explanation of a 4-3 loss suffered by Montreal to Buffalo Sabres, which enabled the Sabres to win their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final series 4-2.

"I don't know, " Bowman said in subdued tones. "We just didn't have it tonight. We just didn't put three good periods together, except for two games in the series.

"Buffalo played a very fine second period. That fourth goal (by Jim Lorentz in the second period) gave them a big lift. It was eventually the winning goal."

The Canadiens, who won 7-0 and 8-2 on Forum ice earlier in the series, started off with a furious offensive assault, but only Peter Mahovlich found the range against Buffalo netminder Gerry Desjardins in the opening period.

Meanwhile, Craig Ramsay, Rick Martin and Pete McNab scored for Buffalo in the opening session with Ramsay's goal at 2:07 coming with the Sabres shorthanded. Lorentz got the lone goal of the second period with Guy Lafleur and Mahovlich scoring for Montreal in the third.

"We had some pretty good chances," said Bowman. "Desjardins made some good saves."

Buffalo coach Floyd Smith agreed. "He kept us in there. He came up big for us all year. All season long, he made big saves for us. He made the saves when he had to."

While the Canadiens were strong in the opening session, they faded badly in the second, managing only three shots, two of them with less than 10 seconds to go.

Montreal kept making the fundamental miscues that Bowman had complained about in the fifth game and in some ways were lucky they trailed by only three goals entering the final session.

Many of the mistakes were made by veteran defenceman Serge Savard and several times during the middle session, many of the crowd of 18,125 booed Savard each time he touched the puck.

"I was happy with the way they checked in the second," said Smith. "We didn't give them any good scoring chances."

Ramsay, one of Buffalo's best players in the series, said the Sabres had decided to play a certain close-checking brand of hockey against Montreal Thursday and it worked.

"We waited for them to make mistakes. We were fortunate, we got an early lead and we waited for the breaks and got them.

"It's not our usual style, but it worked well for us."

Buffalo played without the services of Don Luce, out with a bad shoulder, forcing Smith to use Lee Fogolin and Larry Carriere in Luce's penalty-killing spot alongside Ramsay.

The Sabres now will have at least four days rest while they await their opponent for the final round. Philadelphia Flyers lead New York Islanders 3-2 in the other semi-final following New York's 5-1 win Thursday night in Philadelphia. That series resumes Sunday afternoon at Uniondale, N.Y.

Bates' Pace Not Too Bad

With Victoria Bates returning home to meet North Vancouver Roadhouse Vikings in a four-game series this weekend, the big question still is: are Bates, last year's B.C. Fastball champions and Canadian finalists, as strong as last year?

With a 2 and 4 record so far in the Pacific Coast Fastball League, there may appear to be some doubt but last year at the same stage of the season Bates were 0 and 4 in the Northwest League and they came on from that humble beginning to finish in second place and prove supreme in the province.

Now, with four games in the friendly confines of Royal Athletic Park which earlier had been denied them because of a civic labor dispute, their true colors may show.

The only lineup change contemplated is that newcomer, Gerry Lister won't dress for the Saturday double bill. Alton Krantz, an outfielder from Prince George, who suffered torn knee ligaments in preseason action, will rejoin the club.

Games Saturday are at 7 and 9 p.m. and on Sunday at 1 and 3 p.m.

Islanders Trim Flyers to Size

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — Once again, the upstart New York Islanders have tarnished the pride of the Stanley Cup champion Philadelphia Flyers who suddenly have found themselves holding a tiger by the tail.

The Islanders cut Bernie Parent, the best goalie in the National Hockey League, down to pint size, scoring a 5-1 victory over the Flyers Thursday night in the fifth game of their semifinal playoff.

The Islanders have captured the imagination of those who love underdogs with their gritty comeback in the playoffs, first against Pittsburgh Penguins and now Philadelphia.

The Flyers had a 3-0 lead in this series but suddenly the Islanders have cut that to 3-2 and the sixth game is scheduled Sunday afternoon in Uniondale, N.Y., and a seventh, if necessary, on Tuesday in Philadelphia.

New York capitalized on its power play for the first goal in the first period when J. P. Parise drove in a 35-foot shot that beat Parent in the far corner. From then on, the Islanders kept building their lead until it grew to 4-0 midway in the third period.

The Flyers finally broke through goalie Glenn Resch who was remarkable and lucky in the New York nets, taking away his shutout at 15:10 when Tom Bladon's shot went in off Bob Kelley's skate.

Even more humiliating to the Flyers was the fact that the fourth and fifth Islanders goals came on breakaways by Bob Nystrom and Gary Howatt.

New York withstood a 17-shot attack in the second period and that, said Flyers coach Fred Shero, was the turning point.

The defensive minded Shero heaped special praise on the way the Islanders have been blocking shots and covering their own zone.

Coach Al Arbour of the Islanders said Parise's goal, making it 1-0, seemed to really loosen up the club and "they seemed to be free-wheeling afterwards and a lot easier out there."

But Arbour warned that the series was far from over, and it will take a supreme effort by the Islanders in the next two games to accomplish what has never been done before in NHL history—winning two series after starting with three losses.

Shakeup Pays Off

EDMONTON (CP) — Spruce Grove Mets battered Guelph Biltmores 5-2 Thursday night to tie the best-of-seven Centennial Cup hockey final at two games each.

Following Guelph's victory in the third game Tuesday night, Mets' coach Doug Messier changed his lines in search of more scoring punch. The move worked as Keith Hertz, Wayne Turner and captain Kelly Burn scored for the first time in the series.

Hertz, playing centre to help him shake a defensive slump, scored twice in the third period. He set records for goals and points by a defenceman during the Alberta Junior Hockey League regular season but has been hampered in this series by a leg ailment.

The series for the Tier Two Junior A championship resumes tonight and the sixth game is here Saturday.

GRAHAME EARNS A PLACE WITH PRO HOCKEY ELITE

Times News Service

Rookie Houston goaltender Ron Grahame, who will be attempting to extend a spectacular playoff string tonight, has joined the elite of the World Hockey Association.

Grahame, who five years ago was playing with Victoria Cougars in the B.C. Junior League, was named to the WHA all-star team Thursday after leading league netminders during the regular season with a 3.04 goals-against average.

Another rookie, San Diego defenceman Kevin Morrison, was also selected the all-star squad along with four veterans — defenceman J. C. Tremblay of Quebec Nordiques, left winger Bobby Hull of Winnipeg Jets, centre Andre Lacroix of San Diego Mariners and right winger Gordie Howe, 47, of Houston Aeros.

Voted to berths on the 14-team league's second squad were goalie Gerry Cheevers (Cleveland), defencemen Paul Popeil (Houston) and Barry Long (Edmonton), wingers Marc Tardif (Quebec) and Anders Hedberg (Winnipeg), and centre Serge Bernier (Quebec).

Grahame's goaltending has been a big factor in Houston's march to the best-of-seven final in WHA playoffs. He has been a winner in eight successive post-season contests with a goals-against mark of 2.18 and will be shooting for nine straight tonight when the Aeros, holding a 2-0 lead, tackled the Nordiques in Quebec.

Kershaw Car Hot

Gary Kershaw makes his first start of the stock car racing season Saturday night at Western Speedway.

Kershaw, winner of 16 super stock main events last year, missed the first three weeks of racing this spring because his new car, a 1969 Chevelle, wasn't ready. A delay in getting the parts put Kershaw and his crew, under chief mechanic Harvey Chipper, behind schedule.

But Kershaw drove the car through practice paces Thursday night at the Western oval and he's ready to go. So is his car. The car unofficially broke the track lap record of 19.09 seconds with a time of 18.50.

Tony Johnson will be after his third main event win in a row Saturday after leading from start to finish two weeks ago and coming from behind last weekend.

Johnson holds the lead in driver points standings, marking the third week in a row a different driver has been in front. Earlier leaders were Bill Price and Al Wade.

Saturday's time trials begin at 7 p.m. with racing at 8.

Trout, Salmon Catches Increasing Day by Day

Both salmon and trout fishermen continue to experience ever-better success in a number of Vancouver Island locations.

Waters off Secretary Island in Sooke are yielding chinooks weighing as much as 13½ pounds with anchovies the favored bait.

Gary O'Neill topped fishermen working Becher Bay this week with a 28-pound Columbian chinook taken on minnow, 11½ pounds of weight and 80 feet of line near Aldridge Point. Most of the catch, however, consists of chinooks in the seven to nine-pound bracket.

Fishermen on the water at the early morning tide change are picking up chinooks to 11 pounds along the Pedder Bay kelp bed on strip, about 60 feet of line and 12 ounces of weight.

Returns are running hot and cold off the Victoria waterfront. Saturday and Sunday were great and at least two of the regulars limited out both days on chinooks that tipped the scales to 16½ pounds. Fishing was "off" Monday and Tuesday but came on again Wednesday. Constance Bank is the best spot with waters between Clover Point and Brotchie Ledge running second. Strip is the preferred bait.

Chinooks to 20 pounds are coming in from about the 90-foot depth off the Chatham Islands. Strip is pulling in the largest fish but minnows are also producing.

Action has picked up in Deep Cove with chinooks as heavy as 15 pounds being taken on the outside of Wain Rock with strip and flutterfish; two pounds of weight and from 75 to 100 feet of line.

Indian and Coles bays are producing slightly smaller chinooks from greater depths and the latter spot is also yielding bluebacks in the evening on small hootchies or strip trolled just below the surface.

Fishermen have been cranking in chinooks to 18 pounds all over Finlayson Arm from varying depths and blues have been coming in from the White Lady and Bamberton areas.

★ ★ ★

Further up-Island, a few chinooks up to 15 pounds are being picked up right in Cowichan Bay as well as through Sansum Narrows and around Tent, Thetis and Kuper islands.

Limit catches of blues provide the main return off Nanaimo but a few small chinooks have been landed along the reef about 200 yards off the east side of Entrance Island by fishermen using down-riggers to reach the 150-foot depth.

Chinooks are still coming in at the mouth of Alberni Inlet and Frank Hastings of Port Alberni recently landed the first tyee of the year — a beautiful 36.2-pounder — in Rainy Bay.

Buzz-bombs, bucktail flies, flashtails, small spoons and little plugs have been used with good success on the large numbers of blues feeding on shrimp in the middle of the Strait of Georgia off Bates Beach, Little River and Comox.

Bucktailing for chinooks has dropped off but some nice 20-pounders are still being taken by this method off Cape Mudge along with an increasing number of blues in the 2½- to 3-pound range.

Some heavy chinooks, up to 30 pounds, were also reported taken in Muchalat Inlet.

Elk, Prospect, Beaver, Shawnigan, Dougan's, Quamichan and Cusheon lakes are all producing trout on yellow or orange-bodied flies.

Fred McLaughlin used a Metric spinner recently to land a four-pound brown trout in the upper reaches of the Cowichan River — one of several taken recently.

Cowichan Lake and Somenos Lake are also giving up some hefty trout to some anglers using a silver-bodied black fly or "frog" flatfish.

Further north, Brannan Lake remains consistantly good but trout fishing has declined a little in the Port Alberni vicinity.

Other good catches were reported in the tidal area of Campbell River (sea-run cutthroat) as well as Upper and Lower Campbell lakes, Buttle Lake and most of the Sayward area lakes.

NIBBLES: Federal Fisheries' research station in Nanaimo has started work on an experimental (and temporary) hatchery for pink salmon on Amor de Cosmos Creek just south of Kelsey Bay . . . Spawning runs of pinks (or humpbacks) occur every two years and the aim of this experiment is to see whether runs can be developed, through genetic manipulation, during the "off" years . . . Fred Whithler, a research scientist at the establishment, added: "If the experiment proves successful it will be a whole new ball game."

Blacker the Fish — Better the Day for Fishing

Merger Introduces New 'Agent'

KITCHENER (CP) — Officials from Canada's three major junior leagues announced Thursday agreement on a construction making the Canadian Major Junior Hockey League a legal entity. Then, they put forth proposals for an escalating fee scale that will cost pro clubs extra money if they wish to sign a junior before his eligibility expires.

The new league — incorporating the Western Canada Hockey League, the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series and the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League — will ask for a standard contract for all major players until they are 21 years of age.

The new group hired Joe Kane to draw up the constitution, and the Toronto lawyer announced a system of proposed payments that will go higher if the pro clubs — the National Hockey League and World Hockey Association — want to negotiate and sign a player before he is 21.

The CMJHL will also attempt to get the NHL and WHA to sit down at what Kane calls a "common auction" — a drafting program where the rival leagues will choose draft choices alternately, then go back to their respective teams with the allotment.

In effect the CMJHL is attempting to get rid of the agent, and will be acting as sole agent for their players.

Clarence "Tubby" Schmalz, commissioner of the OHA Major League, said the main thrust of the new league is that they will be charging one fee for negotiating rights to the players and a higher fee if the player is taken out of junior hockey.

The new league, under certain circumstances, will allow some players to return to the junior league for further development, even after they are signed to a pro contract.

Under the new league's constitution, a player who is drafted by a pro team could go to training camp, play five regular-season games, then return to the junior league — at an additional cost.

At the end of the CMJHL season, the player — if the pro club thought he was good enough — could return to help the club that signed him in post-season playoffs.

The escalating fee scale goes something like this:

- A 20-year-old player will get the new league $3,000 just for the right to negotiate with him. The team that drafts him will have one year to sign him, at which time he'll become a free agent.
- If they sign the 20-year-old, the pro club must pay the CMJHL $10,000. As soon as the player competes in 25 pro games, the club must pay the CMJHL an additional $10,000.
- It'll cost pro clubs $20,000 just to negotiate for a 19-year-old. If the player is taken out of junior hockey, the team owes the CMJHL $40,000. As soon as he plays in 25 pro games, an additional $10,000 must be paid.
- The league is asking $20,000 from the pro leagues to negotiate with an 18-year-old. If they take him out of junior hockey, the pro team must pay $80,000. If they feel he isn't good enough to play in the pros, the team can return him to the CMJHL, for $20,000 a year in development fees for every year he remains in junior hockey. A 19-year-old, if returned to junior hockey, will get the new league $10,000 a year.

The prices are just what the pro league or team will have to pay the CMJHL. What they pay the player is a differnet matter altogether.

Kane said after a news conference Thursday that the common drafting process will put the NHL an WHL on a par, and eliminate some of the high salaries being paid in the current bidding year.

Kane said the proposed rule will ensure that if a pro team thinks an 18-year-old is good enough to play in the pros immediately, they'll sign him and play him. If they don't then it will cost the pro club more to keep the player in the major junior league, developing for the day he can make it in the big leagues.

Whether the new league operates under the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association is a matter yet to be decided by the CMJHL's governors.

Under the current system, the CAHA give development fees it receives from the pros to the three major junior leagues. The CMJHL would now receive the money directly from the pros and then decide how much money to give back to the CAHA, if it wished to do so.

Ben Hatskin, chairman of the WHA executive committee, said he did not want to comment in length on the new CMJHL proposals until he has a chance to study them further. However, he said it looked as if it would cost the pro leagues more for their young players.

On the other hand, he welcomed the move because "at least the juniors have come up with something the professional clubs can look at now."

NHL president Clarence Campbell was not immediately available for comment.

Gordon Juckes, CAHA executive director, said in Ottawa that, not having seen the new league's constitution, he was not prepared to comment.

Nyhof Provides Relays Highlight

Relay teams and high jumpers were the big weapons at Esquimalt High School Thursday as Mount Douglas chalked up another triumph in track-and-field competition.

Mt. Doug athletes captured four of Thursday's five senior relay events as their school romped to a second successive title in the seventh annual All-School Relays, leading runner-up Oak Bay by 59 points.

Helping the champions and stealing the spotlight was Mark Nyhof, a Mt. Doug freshman who turned in a spectacular effort in the high jump event, clearing six feet, five inches for a meet record.

Diana Rose also contributed to the victory total by winning the girls' high jump with a leap of five feet, five and one-half inches.

Oak Bay, scoring 98 points to 157 for Mt. Douglas, got triumphs from Dale Baptiste (100 metres) and Jon Smith (1,500 metres), plus a relay victory. Esquimalt was third with 65 points.

In junior high school competition, Oak Bay collected team honors with 129 points, followed by Arbutus (84) and Lansdowne (42).

Fairburn (73 points) took the elementary school team championship with Richmond (50) second and Cedar Hill (49) third.

Willie Waves a Mean Bat After Air-Clearing Spat

By The Associated Press

What's a few words between friends?

That's the way Texas Rangers centrefielder Willie Davis feels about his shouting match with manager Billy Martin earlier this week—let bygones be bygones.

"I love Billy, we're great friends," says Davis. "Arguments clear the air. Out of arguments comes the best understanding."

Martin is happy, too, as long as Davis hits the way he did Thursday night.

Davis rapped out four hits against Kansas City, including a two-run homer which tied the game and a ninth-inning single which knocked in the go-ahead run in the Rangers' 5-3 victory over the Royals.

Elsewhere in the American League, California Angels beat Oakland A's 5-0 and Detroit Tigers beat Milwaukee Brewers 6-4.

The shouting match between Martin and Davis took place Wednesday night, when Martin kept the locker room door closed for about 15 minutes following a 6-5 loss to the Royals.

One player said later that at the meeting Martin cited a number of "stupid errors," including Davis' attempt to stretch a double into a triple in the fifth inning. He was thrown out, killing a rally.

He denied the shouting match inspired his big day.

"I'm motivated all the time," Davis said. "Last night is gone and past. I love Billy. We've known each other for many years. We've partied together. You can't throw all that away over a few words."

And Martin kept up his end, saying Davis "is playing his heart out."

In the National League, San Diego Padres snapped a four-game Cincinnati win streak by defeating the Reds 3-0 behind the four-hit pitching of Randy Jones; Philadelphia Phillies clipped St. Louis Cardinals 6-2; Pittsburgh Pirates edged the New York Mets 4-2, and Atlanta Braves downed San Francisco Giants 3-2.

S.J. Willis Wins Badminton Title

Led by their girls, who recorded victories in the senior singles, junior singles and intermediate doubles events, S. J. Willis captured the Greater Victoria junior high school badminton championship.

S. J. Willis finished with 52 points, eight more than runner-up Arbutus.

Sherry Ngai of S. J. Willis emerged as a double winner, partnering Dana Ng for a win in the intermediate doubles and sharing a victory in the intermediate mixed doubles with Colin Bedwell.

Dave Maxwell of Arbutus was the only other double winner with a victory in the junior singles and a share of the junior mixed doubles crown with Andria Levey.

Tim Elwell and Sheldon Stratford of Arbutus kept the record straight by collecting their third consecutive doubles crown while Lora Holly of defending-champion Lansdowne won a singles title for the third straight time.

Bruce Covets Texas Sweep

DALLAS (AP) — Bruce Crampton, the Australian veteran who won last week's Houston Open, happily admits to a certain fascination with the $175,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic.

"I'd very much like to win this tournament," Crampton said after taking a one-stroke lead with a five-under-par 66 in Thursday's first round.

There are two reasons:

He needs only this title to complete a career sweep of the four Texas tournaments. "It would be a nice little record to have," he said.

And the Australian native now is a resident of Dallas. He'd like to win before the hometown folks.

"You know how it is," said the stocky veteran who has won 15 titles in his 19 years on the American tour. "I have my family here. I have so many friends here. They all expect a lot from you. You'd like to play well in front of them."

Crampton took a major step in that direction with his solid, no-bogey effort on the 6,957-yard Preston Trail Golf Club course that left him with a onestroke advantage over Don Bies, Bob E. Smith, Babe Hiskey and Ben Crenshaw.

George Knudson of Toronto was two shots behind the leader at 68. Ben Kern of Toronto was a long way back at 77.

Johnny Miller was also among the group of more than a dozen at 68, and Lee Trevino, bitterly frustrated after a 72, had the putting miseries.

Trevino required 36 strokes on the greens. He three-putted a couple of times. He missed five from four feet or less, including a couple of less than two feet.

Bulls Lean On Defence To Take Lead

OAKLAND (AP) — Chicago Bulls clamped down defensively on Golden State to score an 89-79 victory over the Warriors Thursday night to take the lead in the National Basketball Association Western Conference finals.

The Bulls moved ahead 3-2 in the best-of-seven series and could end it Sunday at Chicago.

Chet Walker scored 21 points, mostly on corner jump shots, to lead Chicago scorers. Jerry Sloan scored 18, including 11 in the first period. Rick Barry of the Warriors scored 20 points but had only four by half time when Chicago was ahead by 47-39. The Golden State star was one-for-10 shooting from the field in the first half.

A Good Man Helps Navy League

The local branch of the Navy League of Canada knows a good man — and boat — when it sees one.

Officials have persuaded Dave Carere of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club to enrol as a civilian instructor with the Rainbow Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps and charter his 58-foot cutter, West-by-North, to the Navy League for at least 50 days of sailing this season.

Both boat and skipper are well seasoned in the sport of sailing. It isn't that long ago that Dave brought West-by-North back to her home port after a two-year cruise in which she logged close to 15,000 nautical miles.

The sea cadets will be getting their knowledge of seamanship, sailing, navigation and radar from one of the most capable sailors in these parts.

West-by-North sets off on a weekend training cruise this evening with eight members of the Patricia Dufour Navy League Wrennette Corps as crew and accompanied by two YFPs (armed forces auxiliary vessels).

Thirty sea cadets will be about the YFPs and will interchange with the wrenettes for sessions of "rag-hauling".

Sunday will be a big day at the Munro head clubhouse of the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association, with the official opening of the season.

Following the traditional flag raising ceremony, there will be a sail past, at 1:30 p.m. each boat sailing by in her respective class.

While guests enjoy facilities ashore, the most ardent types will compete in races, beginning at 2:30 p.m. In the clubhouse, marine photographer Jim McVie will give a special showing of Swiftsure and other events.

George Kirkwood was top Laser skipper in last weekend's racing, Robin Spear and Garry Rogers tying for second spot and Colin Nichols winning a third.

In Fireballs it was Grant Davies, followed by Dennis Callow and Maurice Robinson.

RVYC has two races scheduled for this weekend. The Discovery Island Handicap starts at 1 p.m. Saturday, using the reverse system which, in theory, should result in boats of all sizes finishing close to each other.

Saturday evening at 5 p.m. the keel boats of the club will set out on the 50-mile race to Crescent Rock on the Washington side of the Strait of Juan de Fuca and back.

They're hoping for better winds than last Sunday when 12 boats competed in the 35.6-mile race to Dungeness and back. It was so light that only Tom Loney's Goodbye managed to finish within the 11 hour time limit.

RVYC had its first Wednesday night racing of the season this week but results will not be available until all the handicaps have been worked out.

★ ★ ★

The Turkey Head Sailing Association also began its Tuesday night series this week.

Over-all winner was John Watson's Drambuie. She edged Hugh Bacon and Rod Andrews' Encounter, John Parkes' Fairlight, Randy Carter's Dixie and Ross Sinclair's Swallow.

The Victoria Canoe Club has an overnight San Juan River trip slated for this weekend.

Leaving Saturday afternoon, the paddlers will camp overnight at Fairy Lake, taking off from there at 10 a.m. Sunday. If you want further details, the man to contact is Erich Schulz at 383-7367.

Tough Opening Test In Store for Bakers

By D'ARCY KAVANAGH
Times Staff

Victoria McDonalds start the chase Sunday.

What the Bakers are after is the Western Canada Major Junior "A" Lacrosse League championship.

And as the schedule has it, they open their season Sunday on the mainland against defending champion Burnaby Cablevision, expected to be one of the powerhouses again in the five-team loop.

This season veteran coach Bill Munro will have a flock of new offensive threats to complement Kevin Alexander and Norm Baker, last year's scoring champion and runner-up, respectively.

Two of the new faces are scoring champions.

Mike Bryson topped the Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior "B" League with 60 goals and 70 assists while playing for Brantford. He also saw some action with the senior "A" Brantford club.

The other scoring leader is Phil Ashbee, son of former Victoria Shamrocks' star Don. He led the West Coast Senior "B" League with 60 goals and 54 assists and he'll be joined on the Bakers by Nanaimo teammates Charlie Randall and Dan Ranger.

Ashbee, however, will sit out the first two Victoria games because of a suspension handed him last year in the senior "B" league. Cleve Dheensaw will replace him in the lineup.

Other rookies with the club are Joey Mottishaw from Prince George, Steve Hepburn from Saanich and Gerry Cadwallader from Esquimalt.

McDonalds received a blow when another promising rookie, John Clements from Brantford, was operated on for elbow chips recently and complications developed. He won't be able to play for at least another six weeks and it's very doubtful if he will join the Bakers this year.

Al Radley and Mickie Michaux will share goaltending duties and this will be the first full season with the McDonalds for both. Last year they divided their time between junior "B" play and the McDonalds.

Top returnees are obviously Alexander and Baker.

Alexander won the league's rookie-of-the-year award last year when he set records of 89 goals and 159 points.

Baker, in his year of junior eligibility with Ashbee, set a league record for assists in 1974 with 95 in his 131 points.

Another prolific scorer returning is Bob Cool, who picked up 102 points last season.

Jamie Robertson, Dave Lowdon, Ken King and Roy Sinden are all back and Lorry Gloeckner, who played for Victoria Cougars in hockey this past season, and Mark Bowles are returning after a year's absence.

Bakers lost Mike Walsh, Jeevan Dillon and Gord Neilson to graduation and Rick Hollinshead and Bill Marechuk, who have returned to Ontario.

One problem encountered this season by Munro has been practice time. Because of the CUPE strike, the McDonalds have only been able to practice regularly the last 10 days.

"We're not nearly in as good shape as we were this time last year," said the club's general manager Bob Reid Thursday. "Several of the other teams, though, have had the same problem."

McDonalds take on New Westminster Tuesday in their first home contest in their 28-game schedule. They play all home games at Esquimat Sports Centre.

Viewing, Victory Eluded Burrards

NEW WESTMINSTER — Unexpected losers to the Timbermen at Nanaimo in their season-opening game, New Westminster Salmonbellies were more proficient before their own fans in their home-opener Thursday night.

Winners of the Western Lacorsse Association title and the national crown last season, the Salmonbellies charged into an early lead and held off a third-period rally by their rivals to defeat Vancouver Burrards 17-14.

It was the second straight loss for Burrards, who had opened their WLA campaign with a home-floor loss to Victoria Shamrocks, who make a bid for a share of first place when they tackle the Timbermen tonight at Nanaimo.

Harry Olsen fired three goals to set the scoring pace for the Salmonbellies, who grabbed a 7-5 lead in the opening period and boosted the margin to 13-8 in the second session. Dave Matheson, Larry Henry, Ian Kennedy and John Hanna each counted twice for the Bellies.

Bill Mercer, Rob Pinder, and Ward Sanderson each scored twice for Burrards, who outshot the winners 50-46 and outscored them 6-3 in the last period.

It was a losing night all around for Burrards. They had arrived at the Arena for the scheduled starting time of 7:30 before being informed that the contest had been set back one hour to allow fans and, presumaby, the Salmonbellies, to watch the finish of the televised National Hockey League playoff game between Montreal and Buffalo.

Tommy: Victim Is Victor

By VINCENT CANBY

"Tommy," Ken Russell's screen elaboration of The Who's rock opera written by Pete Townshend, is the movie that proves that there are times when much too much may be just about right, when overindulgence approaches art, when to allow oneself to become the victim is to triumph as the victor. The movie that pretends to be blasphemous is an allout Christian assault on the senses, Salvation is the message but "Tommy" couldn't care less about appealing to reason, It doesn't want to convert men's minds. It wants to paralyze them. It pounds you, insults you, mauls you, and drills holes into your eardrums — in case salvation turns out to be a matter of physical implantation, something the missionaries never thought of.

With the exception of "women in Love," which was a fairly decent, simplified, scaled-down version of the D. H. Lawrence novel, all of Russell's previous films have struck me as gargantuan mistakes the work of a maniac window-dresser who thinks he has a hot line to Freud, and whose movies mostly recall the disciplines of Olson and Johnson. In "the Music Lovers," (about Tchaikovsky), "The Devils" (suggested in part by Aldous Huxley's "The Devils of Loudon"), "The Savage Messiah" (about Gaudier-Brzeska), and even in "The Boy Friend" (in Which Rusell sank Sandy Wilson's small, witty show under a production as big and heavy as Australia), the director has pursued his muse with all of the grace of a trainer attempting to retrieve a drunk elephant.

Russell hasn't changed his method with "Tommy," but for the first time he has found a property that not only fits his style but also excuses it from the kind of rational scrutiny that was so withering to the other films. "Tommy" is to movies what a juke box is to furniture. It's not something you'd want to live with every day but it's kind of fun when you go out.

Townshend's rock opera — so called, I suppose, because there's no dialogue that isn't sung, though I'm not sure that qualifies it as opera — is a very loose morality tale about a little boy named Tommy who's struck deaf, dumb and blind when he sees his stepfather murder his real father who was supposedly lost in the Second World War. For satirical purposes that aren't of the heaviest weight, Tommy grows up to become the pinball champion of the world and, after miraculously recovering his senses, the messiah of a new religion that promises salvation through proper pinball-playing.

The story of Tommy's fall, rise and fall is merely the excuse for Russell to present Townshend's score (more than 24 songs) in a way that illuminates the concerns of the concerned youth of the 1960's, and that sends up those concerns at the same time.

Ticker Tape for Queen

TOKYO (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip rode through Japan's first ticker tape parade for a state guest today. Four Tokyo policemen in traditional Scottish kilt strutted far ahead, playing the bagpipes.

But a three-day transportation strike has forced the royal couple to give up plans to tour western Japan by the famed 120-mile-per-hour bullet train.

Officials said the government turned down an offer by the Japanese National Railway to operate a special train Saturday to take the Queen to Japan's ancient capital of Kyoto.

They said Elizabeth will fly in her own plane to Osaka, 350 miles west of Tokyo, and go by car to Kyoto.

In Yokohama the queen placed a wreath at a cemetery for her subjects who died in the Korean War and in the Second World War.

Representatives of Commonwealth countries met the Queen and Prince Philip at the cemetery in the city 17 miles west of Tokyo.

Cheering crowds lined the route to Yokohama, and later about 700 workers and 1,000 others waved Union Jacks and Japanese national flags to welcome the Queen to a Canon Camera Co. factory.

VE-Day Last One For France

The Associated Press

French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing announced Thursday that France will never again celebrate the anniversary of VE-Day, the 1945 Allied victory in Europe, and hopes to replace it with an annual celebration marking European unity.

The president made the announcement after attending ceremonies to mark the 30th anniversary of VE-Day on May 8, 1945, when Nazi Germany surrendered unconditionally to Allied forces.

In a letter to the nine-nation European Council, Giscard d'Estaing said: "... It is our common aspiration that it should be the last of the wars which in vain long drenched the soil of our continent with blood ... To show our determination to organize our peaceful future together, I have decided never again to commemorate this anniversary which thus will be the 30th and the last."

'LIB' MARRIAGE VOW EYED

LONDON (AP) — Brides may be vowing to share their pay cheques with their husbands if the Church of England approves the proposals in a modern new marriage ceremony released today by British clergymen.

But under the new "women's lib" service, brides will not have to vow to obey their husbands.

The new words to the age-old service were developed by the church's liturgical commission as an alternative to the 300-year-old form still used today. It will be discussed by the church's general synod and, if approved as expected, may be in use by next summer.

A commission spokesman explained that the proposed service was devised to treat the wife as an equal partner in a marriage.

The new service drops many of the tongue-twisting phrases spoken by millions of nervous couples in church weddings for three centuries.

Out will go the time-honored "with this ring I thee wed, with my body I thee worship, and with all my worldly goods I thee endow."

That will become: "I give you this ring as a sign of our marriage — and with my body I honor you, all that I am I give to you and all that I have I share with you."

And the bride, who once just had to smile after her man made his vow, now will have to say the same thing.

But some of the old phrases will stay, such as "till death us do part".

She Went for Refugees . . . and Met Her Family

VANCOUVER — A Vancouver woman, serving as a volunteer Vietnamese interpreter for the immigration department at Vancouver International Airport Thursday, got the surprise of her life.

As Mrs. Le Thi-Pang watched 20 new immigrants file off the CP Air flight from Guam via Honolulu, she saw her mother and sister come down the ramp.

"It was unbelievable," she exclaimed later. "I was really happy—I didn't expect them at all and I was afraid they had been left behind in Saigon."

"It was unbelievable," she exclaimed later. "I was really happy—I didn't expect them at all and I was afraid they had been left behind in Saigon."

Mrs. Thi-Pang, 25, the wife of a computer program analyst at the University of British Columbia, said she had feared for her family's safety because her parents fled North Vietnam in 1954 to establish in the south.

"While they had no official connection with the (South Vietnamese) government or the Americans, in 1968 the North Vietnamese had warned during their offensive that those who fled in 1954 would suffer," she said.

Mrs. Thi-Pang, who came to Canada three years ago, said her mother and sister were continuing on to Montreal later to stay with another sister.

LONDON — Motorcycle daredevil Evel Knievel brought his sky cycle X-2 to England and was promptly ticketed for illegal parking.

During a news conference at Hyde Park to promote his three-month tour of Britain, a meter maid ticketed his Scramble Van, which carries his 750 cc motorcycle, for parking on a double yellow line.

KNIEVEL
. . . ticketed

It was not the only bad news for Knievel. His proposed rocket leap across the Thames River was cancelled because no suitable site was found.

He is due to leap from a 300-foot ramp across 13 trucks in his opening performance Monday at a London stadium.

NEWARK, N.J. — Fugitive financier Robert Vesco was ordered Thursday to repay $5.5 million which a New Jersey judge said Vesco took "in an act of piracy" from Investors Overseas Services Ltd., IOS.

But spokesmen for IOS doubted the firm would be able to collect from Vesco, who is living in Costa Rica.

Max Wild, New York lawyer for IOS in the case, said: "I don't expect he (Vesco) is going to send us a cheque."

Vesco has successfully staved off extradition to the United States where he faces civil charges in the alleged looting of $220 million from IOS and criminal charges over a donation to the re-election campaign of former president Richard Nixon.

It's Not Fair: Dean

ATLANTA (UPI) — The most troubling aspect of serving time in prison, Watergate figure John Dean said Thursday night, was the "disparity of sentencing" among defendants convicted of different types of crimes.

Dean told an audience at Georgia State University that he met a young man in prison who had been sentenced to 10 years for possession of one ounce of marijuana.

"Ladies and gentlemen, that man getting 10 years and my getting a little over four months, that is not justice," said Dean.

MLA PUNCHED ON EAR

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Opposition leader Ed Roberts was punched by an irate government backbencher on the floor of the legislature this week as a result of a verbal clash that continued at the end of the day's sitting.

The punch, which caught Roberts on the right ear, was thrown by Alex Dunphy (PC — St. George's), whom the opposition leader had called a "drunken sop."

The clash began during the throne speech debate during which Roberts criticized several government members.

At one point, when Dunphy had made a remark, Roberts asked: "Is he sober?"

Dunphy replied: ". . . You rotten scum."

"You are drunk then," said Roberts.

Dunphy rose on a point of order, asking that Roberts withdraw his remark and apologize. He said, Roberts' remark was not true and that he had no right to make such an accusation.

Roberts refused to withdraw the remark.

After the deputy speaker adjourned the House, Dunphy crossed the floor and punched the opposition leader.

Roberts said he was preparing to leave and had his arms loaded with books when Dunphy came across the chamber "and called me a pig." Roberts said he then called Dunphy "a drunken sop."

Alger Hiss Seeks New Day in Court

BOSTON (UPI) — Alger Hiss, convicted of perjury in a sensational spy case a quarter century ago, now sells stationery in New York. He is asking a state court for the right to practise law again.

Hiss, 71, still maintains his innocence in the perjury conviction that brought national attention to then-congressman Richard Nixon.

The full bench of the Massachusetts Supreme Court planned to convene today to hear the Hiss appeal.

A prior appeal six months ago was referred to the state board of bar overseers, which voted unanimously to deny the motion.

Hiss was disbarred in 1952 after a perjury conviction stemming from his denial that he gave magazine editor Whittaker Chambers secret government documents while Hiss worked in the state department.

Hiss has not been pardoned and there has been no reversal of his 1950 conviction.

The overseers refused reinstatement although they said Hiss was of good moral character and was not likely to commit any serious crimes if readmitted to the bar.

As a congressman, Nixon was involved closely with the prosecution of Hiss before the house committee on un-American activities. Working on a tip, Nixon investigators turned up secret papers hidden in a pumpkin on Chambers' farm.

Following discovery of the "pumpkin papers," a grand jury handed down indictments charging Hiss with two counts of perjury for denying he turned over government documents to an unauthorized person, referring to Chambers.

His first trial ended in a deadlock. The second lasted 40 days, and found Hiss guilty on both counts. The verdict was upheld by the U.S. Second Circuit Court of Appeals.

Mobile Help For Families In Crisis

Family counsellor Len Sawatsky, right, Sgt. George Monk

By JACKE WOLF

SURREY (CP) — The cops and the social workers have fallen in love in this suburban municipality.

The unlikely romance began about a year ago when Bernie Vinge, supervisor of family counsellors for Surrey's unified family court pilot project, suggested it was to the mutual advantage of policemen and social workers to get together to deal with juvenile and family problems.

The result, six months later, was inauguration of the mobile family counsellor experiment, putting a counsellor in a police car five nights a week to provide immediate help for families in crisis and free policemen for more crime prevention work.

On week nights, counsellors work from 4 p.m. to midnight; on Fridays and Saturdays, the heavy crisis nights, they work from 7 p.m. to 3 a.m.

Each of the four—Lyn Policha, Selma Swaab, Len Saurdsky and Alard Malek — works the roving shift one week a month, always serving with the same RCMP shift to establish a continuing personal relationship.

The counsellor and an accompanying officer roam the densely-populated Whalley area of the municipality, responding to emergency calls selected through the "gut-instinct" of the police dispatcher, who has had years of experience, said Sgt. Keith Sim of the Surrey detachment.

The policeman enters the house first while the counsellor stays in the car. Once the situation is calmed, the constable suggests that the disputants talk to a worker from the family court.

The counsellor comes in, listens to both sides of the dispute and tries to assess the family's needs — counselling, legal help or child care services. The constable may stay, if there are indications of more violence, but usually he leaves and the counsellor calls the dispatcher in an hour or so, asking to be picked up.

The family is referred to a daytime counsellor at the family court who can do a more detailed assessment of their problems and work out long-term help.

If there is an immediate and continuing problem of physical danger, the counsellor can remove the mother or children from the home and arrange temporary housing and money.

The counsellor tells the family about the resources open to them through social agencies and through the court-out-of-court separation agreements, legal aid, reconciliation and juvenile counselling.

The program, unique in Canada, concentrates on domestic disputes, the most burdensome of both police and social agency caseloads.

Police dislike domestic calls because they are both dangerous and unresolvable — likely to occur again and again.

"A domestic dispute is potentially the most dangerous situation a constable can go into," Sgt. Sim said. "By far the greatest proportion of RCMP members killed and injured get it in domestic disputes or from mental patients and the two are often related."

Sgt. Sim and Corporal Ross Townsend of the detachment's youth detail said all a policeman can do in a domestic dispute is try not to get killed, advise the combatants of their legal rights and arrest someone if an assault has taken place.

Don Dutton, a psychologist at University of British Columbia and instructor in family conflict management at the new provincial police colllege, says Canada's domestic crime statistics are not markedly different from figures in the United States.

"Vancouver had 30 homicides in 1974 and when I first suggested to the police that probably at least a third of them were related to domestic disputes, they said that was nonsense — only four were domestic," he said in an interview.

"But when I reviewed their statistics with them, it turned out 12 resulted from domestic disputes — about 40 per cent. Eight were domestic but had been classified as alcohol-related."

Dr. John Hogarth, chairman of the B.C. Police Commission, estimated 60 per cent of crimes involving personal violence are family-related.

Social workers, with heavy responsibilities relating to protection of children, juvenile offenders, custody and maintenance, adoption and foster care, have little time or money for domestic crisis intervention.

YEARLY SHOT EYED FOR INFERTILITY

LONDON (Reuter) — Doctors may one day be able to offer women a once-a-year injection against pregnancy as a result of research with 150 monkeys.

Some of the creatures have remained infertile for up to a year after injections at the Medical Research Council's biology unit, reporters were told.

The secret lies in mobilizing the animal's defence system to wage war on hormones that are necessary to maintain pregnancy.

A group of Marmoset monkeys, chosen because they are very fertile, were vaccinated with a human hormone, OGT, which is an essential link in the complex process that keeps the embryo alive.

Because it was an alien substance, the monkey's defences were stimulated into attacking a similar hormone in their own system, producing an inhospitable habitat for the monkey's embryos. Pregnancies were, therefore, unable to become established.

The difficulty in humans would be in finding a substance that could be mixed with the hormone so that it defensive response, he said. would trigger the necessary

Land Swindle the Bad Trip

By LYNNE GORDON

The foregin land swindle or what I call the BAD TRIP is one of the biggest emotional and financial ripoffs. Victims are tempted with glossy advertising circulars, wined and dined in style and promised an "all expense paid trip" to inspect the latest multi-million dollar development in some exotic place.

From these ads you may get the impression that you could have a swinging weekend or a second honeymoon in the sun while you're deciding on a vacation home, an income property or a retirement home.

The land boom has become a billion dollar industry, preying on our urge to own a part of the shrinking landscape and feeding on our hunger for land ownership and security. Some of the slick developers may not even be selling anything but dreams.

SWINDLE OR OPPORTUNITY?

The land buying opportunities run the gamut from the Carribean Islands, Florida, Arizona, California to European hideways. Some may be legitimate, although vastly over-priced. Unfortunately much of it thrives on misrepresentation, if not downright fraud.

If you're thinking of buying a spot in the sun, be careful of a free-trip offer. NOTHING IS FREE. Tremendous pressure will be put on you to buy and you'll probably be asked to put down a certain amount of money before the trip to show your good faith.

From the time you take off to the time you return, you'll be escorted by a salesman. In fact they may work in teams so that you are never left alone. Relaxing at the beach, the dinner parties and the visits to the property sites are all carefully supervised.

The last few hours of your trip may be spent in what is called the "closing room." While in the room, the salesmen will work again in teams. If the first one doesn't close the sale, the TO or take-over team is brought in. They are the toughest. The closers.

By now you're resistance is low. You're apt to sign without further checking or consultation with your lawyer. You better believe that the price of your trip is included in the sale price of your property. If you don't take the bait, you'll be humiliated for accepting the trip and treated like a free-loader.

MAKE YOUR OWN DEAL

If you are interested in buying land out of Canada, do it on your own. Take time to check out the local zoning ordinances, current taxes, future assessments and the real prospect for future development. Contact the local municipal authorities.

Watch out for installment plans. You only receive an actual recordable title after you've made the final payment, perhaps 10 years after the pruchase. In the meantime, the promoter can disappear or go bankrupt and you can lose everything you've put into the deal.

Make sure that the written description in your folder corresponds with what is actually on the property. The "wooded area" may be only scrubs of stunted trees; the "rippling stream" may be part of a marsh; or your "lakeshore property" borders on a mosquito-ridden swamp. If the promotional material describes "shopping minutes away," does that mean by helicopter or hiking through a wasteland?

CHECK PROVINCIAL LAWS

Ontario has particularly strong and effective real estate laws, provided the prospective buyer checks with the registrar of the Real Estate and Business Brokers Act. Most other provinces have similar legislation called foreign land or out-of-province land regulations.

A licensed broker has to file a prospectus of foreign land with the provincial government. It must give proof that the seller owns the land, details about tides, soils and a 10-year weather report, local zoning and registration regulations and proof that they have been observed.

If you don't receive this prospectus you can void the contract and get your money back. You also have a 48-hour cooling off period, if you sign in Canada.

Get the assistance of your own lawyer and another in the area where the property is located. Also hire a local appraiser.

Above all, check out the deal carefully to be sure you're not just building a castle in the sky.

Lynne Gordon's new book The Consumer's Handbook — 99 Commercial Rip-Offs And How to Spot Them is now available, through this newspaper, at $3.95 per copy. For your copy of this informative book, please send your name and address and a cheque or money order to CONSUMERS, Victoria Times, Box 345, Stn. A, Toronto, Ontario.

Contraceptive Risk on Label?

OTTAWA (CP) — Contraceptive packages and labels should indicate failure rates and side effects, and carry an expiry date beyond which birth control products may not be reliable, according to the federal advisory council on the status of women.

The proposal was one of four approved at a council meeting attended by members from across the country.

The organization, established in 1973 to advise the government on women's affairs, also recommended:

—Intensified efforts to have contraceptives distributed free by the provinces.

—Increased attention to sex education research outside Canada.

—An information campaign to increase public kowledge about birth control and to reduce media opposition to contraceptive advertising.

The recommendations were presented by a council committee which said Canadians lack adequate birth control information.

The proposals will be forwarded to the government for consideration.

Esther Greenglass, a council member from Toronto, said factual information on contraceptive labels is urgently needed because failure rates reach 40 per cent in some cases.

She also criticized radio and television stations for generally refusing to advertise contraceptives while accepting advertisements for vaginal sprays. Sprays are more offensive to most women than contraceptives, she said.

The council also discussed upcoming Criminal Code changes in sections covering rape. An omnibus bill amending about a dozen sections of the code is scheduled for introduction "within weeks" by Justice Minister Otto Lang.

Search Halted For 2 Seamen

VANCOUVER (CP) — A search for two Vancouver men missing off the Queen Charlotte Islands after their 32-foot aluminum boat capsized in heavy seas Monday night has been suspended.

A rescue co-ordination centre spokesman said the search had failed to turn up engineer Roy Gerhardt, 38, and Don Mercer, 36.

The body of Eric Turk, 46, of Parksville was found Tuesday.

Their boat was believed to have gone down somewhere between Rennell Sound and Marble Island on the southwest coast of Graham Island.

Poor Eating Habits Cut Years Off Life

OTTAWA (CP) — Poor eating habits and lack of exercise are taking seven years off the life of half the Canadian population — the overweight half — a national nutrition seminar was told here this week.

And unless poor habits are changed, most people by the year 2000 will spend one-quarter of their salaries on hospital bills, says Dr. Madeleine Blanchet of the Quebec government's social affairs department.

Dr. Blanchet gave the keynote address of the seminar, which was concerned mainly with finding new methods of fighting malnutrition.

Delegates to the seminar were told that low income groups especially suffer from malnutrition because the high cost of fresh fruit and vegetables put a balanced diet out of their reach.

It was agreed that consumers must be educated to buy their food with nutrition in mind, but no consensus was reached as to how this was best done.

Although no formal decisions were made, several suggestions were made that generated discussion. They were:

—Formation of an independent nutrition council, composed of experts from government, industry and universities, to study the problem of malnutrition and give advice: vice:

—Formation of a lobby of informed people to pressure the government to allot more money to nutrition education programs.

"Nutrition education is not cheap. It's going to cost more than the 1½ cents a person the government is spending now," said Dr. P. McTaggart-Cowan, executive director of the Science Council of Canada. "I think, though, that we can afford it."

Gerald Dafoe, executive director of the Canadian Public Health Association, said the seminar would probably influence his association's position paper on nutrition. It will be written this month and presented to the federal government.

The seminar was jointly sponsored by the Science Council of Canada and the public health association.

Skin Cream Maker To Sterilize Product

VANCOUVER (CP) — The American manufacturer of six brands of skin cream recalled by the health department in Ottawa has agreed to sterilize future supplies.

George Ostry, owner of the Vancouver firm which distributes the creams, made the request to officials of Natural Organics Inc. of Plainfield, N.J. in a telephone call.

"They agreed to sterilize the water (used in the creams) instead of straight distilling it," said Ostry, who sells the creams to health stores through his company, Nu-Life Nutrition, and Fare Fax Foods of Toronto.

Ostry said testing by the health protection branch of a second batch of cosmetics also revealed bacterial contamination. Routine testing of an initial batch in February resulted in the recall order.

Ostry said independent testing done for his firm showed "some bacteria in some, none in others."

A department of health spokesman said the contaminated creams could cause anything from a skin irritation to a general blood infection. But no cases have been reported to date.

Brand names of the six recalled products are: Avocado Moisturizing Lotion, Fresh Cucumber Cleansing lotion, Miracle Rejuvenator, Dermade Nutrition skin cream, Glycerine-Rose Water rejuvenating lotion and Protein Enzyme night cream.

A seventh natural cosmetic, also recalled by Ottawa, Wheat Germ Beauty Balm, is manufactured by Charles Perry Cosmetics of London.

Ostry said he was returning to the manufacturer all the non-sterilized creams.

Hypertension Risk For Women on Pill

HOUSTON (UPI) — Women taking birth control pills should have their blood pressure checked every six months because on an increased chance of developing hypertension which causes heart attacks, says a Dallas physician.

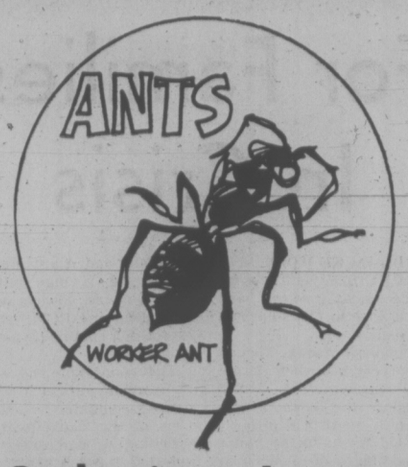
Dr. Norman Kaplan, professor in internal medicine at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School, said only 1 per cent of women normally develop high blood pressure, but a study has shown women taking oral contraceptives increase their chances by 2.6 times.

"There has also been an increase in the frequency of strokes in young women," Kaplan said. "It's not a tremendous number, but we're talking about young healthy women not expected to develop a stroke."

Police Reach Pact

MONTREAL (CP) — A tentative agreement preventing a Montreal Urban Community police strike was reached Thursday between the city and the police brotherhood.

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS'



Solution Lures Pesky Ant Away

How's that again? You just opened the kitchen cupboard and found a whole army of little red ants running all over the honey jar?

Take heart . . . the sweet tooth that brought the little pests into the house in the first place can also help you get 'em out. Mix a solution of sugar or honey and water, dip sponges in the syrup, squeeze out the excess moisture and leave these homemade ant traps around where the invaders are thickest.

When your lures are swarming with the hungry insects, drop the sponges into a pail of boiling water and start again.

Or, if you don't want to snare the ants, you can try repelling them. Clean the pantry floor and shelves thoroughly (especially that honey jar) and cover the whole area with fine salt. Just leave it there for a while . . . and the little pests will go away.

Medic-Alert Stops Tragedies

There is little sympathy as the man staggers down Douglas Street.

He reels and almost passes out. Soon he's in the drunk tank at the city jail.

He dies there.

Nobody knew he had severe diabetes and had taken too much insulin.

Had he worn a Medic-Alert identification bracelet he would have been rushed to hospital — and saved.

This sort of tragedy isn't commonplace but similar tragedies still happen in spite of the lifesaving Medic-Alert Foundation program.

Children still die when given a shot of penicillin after an accident because they have an allergy to the drug which nobody on the spot knows about.

There are still those who given morphone to kill pain die because they are extremely sensitive to it.

The Medic-Alert identification program was started in California in 1957 when Dr. Marion C. Collins almost lost his daughter because she had an allergic reaction.

The program reached Canada in the 1960s and now there are 130,923 Canadians who wear Medic-Alert bracelets or necklaces carrying such warnings as . . . allergic to penicillin, diabetes, epilepsy, glaucoma, hemophiliac, wearing contact lenses, skin diver, RH negative . . .

Life Underwriters Associations across Canada are carrying out a month-long information program on the Medic-Alert service.

Information is available by phening 35-5751.

Statistics prove Medic-Alert is needed:

—One of every 20 persons is allergic to penicillin.

—One in every 10 persons inoculated with tetanuse antitoxin develops an allergy to the serum. In some cases, the result is almost instant death.

—More than one out of every 10,000 men are born incurable hemophiliacs who can bleed to death from a slight wound.

Welch Medical Report

By Dr. WILLIAM J. WELCH

(Welch is a practicing physician and an Associate Professor of clinical medicine.)

Described by a wise old philosopher as the only possession all men carry with modesty, hemorrhoids are unknown among four-footed animals. If man walked on all fours with his tail in the air, and his back parallel to the ground, the varicose veins of his anal canal would collapse.

But man insists on standing up straight, and part of the price he pays for his lofty stance is a dependent set of veins around his anal outlet that can hurt and sometimes bleed.

Most persistent hemorrhoids that are causing symptoms can be controlled by warm Sitz baths and measures to control constipation. One effective measure to soften the stool and ease its passage is to increase the amount of roughage (really "softage") in the diet, with a bran-containing breakfast cereal.

Ointments containing anti-inflammatory adrenal steroids (cortisone) often will relieve itching and inflammation. Most suppositories do little for the anal ring because they tend to slide up into the rectum beyond the area where the trouble is.

If such conservative local measures do not quiet things down, there has been little to turn to except surgery until recently.

The simplest and a sometimes effective treatment is to inject the offending veins with a solution that irritates their lining and causes them to seal off. This is best done only by a very experienced operator who knows how to avoid excessive scarring of the anal hemorrhoids.

Surgical removal of the hemorrhoids is painful, but in about 90 per cent of cases, the results are good. You may spend only four or five days in hospital, but convalescence is often prolonged.

To avoid anesthesia and hospitalization, some clever surgeons have had very good results by simply snugging a rubber band around the base of a hemorrhoid to cut off its circulation. The hemorrhoid dries up and falls off. Most patients required three or four treatments done at two-to-four-week intervals, but no anesthesia or hospitalization is required and no time need be lost from work.

Another new method, for certain carefully selected patients, requires hospitalization and anesthesia, but no cutting. The anal canal is simply widely stretched, while the patient is under anesthesia. In a well-controlled trial in 100 patients, it was about as effective as surgery and required less time lost from work.

The last new technique is to destroy the hemorrhoid with a freezing device. This does not require general anesthesia and is said to be painless. An unpleasant discharge may last for about a week in some patients, but other complications are said to be rare.

Some surgeons combine freezing with the rubber-band treatment and report better results than with either treatment alone.

So there is progress in the management of this miserable ailment, but I must add one warning to all men and women who think they have bleeding hemorrhoids. Such bleeding can never be assumed to be caused only by outlet.

Housewives Firefighting Force

HOMETOWN, Ill. (AP) — When the fire alarm sounds in this suburb of 8,000 just south of Chicago, eight housewives answer it. They make up nearly a third of Hometown's volunteer firefighting force.

Fire Chief Richard Christopher said he put a notice in the community's weekly newspaper last November asking whether women would be interested in becoming firefighters.

"Most of the men had taken extra daytime jobs because of the economy and were not available for fire or ambulance service except perhaps at night," said Christopher.

"I thought women could fill in during the day.

"Ten responded to the notice and eight stayed on for 160 days of training. They can do everything. This is no pantyhose brigade. They are fully equipped and wear boots, helmets and bunker coats just like the men."

When the alert sounds, the first volunteers reporting to the firehouse make the call.

"I'm lucky because we live only 1½ blocks away," said Mrs. Marlene Swiney, a 31-year-old mother of four.

"It's all like a dream come true for me. When I was a kid I wanted to be a boy so I could grow up to become a fireman."

Physical Disorders Bring Neuroses

VANCOUVER (CP) — The incidence of psychiatric complications varying with physical disorders is about 20 to 50 per cent over-all, a psychiatry seminar at the University of British Columbia was told.

Dr. A. J. Lipowski, a psychiatrist from Dartmouth, N.S., told the seminar that physical disorders can precipitate neuroses, depression and anxiety, impotence and symptoms of schizophrenia.

Lipowski said illness often makes a person more vulnerable to the pressures in his life. He said sleep patterns may be changed, the person's body image may be affected. And he may worry about his sexual capability.

The doctor said the problem is generally neglected and advised that comprehenisvie medical care should involve psychiatric care.

Lipowski said the term "psychosomatic", generally applied to disorders which influence, or are influenced by, a person's mental state, should be abolished. He said the mind influences the cause and the outcome of every physical disorder.

Dirty-Word Hang-Up

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I see eye to eye on almost everything, but we have one major difference of opinion. I can't stand people who use dirty four-letter words, and my husband says that that's the way some people talk, and that I should accept them for what they are and try to get over my hang-up.

Sorry, but I can't. I wasn't brought up that way. It's not that I'm a prude, Abby. I've heard all the words and I know what they mean, but I don't see why people who talk dirty can't go out of their way to avoid offending those of us who have this so-called "hang-up" about four-letter words.

What is your feeling about this?—Hung-up.

DEAR HUNG-UP: I'm hung up, too, because I wasn't brought up that way, either. But some of the most humane, constructive and interesting people I know occasionally resort to four-letter words. And some of the most intolerant, hypocritical, narrow-minded bigots wouldn't think of using such language.

The sensitive, considerate person who normally uses four-letter words will watch his language out of respect for those in his company whom he knows are offended by it. But one can't always judge a person's worth and character by his language any more than one can judge a book by its cover.

DEAR ABBY: Please help settle an argument. Rob and I had a large church wedding for which we sent out formal invitations six weeks prior to the wedding.

The r.s.v.p.'s were addressed to my parents and stamped, so all the people had to do was sign their name and drop it in the mailbox.

Out of 175 invited guests, we heard from only 150.

We also had a formal reception, and of those who accepted, 15 couples didn't show up. My parents had to pay for 30 dinners that were not touched. (We never received a note or even a phone cal from the no-shows.)

I am all for sending each of these "no-show" couples a bill for their dinners. Rob says to drop it and forget the whole thing. What is your opinion? —Burned.

DEAR BURNED: I'm with Rob.

DEAR ABBY: Everywhere I go, I see more and more "how to" books!

The latest is on how to make love. I have nothing against that. I'm sure a lot of people need help in that area, but I would like to make one comment.

We read so much about the importance of "foreplay." (Most men are in too big a hurry to get right down to the sex act, not realizing it takes a woman longer to get warmed up.) Very little, however, is said about "afterplay" — which I think, is equally important.

If a man would just take his lady love in his arms and hold her, and maybe give her a little kiss on the nose afterwards, it would mean so much.

So many men just roll over and give the little lady their backs for the rest of the night. Abby, will you please pass this along to your male readers, if you think it has merit? Thanks. —Loves to be loved.

DEAR LOVES: Consider it passed. I wonder how many women have suffered in silence from such a seemingly minor oversight?

The Bridge Expert

Any bridge player can fulfill a small slam contract when he has 12 cashable tricks, or when the opponents blunder and hand him the slam on a silver platter. The consistent winner, however, is the player who habitually gathers in the tenuous slam contracts by availing himself of all possibilities.

Today's deal serves as an illustration of a declarer who overlooked nothing in his play of the hand. Both sides vulnerable. Soputh deals.

Opening lead: Jack of ♥.

West's oopening heart lead was taken by South's king, after which the king and ace of trumps were cashed. As declarer examined his combined assets, it appeared as though the success of his contract depended on how to play the club suit. That is, when he led a club off dummy and East followed with a low club, should south put up his jack, hoping that East possessed the queen? Or, instead, should he play the king, hoping that East had the ace?

Of course, as South reflected on the possible club set-up, there was the disturbing thought that whichever guess South took, it might well be in vain, for West might have been dealt both the ace and queen of clubs.

After drawing trumps, South led a diamond to North's king, after which he cashed the ace of hearts. A heart was next ruffed. Now came the diamond ace, on which the board's four of clubs was discarded. On this trick East followed suit with the diamond jack. A third diamond lead was then made, the trick being ruffed in dummy as East dropped the diamond queen. South's ten of diamonds had just become the highest-ranking diamond left in the deck.

The board's remaining heart was next ruffed by South, after which the diamond ten was cashed. On this trick a club was discarded from dummy, leaving the board with just one remaining club. Declarer then gave up the king of clubs to West's ace. West's return of a club was ruffed in dummy, and the rest of the tricks belonged to declarer.

There can be no doubt but that declarer was very lucky in finding East with, specifically, the tripleton Q-J-x of diamonds. But it cost him absolutely nothing to have tested this possibility — it was on the house.

By J. A H. HUNTER

"They don't put in solid oak beams any more," said Peter. "How old is the house?"

Fred smiled. "Dad says it was 15 years old when he was born," he replied. "And here's a funny thing I just noticed. The square of its age has my age as its second half and Dad's age for its first half."

How old was the house?

Thanks for idea to L. Major, Halifax, Nova Scotia.

GARDENING

Basic but Vital Planting Tips

None of us was born with a knowledge of how to grow seeds into plants — we had to learn. We must be sure to give our experience to those making a beginning. While adults can read for themselves all about gardening procedures, some problems facing the beginning gardener are assumed by authors of books to be too basic to need description.

Every year, new gardeners make a beginning so we shall start with vegetable seed sowing.

First we divide vegetables for sowing into groups according to their tolerance for cool spring weather conditions.

Early varieties of peas with smooth seed coats, carrots, parsnips, spinach, swiss chard, leaf lettuce, cabbage, kale, onion — the seeds of these vegetables are first to be sown outdoors in this area. Exact dates vary with location of garden, type of soil, and frosts occurring at dawn. Towards end of April, small sowings of these are usually possible.

Seeds wanting warmer soil for germination must wait until about middle of May or even towards the end of May.

Beet seeds, sweet corn, peas with wrinkled seed coats, all the different kinds of beans are sown in warm soil. Three separate small sowings of this group can be made two weeks apart from end of May until first of July. Succession sowings (as these are called) help to keep regular supplies of produce coming along, instead of having masses of vegetables for one month and then nothing more.

A basic thing about seed sowing outdoors is to know how deep to sow.

Depth must be sufficient to provide darkness, constant surrounding dampness, and firm contact with the soil; yet the seed must also be near enough to the surface that sun will warm the surrounding soil without drying out the seed and killing the germ within. Air penetration is also necessary to germination.

If the soil is dry, mark out each row making a little trench with the point of the garden hoe, or, for large seeds like beans and peas, with the rake. Water along the row gently so that it soaks in, then go over it again. The water down below the seeds will be drawn upwards by the warming action of the sun's rays.

Sow the seeds, spacing them according to the growing plant size. Never scatter thickly just to use the whole packet. Seeds are costing more now, and most vegetable seeds are good for another year or two; also most are to be sown at two to three week intervals.

Beans and peas are sown about two inches deep just by pressing them into the soil with the fingers. Space them about four inches apart.

Lettuce and carrot seeds are small, and are sown about an inch apart and then covered lightly with a half inch of fine soil.

Firm the soil gently over all rows with back of rake. Close contact with soil is essential to seed germination outdoors.

Approximate time required for vegetable seeds to germinate is another problem question asked by beginners. You want to know when t oexpect to see them coming through the soil. Beans, beet, cabbage, cauliflower, corn, endive, lettuce, onion, peas all take from seven to 10 days; carrot, 14 days; parsnips, 21 days; turnip and radish, five to seven days; squash and cucumber 14 days when the soil and air is warmer (by end of month).

Much depends on air and soil temperatures, and the seed row must be prevented from completely drying out.

Good experiences to all new gardeners this year, on home garden plots, and on allotment gardens!

Body Scanner Gets Picture Of Tissues

LONDIN (WP) — A computerized x-ray machine invented in Britain will enable doctors for the first time to get sharp, well-defined pictures of a patient's heart, lungs, kidneys and other organs.

The Body Scanner was designed by the research laboratory of EMI, a billion dollar conglomerate that produces electronic products, makes records and tapes and runs hotels and bingo halls. The company is calling its scanner a "breakthrough" and predicting that it will be a powerful tool in diagnosing disease.

The machine is now undergoing clinical tests at the Northwick Park Hospital in Harrow and will soon be tested at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester. EMI has just released a remarkable set of photos made by its Scanner that show human organs with a wealth of detail found only in the sketches of an anatomy text.

Conventional x-rays can provide clear pictures of bones and hard objects inside a human body. But they are unable to distinguish the soft tissues of organs which appear as a blur. Ordinary x-rays, moreover, are further obscured by the fact that they portray a vertical cross section, superimposing bones and organs in a confusing mass.

The body scanner is said to be 100 times more sensitive, capable of discriminating between diseased and healthy tissue. Its beams, moreover, capture a horizontal slice of a human body, giving a doctor a view that he would get only by cutting a patient in two and peering down at his insides.

The Scanner works on the same principle as ordinary x-ray machines, but is far more discriminating. In the conventional device, a beam of x-rays is absorbed by the dense object it encounters and an image of what is and is not absorbed is recorded on a film. The scanner beams dozens of x-rays through a patient and detects tens of thousands of differing absorption rates with crystals. These observations are fed to a computer that is programmed with a "knowledge" of the absorption capacities of different tissues. From this the computer builds up a picture of the organs and other matter inside a patient.

EMI's research director, William Ingham, says that the dosage of potentially harmful radiation that a patient receives from the Scanner is no greater than the conventional x-ray.

The Scanner should spare patients much of the exploratory surgery that is now undertaken to find out if an organ is diseased. It will also make unnecessary the injection or swallowing of unpleasant chemicals that are used to make tissue inside a body visible to the ordinary x-ray. This means that patients who must now be put into a hospital can be examined without an overnight stay.

EMI officials claim that the scanner will speed up diagnosis of cancer and other diseases. Many can now be spotted only after an organ is deformed. The Scanner will distinguish between healthy and disease tissue, well before any deformation takes place.

The machine is an adaptation of a brain scanner that EMI developed three years ago. The brain scanner uses a single x-ray beam, however, and had to be refined to explore the body. Its organs move as a patient breathes while the brain is fixed in place.

Both devices were invented by Godfrey N. Housfield, a 56-year-old electrical engineer who runs EMI's medical electronics research section. His discoveries are a pure case of scientific serendipity, or happy chance.

Hounsfield was given the task of finding a new way to "read" characters for capture by EMI's computers. He tried scanning them with a beam of light and then with x-rays. From this, he realized that he could "read" shapes and densities inside an outer surface and began the work that led to the brain scanner.

These machines are not cheap. EMI sells its brain scanners for $375,000 to $470,000, depending on the complexity of the unit ordered. It plans to market the body scanner for $550,000.

The company contends that they save money in the long run by eliminating much expensive exploratory surgery, cutting down the time spent in a hospital and removing the need for uncomfortable chemical agents.

EMI has already sold 200 brain scanners, and 150 are now used by hospitals in the United States and Canada. The Body Scanner is being tested in two American institutions and only one in Britain because the North American market is so much bigger.

John Powell, managing director of EMI, says that "the American receptivity to change and sensitivity to medical economics is greater than it is in Europe."

EMI's monopoly, however, faces a threat. Pfizer, the American drug company, has announced that it too is planning to produce a body scanner. But Powell insists that EMI holds the basic patents and hopes to persuade Pfizer to leave the market to the British concern.

Despite their high prices, Powell expects to sell about a quarter of a billion dollars worth of Scanners a year by 1979. Brain scanner sales are now almost $60 million a year.

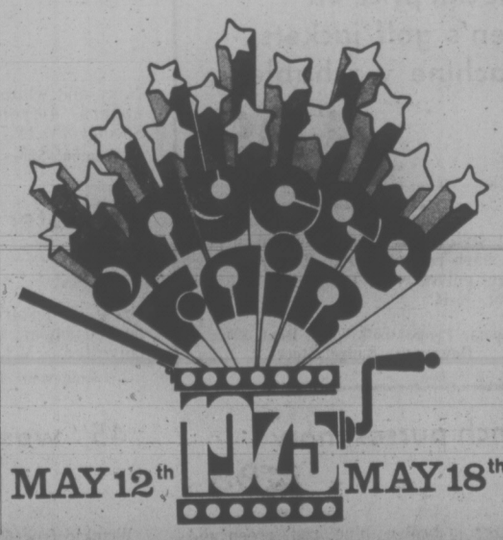
Bail in the form of a $1,500 surety was continued today for Larry Allan Preston, charged with breaking, entry and theft from the King John Inn, Colwood, last November.

Preston's trial was to have started Wednesday but he was in Chilliwack General Hospital after, court was told, he had fallen down some stairs. He appeared in county court today on crutches.

Judge E. J. C. Stewart ordered a warrant issued Wednesday held in abeyance with bail continuing pending a new trial date.

Coins Assured

EDMONTON (CP) — The city seems assured of having special coins minted for the 1978 Commonwealth games that could generate between $15 and $25 million in revenue, Mayor William Hawrelak said Thursday.



18 Island Bands Back Gov't Fund Rejection

Representatives of 18 bands between Qualicum and Port Renfrew Thursday supported a Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs resolution urging the native people of the province not to accept government-funded jobs.

The meeting, called by the Southern Vancouver Island Tribal Federation, was held in the longhouse of the East Saanich reserve in Central Saanich.

"It was called to explain to band representatives the UBCIC resolution," Thomas Sampson, president, said today. "Earlier there was some misunderstanding. Some people thought the chiefs wanted people to give up their pensions and social assistance."

"Naturally, we couldn't ask people in need to do that," he said.

He said the bands are now in a position to make decisions to support the recommendations.

"On the island's west coast, some bands have already stopped all government projects," Sampson said.

The Indians want compensation for land they lost when the federal government in 1916 arbitrarily reduced the size of reserves.

Wage, Price Controls Weighed by Cabinet

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Compulsory wage and price controls may soon be imposed in Canada, it was learned from informed government sources.

The cabinet studied the situation Thursday. It could be faced in the very near future with the necessity of imposing mandatory controls, arguing that codintions have deteriorated so much since the election that it has no alternative.

Finance Minister John Turner hinted at such a possibility in the Commons Thursday should the process of arriving at a consensus to combat inflation by voluntary actions ends in failure.

His spring budget to be brought down early in June — possibly June 2 — will spell out the government's position on controls.

Its tone and content will be altered in view of recent developments in which the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) this week issued a nine-point list of demands. They were conditions for its supporting the government's consensus program.

Turner warned in the house that wage settlements in Canada are running so much higher than those in the United States — 16 per cent compared to 7.8 per cent — that this country's competive position in world markets was rapidly disintegrating. The situatio had to be "reversed" or it would lead to massive unemployment.

He said emphatically: "The government is committed to bring prices and production costs into a competitive posture within a range where we can compete in world markets and defend our own markets. This view was shared by leaders of both labor and business."

The other options confronting the cabinet have been examined. But they will not be actively considered until every chance has been given the voluntary process to become operative, it was learned.

Turner will go to Toronto early next week to confer with Joe Morris, CLC president. Later in the week an invitation will go to the executive of the CLC to come to Ottawa to meet with Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and Turner.

The finance minister will also confer with business leaders next week. He is seeking to clarify the present status of the government's consensus program for combatting inflation. He frankly admitted to newsmen that the premature 'leak" of one set of working papers had complicated the negotiations and may have undermined them.

He will canvass the views and reaction of the provinces to the working papers the government had distributed to different sectors of the economy. He tabled the documents in the house at the request of the opposition.

Turner explained to the house in response to opposition questions that the working papers which have been circulated were based on the assumption that every sector of the economy was entitled to bear its burden in the restraint and moderation program. Ottawa is seeking voluntary agreement from all sectors of the economy to go along with the program.

"There is a legitimate bias in favor of the lower paid men and women in the work force," he said.

Strike Kills $197,400 Job Grants

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

The Victoria area has lost $197,400 in job-creating funds as a side effect of the municipal strike-lockout, a spokesman for the capital regional district confirmed today.

Executive director Dennis Young said the district will not be able to handle the Student Temporary Employment Program this year because the strike-lockout meant no staff was available to start project by the May 1 deadline.

"The $197,400 will go to other regional districts. It is very unfortunate but there was nothing we could do during the labor dispute," he said.

Last summer 165 students found work in this area under the program.

Under the terms of the provincial legislation, the money is supplied by the provincial government but must be administered by the regional district. There is ho provision for any other groups to supervise the program.

Ironically, the lockout ended at 8 p.m. May 1 and workers were back on the job on May 2, just after the deadline. However, the staff faces a heavy backlog of work and is not in a position to handle extra programs, Young said.

A department of labor spokesman said the $197,400 is frozen at the moment in hopes the capital regional district will change its mind.

However, the funds would have to be released to other districts by month's end if no word was forthcoming from the CRD. The department was also trying to find some way to circumvent the terms of the legislation to make some of the funds available to other job-creating funds in the Victoria area. However, very little if any money would be staying in the Victoria area if the capital regional district did not have a change of heart.

Prices Up Again A Little

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index was up a modest five-tenths of one per cent in April the fourth straight month of relatively low monthly increases, Statistics Canada said today.

The over-all price index in April was 11.1 per cent above a year earlier. The largest jumps in the price index last year came later in the year and by December the year-to-year change was up to 12.4 per cent.

"The real story is in survey done a month ago and Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the Food Prices Review Board, said today she is more concerned about what has happened since.

"The real sotry is in meats," she said. Wholesale beef prices have gone from 37 cents a pound to about 52 and there has been an increase in pork prices.

This means a sharp increase is expected in the food price index when May figures are announced, she said.

Food accounted for about one-quarter of the April increase and increases in government support prices for milk was a major factor. Statistics Canada said higher dairy prices caused most of the increase in the food price index. Higher prices for milk, fresh fruits, cereals and bakery products were partly offset by lower beef and sugar prices.

Clothing prices dropped on average by one-tenth of one per cent in April while costs for shelter went up by three-tenths of one per cent.

Puget Sound Terminal Out

SEATTLE (AP) — The Standard Oil Co. of Ohio announced Thursday it has decided against a supertanker terminal and oil pipeline on Puget Sound and instead will ship Alaskan oil to the midwest from the Los Angeles-Long Beach area.

The Cleveland-based company said the oil would be shipped from California ports through a 1,000-mile pipeline, including 700 miles of natural gas pipeline already in place.

SOHIO Owns a majority of the oil reserves at Alaska's Prudhoe Bay. Its plans are for a pipeline that ultimately would carry one million barrels a day of oil to the midwest.

The plan, announced in Los Angeles and Seattle, would make use of El Paso natural gas pipeline from the California-Arizona border to Midland, in west Texas, a distance of about 700 miles.

The additional 350 miles of pipeline would be primarily within California, with some pipeline needed in other areas for connections with existing pipelines.

The pipeline, when completed in early 1978, would have a 500,000 barrel-per-day capacity. Its ultimate capacity could be twice that, a spokesman said.

SOHIO is negotiating with the ports of Los Angeles and Long Beach, said Joseph D. Harnett, executive vice president of the company, who made the announcement in Los Angeles.

SOHIO spokesman said the announcement was made at the same time in Seattle, because of the obvious interest in Alaskan Oil in Puget Sound and Alaska.

SOHIO said it had considered eight different routes to get the oil from the west coast to the midwest. One of those involved sending tankers around South America to gulf or east coast ports.

The 1,040-mile route chosen was determined to be the best because it would expedite construction and reduce environmental impact at a "substantial savings," the spokesman said.

The proposal is still subject to federal power commission approval.

The spokesman said the line would be a common carrier available to other oil companies involved in the north slope oil development project. However, he did not know whether the other companies would choose to join in the SOHIO pipeline.

Building Unions Curbed As Quebec Strikes Spread

Times News Services

QUEBEC — More than 400 workers demonstrated outside the barrier-ringed national assembly today while work at the $380 million Olympic project remained at a standstill.

Nearly 2,000 striking workers at the Olympic site were joined by men from other worksites in a protest against a government report on the Quebec construction industry.

The protest, however, failed to prevent the Quebec government from introducing legislation designed to cub abuses in construction union.

Labor minister Jean Cournoyer met with Quebec Federation of Labor president Louis Laberge and six other union executives who had crossed the iron barricades around the assembly — routinely installed in anticipation of demonstrations.

Then he went to the floor of the assembly to put forward a pair of bills placing four Quebec locals under trusteeship and barring certain convicted criminals from holding union positions of influence.

The trusteeship bill would give the government, under order-in-council, powers to name three trustees who would have wide powers to effect whatever changes they deemed necessary in the affected unions.

The trustees would be able to dismiss or suspend any union administrator, leader or member and name replacements.

Anyone interfering with the trustees would be liable to fines of $500 to $10,000 and prison terms of more than two years or both.

The fiery Laberge has promised the QFL will "fight like dogs" against the trusteeship over its construction affiliates.

He has said such government action would trample on workers' rights and "emasculate" the unions.

As the wildcat walkout at the site of the 1976 summer games entered its second day, Laberge hinted at a postponement of the games.

"We do hope they can still hold them in 1976, but they just might have to hold the games in 1977," he said.

THE GAMES PEOPLE PLAY...

OTTAWA (CP) — Disgruntled Montreal postal clerks have devised a new way of frustrating post office management, Marcel Perrault, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers' Montreal local, says.

He told an Ottawa local meeting Wednesday night that his members use whistles that make it difficult or impossible for postal inspectors to operate portable radio transmitters for staff surveillance.

Besides general supervision of staff, an inspector's job may include keeping an eye open for improper mail handling and theft.

"We supply our staff with whistles," Perrault said, "and when they see the inspectors use their radio transmitters the staff begin to blow their whistles, ruining the transmission."

Meanwhile, postal workers in at least four Quebec communities were off the job today to protest the slowness of negotiations on a new collective agreement, a union spokesman said.

Post offices in Sherbrooke, Joliette, Ste. Therese and Sept-Iles were affected.

"It seems we've had a small epidemic," said a post office spokesman, adding that many workers had called in sick.

Talks were in progress today and are expected to continue throughout the weekend.

Indians Vow To Stay

George Watts, a member of the three-person Union of British Columbia Indian Chiefs executive council, said Wednesday Indian occupations will continue until the federal Indian affairs department shuts down its B.C. operations.

Watts, of Port Alberni, was in Vernon to give moral support to the leaders of the occupation at the Vernon Indian affairs office.

He said Judd Buchanan, Indian affairs minister, has sent telegrams to all Indian chiefs, asking their opinions about Indian land claims. This move is only to create dissension in Indian ranks, he said.

"It's the old divide tactic," he said. "I imagine he is getting asked about the Indian troubles in the House, so he has to do something."

Meanwhile, the provincial government has agreed to meet with Indians to discuss land claims and how to publicize the issue.

Anderson, Jordan Thrown Out of House

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

Two opposition MLAs were ejected from the legislature Thursday when they tried to revive last year's chicken and egg war.

Liberal leader David Anderson, who was ordered from the house five times last spring over the same issue, was ordered out of the chamber first and he was followed in less than an hour by Socred MLA Pat Jordan (North Okanagan).

It was the first time in recent history two members have been thrown out the same day.

The battle was between the opposition MLAs and house committee chairman Hartley Dent (NDP-Skeena) who ruled that discussion of the so-called chicken and egg war was irrelevant to the budget item under debate in the house.

He ruled them out of order and demanded they stop being "tedious and repetitious" and return to proper discussion under the budget estimates.

Both members refused to take their seats or stop talking and Dent finally called in Speaker Gordon Dowding, who asked the MLAs to obey the house rules or withdraw from the chamber.

Anderson said Dent was consistently blocking questioning of Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich and he could not agree with the ruling so he left the chamber.

MLAs exchanges shouts of "communism" and "anarchy." Opposition members charged closure and said "democracy is dying in B.C."

Jordan picked up where Anderson left off, charging that a court case involving the B.C. Egg Marketing Board proved that Premier Barrett lied when he told the legislature last year he did not order the board to take any actions concerning quotas.

The opposition has said either the judgment of Mr. Justice E. E. Hinkson in the case is incorrect or Barrett lied to the house. If Barrett believes he told the truth he should appeal the case, they said, because Hinkson's ruling refers to an order concerning quotas, given by Barrett.

Dent ruled Jordan was being tedious. When she refused to stop talking, he again called Dowding to the house to rule on the matter.

The Socred MLA told the Speaker she is always willing to obey house rules but the chairman was being "extremely provocative" and not obeying the rules himself.

Dowding ruled that she withdraw from the house because of her refusal to follow the chair's ruling.

"I cannot do anything else

BASKETS TO BLOOM

Victoria's blooming baskets will hang in their usual numbers from downtown lamp posts next month, city parks superintendent Al Smith said Thursday.

At one time there had been fears that only about half the 650 baskets would be ready for display, because the civic strike-lockout left parks administrator Cliff Bate with virtually no manpower.

But Smith said Bate and a small group of volunteers managed to prepare 283 baskets, and since parks staff returned to regular duties on Monday nursery supervisor Horace Lindsey and a four-man crew have been completing scores of baskets a day.

"By Monday the whole lot should be read," Smith said.

As usual, the basket plants will be hardened off in the parks yard and they will be in full bloom by the time they are put in a state of colorful suspension of on the weekend of June 14-15.

'Impulsive' Abductor Granted Probation, Sent Back to the Farm

A 21-year-old Saskatchewan man who pleaded guilty April 28 to abduction, extortion and theft was placed on probation for three years today by Judge E. J. C. Stewart in county court.

One of the conditions of probation is that Douglas Stanley Halstead return to Unity, Sask., where a farmer is holding a job for him.

Sentence was suspended on the offences.

Judge Stewart said the offences are "most serious," and "seem to cry out for a severe custodial sentence."

★ ★ ★

But the crimes were committed in such a "bizarre fashion with no actual violence involved" that they couldn't be treated as many people might think they should be treated.

The primary principle, he observed, in this case was deterrent to Halstead rather than to others and "jail is not the answer in this particular case."

Prosecutor Wally Anderson described Halstead as "impulsive, hostile, critical, explosive, resentful and having difficulty in controlling his temper" and medical tests indicated "anti-social conduct."

The charges stemmed from an incident last Nov. 12 when Halstead entered Plimley Motors showroom, 1010 Yates, and while on a test drive in a sportscar produced a brown paper bag telling salesman George Salvador it contained a bomb.

★ ★ ★

After ordering Salvador to hand over his wallet containing $20, Halstead forced the salesman to accompany him on the ferry between Swartz Bay and the mainland.

Salvador was released unharmed at Tsawwassen and Halstead drove off in the sports car.

Anderson told court April 28 that reports of Palestinian terrorist activities and other abduction and extortion attempts partially influenced Halstead.

Defence counsel Dean Wilson had called the action "strange ... bizarre" but there was no premeditation.

Liz Hodding and the Cantelons handle 40 patients

● Three ounces of methadone mixed with orange juice induces a euphoria that allows the addict to function in a society stymied by a solution to a terrifying drug problem

H-Addict Program Survives

By DEREK SIDENUS
Times Staff

Shunned by the medical profession, disdained by police, condemned by citizen groups and largely ignored by politicians and the public, the methadone program manages to survive.

It has been operating out of the provincial government funded Victoria Treatment Centre at 951 Alston in Vic West for the past three-and-a-half years. In that time, 235 men and 93 women have passed through the clinic's doors.

Last week there were 40 patients—all heroin addicts—reporting daily for their three-ounce cup of liquid methadone mixed with Tang.

Supervisor Kathy Cantelon says more than half the current number have been on the program more than a year. One man has been using the heroin substitute more or less continuously for seven years.

The euphoria induced, she says, is not as potent as heroin but longer lasting (24 to 36 hours) and at least allows the addict to function in a society unable to solve the terrifying drug problem.

"If we have one aim," says Mrs. Cantelon, who has been dispensing the drug in carefully controlled and monitored dosages since January, 1972, "it is to minimize the drug involement in an addict's life."

Treatment No Cure-All

She says because methadone is free, clinically pure, and unlike heroin, doesn't build up a tolerance in the body, the addict is released from the endless worry of drug supply and can channel his energies into more constructive areas. Many of the patients work, or attend school. One man is in his fourth year at University of Victoria studying toward an arts degree.

Mrs. Cantelon, a 34-year-old mother of two teen-aged children, used to have qualms about methadone treatment.

"I've gone through many feelings since I've been here. Seeing the patients as we do, one begins to redefine the criteria for success. Now I think of methadone as good."

She admits, however, it is no cure.

"But it is the answer for some . . you have to accept some people need a crutch ... some can face reality, some cannot."

For years publicity about methadone has been low key and often adverse—a fact, she says, that has led to misunderstanding, irrational misapprehension and downright ignorance about the program.

Only 10 per cent of heroin addicts have opted for methadone treatment, Mrs. Cantelon estimates, and attributes the low ratio to a widespread fear the drug is tougher to kick than heroin.

"Yet, in my experience, people withdrawing from methadone indicate no more severe physical problems than those withdrawing from heroin. It's all psychological."

She says there has been little communication with the medical profession over the years.

"Most doctors don't understand the problem. They are too used to treating normal (non-addict) people and are often put through a lot (deceived) by the addict."

Police Attitude Unfavorable

But the most vocal critics are the concerned parent groups, which complain the treatment is only perpetuating the addiction problem and attack the centre for the things an addict must do to get on the program.

The biggest issue is the requirement of an addict to supply heroin-tainted urine samples for five consecutive days before treatment begins.

Mrs. Cantelon explains there are reasons for such a requirement.

"We have to determine first the person has a narcotic dependency and second we have to test his motivation to help himself."

She and her staff of two—one is her husband, John, who is the clinic counsellor, the other is Liz Hodding, a case aide—run a strict clinic.

The patients must show up at a specified time—generally between 7:30 and 9:30 a.m. If they don't they are given one chance to be late every two months. Any more, and they forego the medication that day.

The addict has to come in every day, holidays excepted, unless he has a clean track record for a year in which case he can take his weekend dosages home with him on Friday and report back the following Monday.

Before receiving the medication, the addict gives a urine sample in the presence of a clinic worker. The sample is then sent to Vancouver and tested to determine what other drugs, if any, the patient may have been taking.

The occasional presence of heroin in the sample isn't enough to cut the addict off the treatment program, although regular, repeated presence is.

Security in the clinic is tight. Only the exact amount of methadone needed each day is picked up in the morning at a downtown pharmacy and kept at the centre. And the dosages, which vary slightly according to an addict's need and tolerance level, are placed in styrofoam cups, name-tagged for each patient, in a locked, private back room.

"Everyone freaks at addicts," says Mrs. Cantelon. "The truth is the addict is a person with a lot of underlying psychological problems.

"I'm not saying he isn't a criminal too. Most of the people we see have a long history of disciplinary problems.

"But if there are two things that underscore the addict's personality, they are his total lack of responsibility and his penchant to place blame for all his problems on someone else.

"We tell the addicts when they first come here they are responsible for their own treatment and must follow the rules," she says.

"And if they don't, well, for once in their lives, they have no one to blame but themselves."

Summer Start Scheduled For Widening Bottleneck

Preliminary drilling and clearing will start this summer on widening the Trans-Canada Highway to four lanes between the Thetis Lake interchange and Tillicum Road, a highway department spokesman confirmed today.

The official said the work will be tackled in "bits and pieces" by the highways department's own crews, and therefore should cause little interference to traffic.

Survey crews are already at work on the 2.7-mile section of highway, which is heavily used at all times but carries between 1,300 and 1,500 vehicles per hour in peak periods.

Highways Minister Graham Lea announced the widening project last November as an "interim" measure to handle traffic needs over the next five years. At that time, officials estimated it would take at least two years from strart to completion.

Lea said his department was basing its long-term planning on the principle that the artery eventually must have at least an eight-lane capacity to cope with future growth, irrespective of transit and other transportation improvements.

When that stage was reached the four central lanes would be reserved for through traffic and buses, he said, with the flanking lanes handling local commuter and other traffic.

Under the first-stage widening to four lanes, ramps at the Thetis Lake interchange and also the intersections along the route—at Helmcken, Burnside and Tillicum—will have to be redesigned to ensure smoother traffic flow.

The department spokesman said today that work will also start this summer on widening the improved alignments to the narrow, twisting East Sooke Road which is the only road access to East Sooke regional park.

That project will also be undertaken on a "progressive" basis stretched over three to four years.

Some 12 miles of the Jordan River-Port Renfrew road have been paved north of Jordan River and further upgrading of the road is scheduled in the coming months, he said.

Strike Votes Defeated

Two strike votes taken at The Victorian Newspaper this week were defeated by members of the International Typographical Union, Victorian publisher John Damgaard said today.

Damgaard said the votes were taken Monday and Thursday. The publisher called the votes a "vote of confidence for management."

About 17 employees in the production department of the three-times-a-week paper are seeking a first contract.

Phone Computer Wakes Up

Computer trouble which blocked connections between two dialling areas in the Victoria telephone system for 10 hours Thursday cured itself inexplicably at 7:10 p.m.

It was as if the computer controlling automatic switching equipment said, "I'm having a rest," a B.C. Telephone spokesman said today.

Her said a memory drum that would normally handle calls from the 38- series of numbers to the 59- series in South Fairfield and Oak Bay became faulty about 9 a.m. and to prevent putting a strain on its remaining capacity, circuits were shut down until servicemen could examine it in the quiet period after 10 p.m.

At 6 p.m. it was noted the drum failed entirely, remaining out until 7:10 when normal operation resumed—automatically.

Jenkins' Friends Rally

Lawyer Brian Smith was to appear late this morning on behalf of a 23-year-old man wanted on an Indiana murder charge and ask that his deportation hearing be recessed until Thursday.

John Brady Jenkins, who lived here under the name John Brady, was arrested Wednesday while at work on a Saanich construction site.

He was indicted for murder and attempted murder following a shoot-out in 1972 on a farm near Lebanon, Indiana, that left one man dead and another paralysed for life.

Smith said today he will ask for a recess at this morning's federal immigration inquiry at Wilkinson Road jail, and he will also ask that Jenkins be released on bail pending a decision on his deportation.

"I'm finding there's a large number of very fine friends and citiznes that want to help him and testify for him," said Smith.

He said Jenkins has led a stable life since coming to Victoria in November, 1973, and has been employed by the same firm for the past seven months.

"There's every sign that he knew the police were looking for him, but he didn't run away," he said.

Early Start For Clatter

A one-hour earlier start to the construction racket in Victoria will be sanctioned by city council under an amendment to its noise abatement bylaw introduced Thursday.

The change permits "construction and excavation noises" between the hours of 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. from Monday to Saturday inclusive. The bylaw in its present form limits the din-making to the 8 a.m.-8 p.m. period.

The new hours, requested by the construction industry, become effective in two weeks when the by-law is given final reading at council's next meeting.

In Adversity, a Continuing Greatness

FROM THIS CANADIAN to a United States of America approaching its 200th anniversary, congratulations!

Many happy returns.

Hang tough. Don't let 'em get you down.

You're a good neighbor, U.S.A. I'm glad of your large and reassuring presence across the border we share. And from long association through peace and war, good times and bad, I esteem you as a personal friend.

This sweet-talking isn't from the corner of my mouth. Nor does it overlook the fact that Canadian-American relations aren't always of the smoothest. I simply feel more at ease with Americans in their country, and more kindly disposed to them in mine, than I could with any other nationals.

Canada is my land, and I'm glad of that. But if it weren't—if Canadian citizenship were denied me—I would choose to be a citizen of the United States.

We have heard a great deal lately about American excesses and mistakes, floundering and failures. Watergate, with its revelations of political corruption at the highest level. The Indo-China adventure, rashly conceived, costly in execution and predoomed to failure.

But it should also be remembered by critical onlookers that both disasters put a nation's conscience to the test with such results as we have witnessed.

Watergate was not permitted to become a skeleton in the American closet. That domestic scandal was dealt with before the world in a manner that any nation burdened with a like situation could do worse than emulate. That same conscience, stronger than Pentagon or president, forced the withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam.

I think it's time we talked less about our neighbor's troubles—remembering that we are not without our own—and gave more thought to American greatness.

For the greatness is there, tarnished at times but enduring, and the man or nation that would write the United States off as a decadent power on the verge of eclipse is blind to the lessons of history.

No great power—not even Britain in her imperial years—has exerted so profound an influence on world technology, agrarian development, resource utilization and the reduction of population-decimating plagues.

No power has addressed itself more boldly to implementing the dream of a world order in which reason would supplant force of arms in settling international disputes. And if the dream has yet to be realized, where lies the blame?

Most certainly, the blundering giant that emerged from isolationism to crash about in world affairs cannot escape its share of blame for the failure of the League of Nations and the United Nations as global peace-makers. Great enterprises invite great errors. But no other power has undertaken the thankless role of brother's keeper with more goodwill and with so lavish an expenditure of its means.

It is easy to be cynical about the American contribution—to see the United States as the pedlar of wooden nutmegs with a shrewd eye on the return from dollars invested.

As a Canadian, I would have my country be independent to the extent that independence is possible for any nation.

Our mere proximity to the United States makes it essential that we keep firm control of resources we can't afford to squander. The working out of our domestic problems must remain in our own hands.

But as a Canadian and a North American, I remain cold toward the ingrown nationalism that would have us turn away from this neighbor who has worn well through the 200 years since the British outpost colonies of the New World chose their respective directions.

We have had our disagreements. We have not seen eye to eye on matters ranging from boundary lines to trading practices. Our differences are as extensive as our similarities: I doubt we will ever fully understand each other.

Still, a man learns where his friends are, and to this friend with a third century coming up, the best of luck. May your future be bright and your troubles fewer in a world that would fare poorly without you!

Wage, Price Controls Weighed by Cabinet

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Compulsory wage and price controls may soon be imposed in Canada, it was learned from informed government sources.

The cabinet studied the situation Thursday. It could be faced in the very near future with the necessity of imposing mandatory controls, arguing that conditions have deteriorated so much since the election that it has no alternative.

Finance Minister John Turner hinted at such a possibility in the Commons Thursday should the process of arriving at a consensus to combat inflation by voluntary actions ends in failure.

His spring budget to be brought down early in June — possibly June 2 — will spell out the government's position on controls.

Its tone and content will be altered in view of recent developments in which the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) this week issued a nine-point list of demands. They were conditions for its supporting the government's consensus program.

Turner warned in the house that wage settlements in Canada are running so much higher than those in the United States — 16 per cent compared to 7.8 per cent — that this country's competive positon in world markets was rapidly disintegrating. The situatio had to be "reversed" or it would lead to massive unemployment.

He said emphatically: "The government is committed to bring prices and production costs into a competitive posture within a range where we can compete in world markets and defend our own markets. This view was shared by leaders of both labor and business."

The other options confronting the cabinet have been examined. But they will not be actfvely considered until every chance has been given the voluntary process to become operative, it was learned.

Turner will go to Toronto early next week to confer with Joe Morris, CLC president. Later in the week an invitation will go to the executive of the CLC to come to Ottawa to meet with Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and Turner.

The finance minister will also confer with business leaders next week. He is seeking to clarify the present status of the government's consensus program for combatting inflation. He frankly admitted to newsmen that the premature 'leak" of one set of working papers had complicated the negotiations and may have undermined them.

He will canvass the views and reaction of the provinces to the working papers the government had distributed to different sectors of the economy. He tabled the documents in the house at the request of the opposition.

Turner explained to the house in response to opposition questions that the working papers which have been circulated were based on the assumption that every sector of the economy was entitled to bear its burden in the restraint and moderation program. Ottawa is seeking voluntary agreement from all sectors of the economy to go along with the program.

"There is a legitimate bias in favor of the lower paid men and women in the work force," he said.

Strike Kills $197,400 Job Grants

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

The Victoria area has lost $197,400 in job-creating funds as a side effect of the municipal strike-lockout, a spokesman for the capital regional district confirmed today.

Executive director Dennis Young said the district will not be able to handle the Student Temporary Employment Program this year because the strike-lockout meant no staff was available to start project by the May 1 deadline.

"The $197,400 will go to other regional districts. It is very unfortunate but there was nothing we could do during the labor dispute," he said.

Last summer 165 students found work in this area under the program.

Under the terms of the provincial legislation, the money is supplied by the provincial government but must be administered by the regional district. There is no provision for any other groups to supervise the program.

Ironically, the lockout ended at 8 p.m. May 1 and workers were back on the job on May 2, just after the deadline. However, the staff faces a heavy backlog of work and is not in a position to handle extra programs, Young said.

A department of labor spokesman said the $197,400 is frozen at the moment in hopes the capital regional district will change its mind.

However, the funds would have to be released to other districts by month's end if no word was forthcoming from the CRD. The department was also trying to find some way to circumvent the terms of the legislation to make some of the funds available to other job-creating funds in the Victoria area. However, very little if any money would be staying in the Victoria area if the capital regional district did not have a change of heart.

Williams, McGeer, Quit Caucus

Liberal leader David Anderson today announced the resignation of two Liberal MLAs from the provincial caucus.

Allan Williams and Pat McGeer forwarded written resignations to Anderson today leaving three Liberal MLAs sitting in the legislature.

Anderson said he believes McGeer (Vancouver-Point Grey) and Williams (West Vancouver-Howe Sound) will sit as independents until the next election.

TYMPANI - like microwave reflector dishes mounted Thursday atop Smith's Hill will streamline voice and commercial transmissions for B.C. Telephone Co. starting in August. The 75-foot structure is nearing completion at a cost of $900,000 fully equipped. It will eliminate a roof-mounted reflector system on the company's downtown office, which is to be linked by cable to the new site. A 10-foot dish and eight-foot dish will handle mainland transmissions via Salt Spring Island relay station, and a 12-foot reflector will move up-Island messages via Big Sicker Mountain near Chemainus.

Prices Up Again A Little

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index was up a modest five-tenths of one per cent in April the fourth straight month of relatively low monthly increases, Statistics Canada said today.

The over-all price index in April was 11.1 per cent above a year earlier. The largest jumps in the price index last year came later in the year and by December the year-to-year change was up to 12.4 per cent.

"The real story is in a survey done a month ago and Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the Food Prices Review Board, said today she is more concerned about what has happened since.

"The real sotry is in meats," she said. Wholesale beef prices have gone from 37 cents a pound to about 52 and there has been an increase in pork prices.

This means a sharp increase is expected in the food price index when May figures are announced, she said.

Food accounted for about one-quarter of the April increase and increases in government support prices for milk was a major factor. Statistics Canada said higher dairy prices caused most of the increase in the food price index. Higher prices for milk, fresh fruits, cereals and bakery products were partly offset by lower beef and sugar prices.

Clothing prices dropped on average by one-tenth of one per cent in April while costs for shelter went up by three-tenths of one per cent.

NEWS BRIEFS

MP Raises Pass

OTTAWA (CP) — The controversial bill giving MPs and senators a basic 33 1-3 per cent increase in income was signed into law Thursday after passage through the Senate.

Crash Kills Two

NANAIMO (CP) — Two persons were killed in a two-car crash on the Island highway south of Nanaimo Thursday night. Police said the two occupants of one car were killed and the occupant of the second vehiclee was in good condition in Nanaimo hospital with hip injuries. Names were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Puget Sound Terminal Out

SEATTLE (AP) — The Standard Oil Co. of Ohio announced Thursday it has decided against a supertanker terminal and oil pipeline on Puget Sound and instead will ship Alaskan oil to the midwest from the Los Angeles-Long Beach area.

The Cleveland-based company said the oil would be shipped from California ports through a 1,000-mile pipeline, including 700 miles of natural gas pipeline already in place.

SOHIO owns a majority of the oil reserves at Alaska's Prudhoe Bay. Its plans are for a pipeline that ultimately would carry one million barrels a day of oil to the midwest.

The plan, announced in Los Angeles and Seattle, would make use of El Paso natural gas pipeline from the California-Arizona border to Midland, in west Texas, a distance of about 700 miles.

The additional 350 miles of pipeline would be primarily within California, with some pipeline needed in other areas for connections with existing pipelines.

The pipeline, when completed in early 1978, would have a 500,000 barrel-per-day capacity. Its ultimate capacity could be twice that, a spokesman said.

SOHIO is negotiating with the ports of Los Angeles and Long Beach, said Joseph D. Harnett, executive vice president of the company, who made the announcement in Los Angeles.

SOHIO spokesman said the announcement was made at the same time in Seattle, because of the obvious interest in Alaskan Oil in Puget Sound and Alaska.

SOHIO said it had considered eight different routes to get the oil from the west coast to the midwest. One of those involved sending tankers around South America to gulf or east coast ports.

The 1,040-mile route chosen was determined to be the best because it would expedite construction and reduce environmental impact at "substantial savings," the spokesman said.

The proposal is still subject to federal power commission approval.

The spokesman said the line would be a common carrier available to other oil companies involved in the north slope oil development project. However, he did not know whether the other companies would choose to join in the SOHIO pipeline.

Building Unions Curbed As Quebec Strikes Spread

Times News Services

QUEBEC — More than 400 workers demonstrated outside the barrier-ringed national assembly today while work at the $380 million Olympic project remained at a standstill.

Nearly 2,000 striking workers at the Olympic site were joined by men from other worksites in a protest against a government report on the Quebec construction industry.

The protest, however, failed to prevent the Quebec government from introducing legislation designed to curb abuses in construction union.

Labor minister Jean Cournoyer met with Quebec Federation of Labor president Louis Laberge and six other union executives who had crossed the iron barricades around the assembly — routinely installed in anticipation of demonstrations.

Then he went to the floor of the assembly to put forward a pair of bills placing four Quebec locals under trusteeship and barring certain convicted criminals from holding union positions of influence.

The trusteeship bill would give the government, under order-in-council, powers to name three trustees who would have wide powers to effect whatever changes they deemed necessary in the affected unions.

The trustees would be able to dismiss or suspend any union administrator, leader or member and name replacements.

Anyone interfering with the trustees would be liable to fines of $500 to $10,000 and prison terms of more than two years or both.

The fiery Laberge has promised the QFL will "fight like dogs" against the trusteeship over its construction affiliates.

He has said such government action would trample on workers' rights and "emasculate" the unions.

As the wildcat walkout at the site of the 1976 summer games entered its second day, Laberge hinted at a postponement of the games.

"We do hope they can still hold them in 1976, but they just might have to hold the games in 1977," he said.

THE GAMES PEOPLE PLAY...

OTTAWA (CP) — Disgruntled Montreal postal clerks have devised a new way of frustrating post office management, Marcel Perrault, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers' Montreal local, says.

He told an Ottawa local meeting Wednesday night that his members use whistles that make it difficult or impossible for postal inspectors to operate portable radio transmitters for staff surveillance.

Besides general supervision of staff, an inspector's job may include keeping an eye open for improper mail handling and theft.

"We supply our staff with whistles," Perrault said, "and when they see the inspectors use their radio transmitters the staff begin to blow their whistles, ruining the transmission."

Meanwhile, postal workers in at least four Quebec communities were off the job today to protest the slowness of negotiations on a new collective agreement, a union spokesman said.

Post offices in Sherbrooke, Joliette, Ste. Therese and Sept-Iles were affected.

"It seems we've had a small epidemic," said a post office spokesman, adding that many workers had called in sick.

Talks were in progress today and are expected to continue throughout the weekend.

Indians Vow To Stay

George Watts, a member of the three-person Union of British Columbia Indian Chiefs executive council, said Wednesday Indian occupations will continue until the federal Indian affairs department shuts down its B.C. operations.

Watts, of Port Alberni, was in Vernon to give moral support to the leaders of the occupation at the Vernon Indian affairs office.

He said Judd Buchanan, Indian affairs minister, has sent telegrams to all Indian chiefs, asking their opinions about Indian land claims. This move is only to create dissension in Indian ranks, he said.

"It's the old divide tactic," he said. "I imagine he is getting asked about the Indian troubles in the House, so he has to do something."

Meanwhile, the provincial government has agreed to meet with Indians to discuss land claims and how to publicize the issue.

Two opposition MLAs were ejected from the legislature Thursday when they tried to revive last year's chicken and egg war.

Liberal leader David Anderson, who was ordered from the house five times last spring over the same issue, was ordered out of the chamber first and he was followed in less than an hour by Socred MLA Pat Jordan (North Okanagan).

It was the first time in recent history two members have been thrown out the same day.

The battle was between the opposition MLAs and house committee chairman Hartley Dent (NDP-Skeena) who ruled that discussion of the so-called chicken and egg war was irrelevant to the budget item under debate in the house.

He ruled them out of order and demanded they stop being "tedious and repetitious" and return to proper discussion under the budget estimates.

Both members refused to take their seats or stop talking and Dent finally called in Speaker Gordon Dowding, who asked the MLAs to obey the house rules or withdraw from the chamber.

Anderson said Dent was consistently blocking questioning of Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich and he could not agree with the ruling so he left the chamber.

MLAs exchanged shouts of "communism" and "anarchy." Opposition members charged closure and said "democracy is dying in B.C."

Jordan picked up where Anderson left off, charging that a court case involving the B.C. Egg Marketing Board proved that Premier Barrett lied when he told the legislature last year he did not order the board to take any actions concerning quotas.

The opposition has said either the judgment of Mr. Justice E. E. Hinkson in the case is incorrect or Barrett lied to the house. If Barrett believes he told the truth he should appeal the case, they said, because Hinkson's ruling refers to an order concerning quotas, given by Barrett.

Dent ruled Jordan was being tedious. When she refused to stop talking, he again called Dowding to the house to rule on the matter.

The Socred MLA told the Speaker she is always willing to obey house rules but the chairman was being "extremely provocative" and not obeying the rules himself.

Dowding ruled that she withdraw from the house because of her refusal to follow the chair's ruling.

Wage, Price Controls Weighed by Cabinet

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Compulsory wage and price controls may soon be imposed in Canada, it was learned from informed government sources.

The cabinet studied the situation Thursday. It could be faced in the very near future with the necessity of imposing mandatory controls, arguing that conditions have deteriorated so much since the election that it has no alternative.

Finance Minister John Turner hinted at such a possibility in the Commons Thursday should the process of arriving at a consensus to combat inflation by voluntary actions ends in failure.

His spring budget to be brought down early in June — possibly June 2 — will spell out the government's position on controls.

Its tone and content will be altered in view of recent developments in which the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) this week issued a nine-point list of demands. They were conditions for its supporting the government's consensus program.

Turner warned in the house that wage settlements in Canada are running so much higher than those in the United States — 16 per cent compared to 7.8 per cent — that this country's competive position in world markets was rapidly disintegrating. The situatio had to be "reversed" or it would lead to massive unemployment.

He said emphatically: "The government is committed to bring prices and production costs into a competitive posture within a range where we can compete in world markets and defend our own markets. This view was shared by leaders of both labor and business."

The other options confronting the cabinet have been examined. But they will not be actively considered until every chance has been given the voluntary process to become operative, it was learned.

Turner will go to Toronto early next week to confer with Joe Morris, CLC president. Later in the week an invitation will go to the executive of the CLC to come to Ottawa to meet with Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and Turner.

The finance minister will also confer with business leaders next week. He is seeking to clarify the present status of the government's consensus program for combatting inflation. He frankly admitted to newsmen that the premature 'leak" of one set of working papers had complicated the negotiations and may have undermined them.

He will canvass the views and reaction of the provinces to the working papers the government had distributed to different sectors of the economy. He tabled the documents in the house at the request of the opposition.

Turner explained to the house in response to opposition questions that the working papers which have been circulated were based on the assumption that every sector of the economy was entitled to bear its burden in the restraint and moderation program. Ottawa is seeking voluntary agreement from all sectors of the economy to go along with the program.

"There is a legitimate bias in favor of the lower paid men and women in the work force," he said.

Strike Kills $197,400 Job Grants

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

The Victoria area has lost $197,400 in job-creating funds as a side effect of the municipal strike-lockout, a spokesman for the capital regional district confirmed today.

Executive director Dennis Young said the district will not be able to handle the Student Temporary Employment Program this year because the strike-lockout meant no staff was available to start project by the May 1 deadline.

"The $197,400 will go to other regional districts. It is very unfortunate but there was nothing we could do during the labor dispute," he said.

Last summer 165 students found work in this area under the program.

Under the terms of the provincial legislation, the money is supplied by the provincial government but must be administered by the regional district. There is no provision for any other groups to supervise the program.

Ironically, the lockout ended at 8 p.m. May 1 and workers were back on the job on May 2, just after the deadline. However, the staff faces a heavy backlog of work and is not in a position to handle extra programs, Young said.

A department of labor spokesman said the $197,400 is frozen at the moment in hopes the capital regional district will change its mind.

However, the funds would have to be released to other districts by month's end if no word was forthcoming from the CRD. The department was also trying to find some way to circumvent the terms of the legislation to make some of the funds available to other job-creating funds in the Victoria area. However, very little if any money would be staying in the Victoria area if the capital regional district did not have a change of heart.

Williams, McGeer, Quit Caucus

Liberal leader David Anderson today announced the resignation of two Liberal MLAs from the provincial caucus.

Allan Williams and Pat McGeer forwarded written resignations to Anderson today leaving three Liberal MLAs sitting in the legislature.

Anderson said he believes McGeer (Vancouver-Point Grey) and Williams (West Vancouver-Howe Sound) will sit as independents until the next election.

TYMPANI - like microwave reflector dishes mounted Thursday atop Smith's Hill will streamline voice and commercial transmissions for B.C. Telephone Co. starting in August. The 75-foot structure is nearing completion at a cost of $900,000 fully equipped. It will eliminate a roof-mounted reflector system on the company's downtown office, which is to be linked by cable to the new site. A 10-foot dish and eight-foot dish will handle mainland transmissions via Salt Spring Island relay station, and a 12-foot reflector will move up-Island messages via Big Sicker Mountain near Chemainus.

Prices Up Again A Little

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index was up a modest five-tenths of one per cent in April the fourth straight month of relatively low monthly increases, Statistics Canada said today.

The over-all price index in April was 11.1 per cent above a year earlier. The largest jumps in the price index last year came later in the year and by December the year-to-year change was up to 12.4 per cent.

"The real story is in a survey done a month ago and Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the Food Prices Review Board, said today she is more concerned about what has happened since.

"The real sotry is in meats," she said. Wholesale beef prices have gone from 37 cents a pound to about 52 and there has been an increase in pork prices.

This means a sharp increase is expected in the food price index when May figures are announced, she said.

Food accounted for about one-quarter of the April increase and increases in government support prices for milk was a major factor. Statistics Canada said higher dairy prices caused most of the increase in the food price index. Higher prices for milk, fresh fruits, cereals and bakery products were partly offset by lower beef and sugar prices.

Clothing prices dropped on average by one-tenth of one per cent in April while costs for shelter went up by three-tenths of one per cent.

Puget Sound Terminal Out

SEATTLE (AP) — The Standard Oil Co. of Ohio announced Thursday it has decided against a supertanker terminal and oil pipeline on Puget Sound and instead will ship Alaskan oil to the midwest from the Los Angeles-Long Beach area.

The Cleveland-based company said the oil would be shipped from California ports through a 1,000-mile pipeline, including 700 miles of natural gas pipeline already in place.

SOHIO owns a majority of the oil reserves at Alaska's Prudhoe Bay. Its plans are for a pipeline that ultimately would carry one million barrels a day of oil to the midwest.

The plan, announced in Los Angeles and Seattle, would make use of El Paso natural gas pipeline from the California-Arizona border to Midland, in west Texas, a distance of about 700 miles.

The additional 350 miles of pipeline would be primarily within California, with some pipeline needed in other areas for connections with existing pipelines.

The pipeline, when completed in early 1978, would have a 300,000 barrel-per-day capacity. Its ultimate capacity could be twice that, a spokesman said.

SOHIO is negotiating with the ports of Los Angeles and Long Beach, said Joseph D. Harnett, executive vice president of the company, who made the announcement in Los Angeles.

SOHIO spokesman said the announcement was made at the same time in Seattle, because of the obvious interest in Alaskan Oil in Puget Sound and Alaska.

SOHIO said it had considered eight different routes to get the oil from the west coast to the midwest. One of those involved sending tankers around South America to gulf or east coast ports.

The 1,040-mile route chosen was determined to be the best because it would expedite construction and reduce environmental impact at "substantial savings," the spokesman said.

The proposal is still subject to federal power commission approval.

The spokesman said the line would be a common carrier available to other oil companies involved in the north slope oil development project. However, he did not know whether the other companies would choose to join in the SOHIO pipeline.

Building Unions Curbed As Quebec Strikes Spread

Times News Services

QUEBEC — More than 400 workers demonstrated outside the barrier-ringed national assembly today while work at the $380 million Olympic project remained at a standstill.

Nearly 2,000 striking workers at the Olympic site were joined by men from other worksites in a protest against a government report on the Quebec construction industry.

The protest, however, failed to prevent the Quebec government from introducing legislation designed to curb abuses in construction union.

Labor minister Jean Cournoyer met with Quebec Federation of Labor president Louis Laberge and six other union executives who had crossed the iron barricades around the assembly — routinely installed in anticipation of demonstrations.

Then he went to the floor of the assembly to put forward a pair of bills placing four Quebec locals under trusteeship and barring certain convicted criminals from holding union positions of influence.

The trusteeship bill would give the government, under order-in-council, powers to name three trustees who would have wide powers to effect whatever changes they deemed necessary in the affected unions.

The trustees would be able to dismiss or suspend any union administrator, leader or member and name replacements.

Anyone interfering with the trustees would be liable to fines of $500 to $10,000 and prison terms of more than two years or both.

The fiery Laberge has promised the QFL will "fight like dogs" against the trusteeship over its construction affiliates.

He has said such government action would trample on workers' rights and "emasculate" the unions.

As the wildcat walkout at the site of the 1976 summer games entered its second day, Laberge hinted at a postponement of the games.

"We do hope they can still hold them in 1976, but they just might have to hold the games in 1977," he said.

THE GAMES PEOPLE PLAY...

OTTAWA (CP) — Disgruntled Montreal postal clerks have devised a new way of frustrating post office management, Marcel Perrault, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers' Montreal local, says.

He told an Ottawa local meeting Wednesday night that his members use whistles that make it difficult or impossible for postal inspectors to operate portable radio transmitters for staff surveillance.

Besides general supervision of staff, an inspector's job may include keeping an eye open for improper mail handling and theft.

"We supply our staff with whistles," Perrault said, "and when they see the inspectors use their radio transmitters the staff begin to blow their whistles, ruining the transmission."

Meanwhile, postal workers in at least four Quebec communities were off the job today to protest the slowness of negotiations on a new collective agreement, a union spokesman said.

Post offices in Sherbrooke, Joliette, Ste. Therese and Sept-Iles were affected.

"It seems we've had a small epidemic," said a post office spokesman, adding that many workers had called in sick.

Talks were in progress today and are expected to continue throughout the weekend.

Indians Vow To Stay

George Watts, a member of the three-person Union of British Columbia Indian Chiefs executive council, said Wednesday Indian occupations will continue until the federal Indian affairs department shuts down its B.C. operations.

Watts, of Port Alberni, was in Vernon to give moral support to the leaders of the occupation at the Vernon Indian affairs office.

He said Judd Buchanan, Indian affairs minister, has sent telegrams to all Indian chiefs, asking their opinions about Indian land claims. This move is only to create dissension in Indian ranks, he said.

"It's the old divide tactic," he said. "I imagine he is getting asked about the Indian troubles in the House, so he has to do something."

Meanwhile, the provincial government has agreed to meet with Indians to discuss land claims and how to publicize the issue.

Anderson, Jordan Thrown Out of House

By LINDA HUGHES

Two opposition MLAs were ejected from the legislature Thursday when they tried to revive last year's chicken and egg war.

Liberal leader David Anderson, who was ordered from the house five times last spring over the same issue, was ordered out of the chamber first and he was followed in less than an hour by Socred MLA Pat Jordan (North Okanagan).

It was the first time in recent history two members have been thrown out the same day.

The battle was between the opposition MLAs and house committee chairman Hartley Dent (NDP-Skeena) who ruled that discussion of the so-called chicken and egg war was irrelevant to the budget item under debate in the house.

He ruled them out of order and demanded they stop being "tedious and repetitious" and return to proper discussion under the budget estimates.

Both members refused to take their seats or stop talking and Dent finally called in Speaker Gordon Dowding, who asked the MLAs to obey the house rules or withdraw from the chamber.

Anderson said Dent was consistently blocking questioning of Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich and he could not agree with the ruling so he left the chamber.

MLAs exchanged shouts of "communism" and "anarchy." Opposition members charged closure and said "democracy is dying in B.C."

Jordan picked up where Anderson left off, charging that a court case involving the B.C. Egg Marketing Board proved that Premier Barrett lied when he told the legislature last year he did not order the board to take any actions concerning quotas.

Captain January (xx), on 11 at 2. A 1936 musical-drama starring Shirley Temple as an orphan adopted by a lighthouse keeper.

The Devil's Disciple (xxx), on 5 at 2:30. Kirk Douglas, Burt Lancaster and Laurence Olivier star in this rousing 1959 film adaptation of George Bernard Shaw's 1879 satirical play set during the American Revolution. Olivier makes the most of his few scenes as the very grand and very opinionated British General Burgoyne.

Dead Heat on a Merry-Go-Round (xxx), on 7 at 8. An entertaining 1966 adventure about the escapades of an extraordinary con man, played to the hilt by James Coburn.

The Man Who Wanted to Live Forever (xx), on 12 at 7:30. A 1970 made-for-television mystery drama about an isolated heart-disease research centre that houses frightening experiments, starring Burl Ives, Sandy Dennis and Stuart Whitman. The exciting escape sequence is beautifully filmed in the Canadian Rockies and provides an exciting finale.

Nicholas and Alexandra (xxx), on 4 at 9. (Part 1) Huge, lavish, uneven but often interesting historical drama about the 14-year period leading up to the Russian Revolution. This 1971 movie focuses on the royal couple, played by Michael Jayston and Janet Suzman (who won an Academy Award nomination), and features a fine supporting cast that includes Laurence Olivier and Jack Hawkins. There are some ravishing costumes of the period, which deservedly did win an Oscar. (Conclusion tomorrow evening.)

The Bridge at Remagen (xx), on 5 at 9. A 1969 Second World War drama, based on fact, about the efforts by Allied soldiers to commandeer an important tactical bridge from the Germans. Excellent camerawork and competent performances by George Segal, Robert Vaughn, Ben Gazzara and E. G. Marshall.

The Act of the Heart (xxx), on 6 at 9. Several Canadian film awards went to this 1970 drama, produced and directed by Paul Almond, and starring his wife Genevieve Bujold, Donald Sutherland, and a totally Canadian supporting cast. It's a brooding, somewhat morbid tale about a young woman who has a fateful affair with a young priest with tragic results.

Buck and the Preacher (xxx), on 8 at 9. Harry Belefonte and Sidney Poitier star in this 1972 western adventure about black pioneers in the post-Civil War South. This movie was Poitier's first directorial effort.

The Hunchback of Notre Dame (xxx), on 9 at 9. The late character actor Lon Chaney Sr. became a major star as a result of his brilliant performance in this 1923 silent version of Victor Hugo's classic. As Quasimodo, Chaney created one of his most grotesque, inspired makeups, and his performance has been described as one of the greatest screen portrayals of all time.

Generation (xx), on 7 at 11. A 1969 made-for-television comedy drama about a straitlaced businessman coming to grips with his daughter's anti-establishment marriage, starring David Janssen, Kim Darby and Carl Reiner.

Horsefeathers (xx), on 11 at 11. The gags fly fast and free in this 1932 Marx Brothers comedy—for fans of Groucho Harpo, Zeppo and Chico Marx.

Buck and the Preacher (xxx), on 6 at 11:20. (see earlier this evening for details.)

PT 109 (xx), on 12 at 11:30. A 1963 movie adaptation of Robert J. Donovan's best-sellers about the Second World War naval exploits of John F. Kennedy, starring Cliff Robertson.

Gypsy (xxx), on 5 at 11:35. Natalie Wood, Rosalind Russell and Karl Malden star in this 1962 movie adaptation of the hit Broadway musical based on the memoirs of Gypsy Rose Lee. The story focuses on the stage mother of them all, Rose Hovick (Miss Russell) whose daughters grew up to be striptease Gypsy Rose Lee and actress June Havoc.

Kaleidoscope (xx), on 8 at midnight. A visually pretty but placid 1966 British-made comedy about a playboy who tries a cleverly crooked way to beat the European gambling casinos, starring Warren Beatty and Susannah York.

The Big Country (xxx), on 6 at 1:20. An all-star cast highlights this sprawling, 1958 western drama, directed by veteran William Wyler. A brilliant Oscar-winning performance by Maggie Smith highlights this fascinating 1969 English-made study of an extraordinary teacher who gives her all-girl students an unusual philosophy of life. Movies

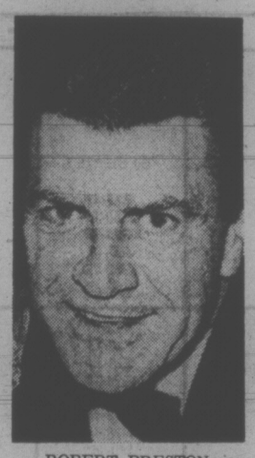
They came from Beyond Space (x), on 11 at 2. A 1967 English-made science-fiction tale.

Promise Him Anything, on 8 at 2:30. An unpreviewed 1975 made-for-television comedy-drama about a tangled romantic web that is woven by a computer programmer and the equally deceitful secretary he meets through a computer-dating service, starring Frederic Forrest, Meg Foster, Eddie Albert and Tom Ewell.

Dark Command (xxx), on 11 at 3:30. A colorful, action-filled 1940 western set in Kansas during the Civil War, about the rise and fall of William Cantrell, leader of the infamous Cantrell Raiders, starring John Wayne, Claire Trevor, Walter Pidgeon and Roy Rogers.

Nicholas and Alexandra (xxx), on 4 at 8:30. Conclusion of the 1971 historical drama about the Russian Revolution, starring Michael Jayson and Janet Suzman. (See Saturday evening for more details.)



ROBERT PRESTON
. . . on 12 at 9 p.m.

The Music Man (xxxx), on 12 at 9. Robert Preston's smashing performance and some familiar well-whistled tunes highlights this entertaining 1962 film version of the Meredith Wilson Broadway musical hit. It's the saga of Harold Hill (Preston) a fast-talking salesman who arrives in River City, Iowa, to organize a boys' band and falls for the pretty librarian, well-played by Shirley Jones. It's fun for the whole family.

In Broad Daylight (xx), on 5 at 11. A 1971 made-for-television suspense drama about a movie idol, now blind, who plots to kill his wife, starring Richard Boone, Suzanne Pleshette and Stella Stevens.

Pressure Point (xxx), on 4 at 11:30. An offbeat, but fascinating 1962 drama highlighted by two good performances by its stars. Sidney Poitier plays, with quite authority, a prison psychiatrist whose star patient is an anti-Semitic, Negro-hating American Nazi party member, portrayed with brilliant arrogance by the late Bobby Darrin. Their exchanges pave the way for some intriguing flashbacks into the prisoner's past which led to his being jailed for sedition. The plot is overloaded but the stars carry it off.

Valley of the Dolls (x), on 12 at 11:30. A trashy 1967 film adaptation of Jacqueline Susann's equally trashy (but best-selling) novel about three show business women whose lives are complicated by pills, alcohol and the wrong men, starring Patty Duke, Barbara Parkins and Sharon Tate.

The Emperor Waltz (xxx), on 2 at 11:45. Bing Crosby and Joan Fontaine star in this 1948 musical about a phonograph salesman trying to sell one to Emporer Joseph of Austria, and wooing a countess on the side.

MAGGIE SMITH
. . . on 6 at 1:55 a.m.

Kaleidoscope (xx), on 6 at 11:50. A visually pretty but placid 1966 English - made comedy about a playboy who tries a cleverly crooked way to beat the European gambling casinos, starring Warren Beatty and Susannah York.

The Big Country (xx), on 8 at midnight. An all-star cast highlights this sprawling 1958 western drama, directed by veteran William Wyler. The story focuses on a bitter range feud over water rights, and an excellent cast includes Gregory Peck, Charlton Heston, Jean Simmons, Carroll Baker and Burl Ives (who won an Oscar for Best Supporting Actor.)

Louisiana Purchase (xx), on 7 at 1. An entertaining 1941 mixture of politics, romance and Irving Berlin music, set at Mardi Gras in New Orleans, and starring Bob Hope and Vera Zorina.

The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie (xxxx), on 6 at 1:55. A brilliant Oscar-winning performance by Maggie Smith highlights this fascinating 1969 English-made study of an extraordinary teacher who gives her all-girl students an unusual philosophy of life. The story ends on an unhappy note, but Miss Brodie's spirit in final defeat, as interpreted by Maggie Smith, remains long after the fade-out. Recommended for late-night viewers.

Columbo, on 8 at 7 and 5 at 8:30. PBS Encores Popular Series

Upstairs, Downstairs returns to public television, beginning May 11 at 8:30 p.m. on KCTS-9. This Emmy Award-winning series — originally broadcast in November, 1974 — deals with the changes both aristocrats and servants undergo in a rapidly changing world.

These thirteen episodes, which will be seen Sundays at 8:30 p.m. with repeats Fridays at 9 p.m., take the Bellamy household from the death of King Edward VII to the outbreak of World War I. As social and class barriers in England begin to break down, the structuring of the Bellamy household comes under intense pressure. The typical upper-class family and the servants who "know their place" are finding it difficult to maintain their traditional positions. As industrialization offers new opportunities to the lower classes, and as women join the job market, new people come into the household — bringing new ideas. And as the Victorian morality begins to fade, formerly "unheard of" scandals take place with great frequency.

The cast reflects the changes in the Bellamy manor. Lady Marjorie leaves the cast after the first episode — leaving ~~ad~~distraught household and a lot of trouble for her husband. Coming into the house is a new secretary, Miss Forrest (Meg Wynn Owen). The entrance of the middle class throws everyone into confusion, with feelings ranging from hostility to love.

Continuing at Eaton Place will be Richard Bellamy (David Langston), James Bellamy (Simon Williams), Hudson (Gordon Jackson), Rose (Jean Marsh), Mrs. Bridges (Angela Baddeley), Edward (Christopher Beeny), and Roberts (Patsy Smart).

Youthful Baton Leads Concerts

When Michael Tilson Thomas gives the downbeat to the orchestra on the New York Philharmonic Young People's Concert entitled What Is Music? What Is Noise? to be broadcast Sunday, May 11 (3:30-4:39 p.m.) on the CBS Television Network, tradition will continue to be broken.

Over the past half-century, the Young People's Concerts have been helmed by the music director of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, starting with Ernest Schelling during the 1923-24 season and continuing through Leonard Bernstein's tenure from 1957 to 1970. But with the latter's resignation as the Philharmonic's music director, and the naming of the French conductor Pierre Boulez as his successor, the tradition had of necessity to be broken.

Boulez's commitments, aside from his Philharmonic stewardship, have precluded his handling the added responsibility of the Young People's Concerts series, and guest conductors — among them Aaron Copland, Yehudi Menuhin and Dean Dixon — have occupied the podium for these concerts since Bernstein stepped down. Now, Michael Tilson Thomas, age 29, a "wunderkind" of American serious music, writes, conducts and narrates this series of award-winning concerts.

Thomas, who is music director of the Buffalo Philharmonic and principal guest conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is, in the considered opinion of composer Aaron Copland, "another Bernstein — he not only has the talent but also the same intellectual curiosity, even outside of music."

The resemblances between Thomas and Bernstein are striking. Both men are Americans, both are brilliant pianists, both are highstrung, both are intensely enthusiastic, and both share a love of theater and theatrical gesture. In addition, both were the recipients of teaching, guidance and sponsorship by the leading musicians of their times — and both made sensational debuts when in their mid-20s.

Maturity and experience once were the qualities traditionally looked for in conductors of major orchestras. But when Bernstein, 25 years old at the time, substituted for the ailing Bruno Walter with the New York Philharmonic on a few hours notice and electrified the audience at a memorable concert in 1943, tradition began to give away.

WONDERFUL WORLD OF DISNEY presents a film about Canadian geese on Sunday at 6 p.m. on Channel 2.

MEMORIAL CUP HOCKEY ON CTV

Host Bill Inkol of CKCO-TV, CTV's Kitchener affiliate, and play - by - play commentator Bernie Pascall of BCTV, CTV's Vancouver affiliate, preside over the sudden death playoff action in the Kitchener Memorial Auditorium as CTV covers "The 1975 Memorial Cup," telecasting live Sunday, May 11, 10:30-1:00 p.m. on the CTV Television Network.

First presented in 1919, the Memorial Cup trophy is emblematic of National Junior Hockey supremacy in Canada. The league champions of the Ontario Hockey Association, Quebec Junior Major Hockey Association and the Western Canada Hockey League play a three game round robin series. The top team receives a bye into the final fifth game and the remaining two teams play a sudden death fourth game determining who advances to the fifth and final game. The winner of that game becomes the 56th Memorial Cup Champion.

If all teams are tied after the round robin series, the team with the best goals for and against average goes into the final while the two remaining teams play a semi-round, sudden death playoff game.

Last year over 150 hockey scouts attended grading the talent that is destined for the National Hockey League, World Hockey Association and minor professional leagues. Again this year the scouts have their work cut out for them: judging some of the best hockey talent between the ages of 16 and 19 from across the country.

Mr. Jack Devine, president of the CAHA commented that he is certain, "the 1975 Memorial Cup series, hosted by the Ontario Major Junior Hockey League in the city of Kitchener, will be extremely successful, and I, along with thousands of major junior hockey fans look forward with anticipation to the 1975 Memorial Cup."

Movies

The Challenge, on 8 at 12:45. No rating available on this 1948 Bulldog Drummond mystery starring Tom Conway as the sleuth.

The Great Sinner (xx), on 11 at 1. An impressive cast of stars (Gregory Peck, Ava Gardner, Melvyn Douglas and Ethel Barrymore) tells an interesting story about a 19th century Russian novelist whose addiction to gambling almost ruins his life.

The Stripper (xx), on 5 at 3:30. Apart from a valiant try by Joanne Woodward in a role that required a Marilyn Monroe-type to carry it off successfully, this 1963 boils down to pure soap opera. Miss Woodward plays a girl working in a run-down road show, who decides to try for a new life and ends up falling in love with a man much younger than herself. The movie is based on William Inge's play, Loss of Roses, which was a quick, deserved flop on Broadway.

SIDNEY POITIER
. . . on 5 at 9 p.m.

Buck and the Preacher (xxx), on 5 at 9. Sidney Poitier and Harry Belefonte make an excellent acting team in this 1972 western drama about a group of black pioneers in the post-Civil War Southwest. This movie was Poitier's directing debut and includes an excellent supporting cast (Ruby Dee, Cameron Mitchell and Nita Talbot).

The Secret War of Harry Frigg (xx), on 11 at 9. A silly 1968 service comedy set during the Second World War where a rebellious private is called upon to try and rescue some captured Allied generals. Paul Newman is totally wasted in a lightweight cast that includes Sylva Koscina, Tom Bosley and Andrew Duggan.

Good Salary, Prospects, Free Coffee, on 4 at 11:30. An unpreviewed made-for-TV mystery thriller about a woman who becomes suspicious when her two roommates disappear accepting the same job. Kim Darby stars.

My Darling Daughters' Anniversary (xx), on 12 at 11:30. A 1973 sequel to the previous year's All My Darling Daughters, about a widowed judge (Robert Young), with four daughters. In this follow-up he faces the delicate problem of telling them he wants to remarry.

Out of Sight (x), on 2 at midnight. An insipid 1966 pop musical with a secret-agent yarn thrown in, and a cast of unknowns.

Legend of the Lost (xx), on 6 at midnight. A powerhouse trio of stars (John Wayne, Sophia Loren and Rossano Brazzi) and some excellent photography are the only plus factors in this sprawling, over-produced 1957 adventure pelc about a search over the Sahara desert for a lost city. Miss Loren has come a long way in the acting since this film was made.

The Harder They Fall (xxx), on 7 at midnight. Humphrey Bogart gave an excellent performance in this realistic 1956 expose of big-time boxing, based on the Budd Schulberg best-selling novel. In his last film appearance, Bogart stars as an honest promoter who opposes a corrupt manager, well-played by Rod Steiger. Jan Sterling co-stars with cameo appearances by Jersey Joe Walcott and Max Baer. Neither Bogart or boxing fans will be disappointed by this excellent movie.

Adventures of the Queen, on 8 at midnight. No rating available on this 1975 made-for-television drama about a psychotic threatening to blow up a cruise ship. Filmed aboard the Queen Mary, with Robert Stack, David Hedison, Bradford Dillman and Ralph Bellamy.

Walking My Baby Back Home (xx), on 7 at 2. If you can forget the plot in this muddled 1954 musical, you enjoy the songs and the comedy routines. Donald O'Connor and Janet Leigh dance well together and Buddy Hackett is in top form.

The Bachelor Party (xxx), on 8 at 2:06. Paddy Chayefsky (Marty) wrote the TV play and expanded it for this 1957 movie about a group of businessmen who indulge in one of our society's rituals, the bachelor party. It's a sober and revealing slice-of-life, with fine performances by Don Murray, E. G. Marshall, Larry Blyden, Philip Abbott and Carolyn Jones.

We Were Strangers (xx), on 5 at 2:15. John Huston directed this disappointing 1949 drama about intrigue and revolution in Cuba during the 30s, starring Jennifer Jones and John Garfield.

NINE NEW SERIES

CBS Announces Fall Schedule

Nine new series — five dramas and four situation comedies will be presented in the 1975-76 program schedule of the CBS Television Network, details of which were announced by Robert D. Wood, President. In announcing the new schedule, Mr. Wood said, "Although CBS last season again maintained its position as the leading network, our program development was so successful we are introducing nine very exciting new series. We believe the result to be one of the best balanced and most diversified schedules the network has ever offered."

CLORIS LEACHMAN
. . . Phyllis

. . . Switch

The new one-hour dramatic series are Beacon Hill, based on the successful British series, Upstairs, Downstairs; Bronk, starring Jack Palance; Switch! co-starring Robert Wagner and Eddie Albert; Kat McShane, starring Anne Meara; and Three for the Road, with Alex Rocco.

The half-hour situation comedies to be launched in September include: Phyllis, starring Cloris Leachman in the character she popularized in The Mary Tyler Moore Show; Doc, with Barnard Hughes and Elizabeth Wilson; Big Eddie with Sheldon Leonard and Sheree North; and Joe and Sons, with Richard Castellano.

BEACON HILL — This adaptation of the highly-acclaimed British series, Upstairs, Downstairs, is now set in Boston and Newport in the early 1920s. It focuses on the melodramatic interaction between an extremely wealthy family and its domestic servants. It is a Robert Stigwood Production produced by Jacqueline Babbin, directed by Fielder Cook and writeen by Sidney Carroll. The cast includes such gifted Broadway stage performers as Beatrice Straight, George Rose, Nancy Marchand, Stephen Elliott, Kathryn Walker and David Rounds.

BRONK — Jack Palance stars as Alex Bronkov, a taciturn and driven police lieutenant whose unique way of dealing with crime gains him an assignment as a special agent for the mayor of a large city. Bruce Geller (Mission: Impossible and Mannix) is the producer and Richard Donner the director.

SWITCH! — Robert Wagner and Eddie Albert co-star in this action-advefture series as two unusual and clever private eyes. Albert plays a retired, hard-nosed bunco squad cop who is partnered with his former nemesis, Wagner, a charming ex-con man. The series is a Universal Studios production. Glen Larson is the writer-producer with Robert Day the director.

KATE McSHANE — Anne Meara, of the popular comedy team of Stiller and Meara, stars as the bombastic, unorthodox lawyer, Kate McShane, in this full-hour series which combines the warmth of a tightly knit Irish-American family and the hard-hitting melodrama of the courtroom. Other regular members of the cast are Sean McClory, Charles Haid and Cal Bellini. It is produced by P. A. Productions, Inc., in association with Paramount Television. E. Jack Neuman is the producer-writer and Martin Chomsky the director.

THREE FOR THE ROAD — This full-hour, on-the-road series revolves around a rugged 40-year-old widower — a free-lance photographer — who decides to take his two teen-age sons with him as he criss-crosses America pursuing various assignments. Alex Rocco plays Pete Karras, the father, with Vincent Van Patten and Leif Garrett as his sons. It is a production of MTM Enterprises. The producers are Jerry McNeely and Boris Sagal. Sagal also is the director and McNeely the writer.

DOC — Joe Bogart, played by the gifted character actor, Barnard Hughes, has lived and practiced over 30 years in a racially mixed urban neighborhood. In addition to his horde of non-paying patients, he must also contend with the problems of his large family, including 26 grandchildren. He has a warm, but zesty relationship with his wife, played by Elizabeth Wilson, who would like to nudge her obdurate husband to a more elite practice. The program is an MTM Enterprises production, produced by Ed Weinberger and Stan Daniels, directed by Robert Moore and written by David Lloyd.

BIG EDDIE — Sheldon Leonard stars as Big Eddie, a classy ex-gambler with an extraordinary vocabulary and Sheree North plays his wife, Honey, a peppy, outspoken former showgirl. Their lives, once dominated by ermine, camel's hair and the $100 window at the race track, undergoes a complete reversal when Eddie's 8-year-old, precocious, orphaned granddaughter comes to live with them. "Big Eddie" is a Deezdemzandoze Production produced and written by Bill Persky and Sam Denoff and directed by Persky.

PHYLLIS — Cloris Leachman stars as Phyllis, the character she made famous on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show." Until now she has been a very dependent woman, but in the new series, her husband Lars dies and she has to find her own way in the world. The program is a production of MTM Enterprises. Ed Weinberger and Stan Daniels are the producers and together with David Lloyd write the show. Director is Jay Sandrich.

Movies

River of Mystery (x), on 8 at 12:45. Routine jungle adventure about two soldiers of fortune searching for hidden diamonds in Brazil, filmed in 1969, and starring Vic Morrow and Edmond O'Brien.

Summer Stock (xx), on 11 at 1. An entertaining 1950 musical tailored to the talents of its two stars — Judy Garland and Gene Kelly.

Fun in Acapulco (xx), on 5 at 3:30. Gorgeous Mexican scenery enhances this otherwise routine 1964 Elvis Presley musical. Ursula Andress plays his leading lady.

The Scapegoat (xx), on 12 at 7. Alec Guinness plays two roles in this uneven 1959 British-made comedy-drama about an English schoolteacher whose exact double — a French nobleman — offers him his family and responsibilities. Bette Davis and Nicole Maurey co-star.

The First 36 Hours of Dr. Durant, on 4 at 8:30. An unpreviewed 1975 made-for-TV drama that follows a young doctor through his hectic initiation as a surgical resident in a teaching hospital, starring Scott Hylands in the title role.

MARTIN SHEEN
. . . on 5 at 8 p.m.

The Execution of Private Slovak (xxxx), on 5 at 8. Martin Sheen's powerful performance as Second World War soldier Eddie Slovak, the first serviceman to be executed since the Civil War, highlights this profoundly moving 1974 drama. His portrait of Eddie is one of a man who walks through life as if it were a lost continent, saved only by his love for the girl who becomes his wife. Hating the Army and fearing combat, Private Slovak deserts in France, and, when offered a way out, he refuses to join his unit and is sentenced to death for desertion. The drama suggests that he was shot as an example, but in fact the case remains an ambiguous one without easy answers.

AUDREY HEPBURN
. . . on 8 at Midnight

Topaz (xxx), on 11 at 9. Alfred Hitchcock directed this 1969 suspense tale about a security leak during the 1962 Cuban missile crisis, starring Frederick Stafford, John Forsythe, John Vernon and Dany Robin. Not one of Hitchcock's best, but still entertaining, with Canadian actor John Vernon's performance a standout.

The Devil's 8 (xx), on 12 at 11:30. A 1969 action melodrama which turns out to be a poor man's Dirty Dozen, about a federal agent who enlists the services of a motley crew of prisoners to break a moonshine syndicate. Cast includes Christopher George, Ralph Meeker and Fabian.

The Twelve Chairs (xxx), on 2 at midnight. Mel Brooks wrote, directed and plays a small part in this nutty farce about a chase across post-Revolutionary Russia after precious jewel-filled chairs. Filmed in Europe in 1970 and starring Dom DeLuise, Frank Langella and Ron Moody.

The Female Trap (xx), on 6 at midnight. A violent 1968 thriller about a transient who becomes involved with a beautiful young girl and her murderous family in the Arizona desert, starring Jack Lord and Susan Strasberg.

Sahara (xxx), on 7 at midnight. An exciting, well-produced 1943 war drama about an American tank crew's battles against Nazis, desert sands and lack of water, with fine performances from Humphrey Bogart, Lloyd Bridges and Dan Duryea.

The Children's Hour (xxx), on 8 at midnight. Audrey Hepburn and Shirley MacLaine star in this 1961 movie rendering of Lillian Hellman's play about malicious gossip that brings ruin and tragedy to two teachers at an all-girls school. The once daring theme is less effective today, partly because lesbianism is no longer such an unmentionable subject.

The Two-Headed Spy (xxx), on 6 at 1:45. Exciting chase sequences and a climatic finale highlights this suspenseful 1959 British-made espionage tale starring Jack Hawkins and Gia Scala as a couple of Allied agents working inside the German lines.

Whispering Smith (xx), on 7 at 2. Alan Ladd and Robert Preston star in this nicely-made 1949 western drama about a railroad detective who discovers his best friend is in with bandits.

Captain John Smith and Pocahontas (x), on 8 at 2:20. A badly made 1953 adventure about the romance of the legendary English officer and the Indian princess, starring Anthony Dexter and Jody Lawrence.

Today's Highlights

Mike Douglas Show, on 12 at 12 noon and 7 at 6:30. From Opryland, USA, in Nashville, Mike and his co-host Loretta Lynn welcome Roberta Peters, Bill Anderson, Mickey Gilley, George Hamilton and Roger Miller. (90 mins.)

MARGARET THATCHER
. . . on 9 at 10:30

The Way It Was, on 9 at 8. Highlights of the Baltimore Colts sudden-death victory over the New York Giants for the 1958 NFL Championship — called by many as the greatest football game ever played. Guests include former Colt stars Johnny Unitas, Raymond Berry and Lenny Moore, and representing the Giants are Frank Gifford, Kyle Rote and Charlie Conerly. (30 mins.)

Nova, on 9 at 8:30. A documentary about people's sleeping habits, with a look at a businessman who likes to sleep only 15 minutes a night; and how such factors as drugs and extended periods of isolation affect a person's sleeping habits. (60 mins.)

Interface, on 9 at 10. A profile of Cecil Williams, the activist pastor of San Francisco's Glide Memorial Methodist Church. Mr. Williams gained national attention when he acted as a liason between the Hearst family and the Symbionese Liberation Army. (30 mins.)

Martin Agronsky in Great Britain, on 9 at 10:30. Host Martin Agronsky interviews Margaret Thatcher, leader of Britain's Conservative Party. (30 mins.)

Wide World Special, on 4 at 11:30. Rape: The Unspeakable Crime, a report which examines the motivations behind the estimated 50,000 reported rapes in the United States, and the psychological harm suffered by the victims. The program includes a look at a treatment centre for convicted rapists; and a rape emergency centre in Philadelphia. Among those interviewed are Dr. Marvin Wolfgang a criminologist, and film critic Molly Haskell. (90 mins.)

Frances Rose Has Come a Long Way

By LAWRENCE LAURENT

Dinah Shore was a victim of mixed emotions one day in May, 1974. She won an Emmy award from the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences as the best hostess on TV — and three hours later was told that her daytime show on NBC-TV had been cancelled.

Dinah's Place, officials at NBC-TV said, just didn't fit with the daytime lineup of quiz shows and soap operas. Dinah was replaced by Name That Tune, which has since disappeared.

But some folks in television know a winner when they see one. Before Dinah could shed a tear over ending a 35-year association with the National Broadcasting Co., four other organizations came up with offers. Dinah took the offer made by the Television Stations Division of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

This spring things look a lot better for Dinah. Her new show, Dinah!, is playing in 70 of the nation's largest cities. Her ratings are good. In Philadelphia, where she's opposite the Philadelphia-produced Mike Douglas Show, Dinah is his equal in ratings.

She drew praise from on high at the annual meeting of CBS Inc. shareholders in April in New York. Arthur R. Taylor, president of CBS Inc., bragged on the stations division, its sales gains and for "the new daily talk and variety series called 'Dinah!, which the division created and produced."

This is another chapter in the seemingly endless saga of the polite woman who came out of the hills of Tennessee, and who has been moving from success to success ever since.

Frances Rose Shore of Winchester, Tenn., by way of New York and Beverly Hills, is becoming one of the most remarkable stories in broadcasting.

Dinah Shore

She didn't have a particularly happy childhood in Winchester, Tenn., and once when I asked her what she remembered best about it, she answered: "Being teased about my name." The teasing took the form of chant:

"Frances sat on a tack.

"Frances Rose?

"Shore."

She was soon in Nashville, attending Hume Fogg high school and leading cheers. She had a 15-minute radio show on station WSM when she was a sophomore — although the songs had to be timed for the arrival of a train that usually drowned out her singing.

Her father counceled an education before giving full time to a musical career. Dinah took his advice, went to Vanderbilt University in Nashville an took a degree in sociology in 1938.

It was almost a year before NBC hired her in New York. The network used her as a "fill-in" singer, and that relationship lasted from March, 1939, until last May's ill-timed notice of cancellation.

During the search for work in New York she acquired a new first name. She had used Dinah as the opening theme on her Nashville radio station and sang it when she auditioned for Martin Block in New York. He couldn't remember her name and called her Dinah. She has used the name ever since.

A featured spot on the Eddie Cantor radio series established Dinah as Radio's Mellow-mood Singer, and her recordings began selling. By 1942 she'd sold over 2 million recordings, was being courted by Hollywood and was in love with a tall Hollywood leading man named George Montgomery. They were married in December, 1943, and divorced more than 19 years later.

Dinah's second effort at marriage was with a Palm Spring, Calif., contractor named Maurice F. Smith. It lasted less than a year.

She settled in a beautiful home in Beverly Hills, about a block off Sunset Boulevard, and became one of the most active woman in show business.

During the first season of Dinah's Place, an actor named Burt Reynolds was booked as a guest. Very little of the tape could be used from his visit, since he has a ribald sense of humor and was determined to break Dinah's composure.

They've been going steady ever since, even if Dinah is 18 years older than Burt's 39 years.

She beats him at tennis, and he happily cracks jokes about the pleasure of having a girl "who is a jock."

Still, station managers across the land check research statistics on the faithful women's audience for Dinah! and conclude that her romance with Burt has made her much more fascinating than in previous years.

But Dinah will hardly qualify as a leader of the women's liberation movement. "A female performer in television walks a perilous line," she has said. "Being a female star, and yet not being a dominating woman, is to walk on eggs, for there is nothing less attractive than a woman who has lost sight of the fact that she is first a woman."

Washington Post

SCOTT HYLANDS stars as a young doctor ready to sacrifice his career for his principles in, The First 36 Hours of Dr. Durant, a contemporary drama about hospital life to be seen on Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 4.

Contemporary Music Series Back on 9

Dan Hicks and His Hot Licks return in an encore presentation of high points from the One of a Kind series, May 12 at 9:30 p.m. on Channel Nine. This musical series features veteran as well as emerging blues, folk and jazz artists who have contributed unique styles and outlooks to their musical genres. Each performance is seen in concert, before a live audience.

Dan Hicks and His Hot Licks star in a slick session of music from the 20s through the 50s. Their music derives partly from Django Reinhardt, partly from the Mills Brothers, and partly from Hicks' own musical vision.

Every Hicks performance is a visual extravaganza — complete with a backdrop of the seashore, palm trees, a lighted moon, and costumes of the 40s.

Johnny Carson, on 5 at 11:30. Guests tonight include actress Candice Bergen and author Paul Ehrlich (The Population Bomb). (90 mins.)

Movies

Mr. and Mrs. Bo Jo Jones (xxx), on 8 at 12:45. An unpretentious and surprisingly well-acted 1971 made-for-TV drama about a teen-age marriage resulting from pregnancy, starring Desi Arnaz Jr., and Christopher Norris.

Hud (xxxx), on 11 at 1. A superb cast makes this 1963 story, about a ruthless young man who tarnishes everything and everyone he touches, ring true from start to finish. Paul Newman is perfect as the alienated young man, out for kicks with no regard for the consequences. The drama is deepened by the bitter conflict between the callous Hud and his stern and highly principled father (Oscar winner Melvyn Douglas) and by Patricia Neal (also an Oscar winner) who makes all her scenes count as their world-weary housekeeper. An Academy Award also went to cameraman James Wong Howe for his excellent on-location Texas photography. Recommended.

The Hanging Tree (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. Much under-rated at the time of its release (1959), this excellent western drama features a fine performance by Gary Cooper as a man torn between law and order. He portrays a strong-willed doctor who comes to the aid of an injured Swiss girl, caring for her in a mining camp ridden with gold fever and racial prejudice. A fine supporting cast includes Maria Schell, Karl Malden and George C. Scott.

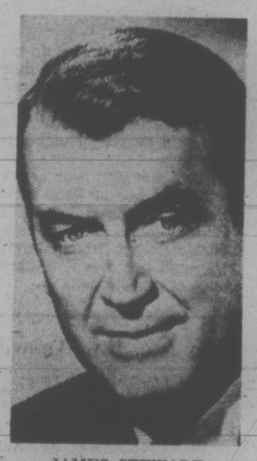
Promise Him Anything, on 4 at 8:30. An unpreviewed 1975 made-for-television comedy tracing a tangled romantic web woven by a computer programmer and the equally deceitful secretary he meets through a computer-dating service, starring Frederick Forrest, Meg Foster, Eddie Albert and Tom Ewell.

Puzzle of a Downfall Child, on 8 at 9. An obscure 1970 drama starring Faye Dunaway as a burned-out high fashion model who recalls the loves and neurosis that defeated her career. Others in the cast include Viveca Lindfors, Barry Primus and Barry Morse.

The Doomsday Flight (xx), on 11 at 9. A familiar but suspenseful 1966 melodrama about a frantic search for a bomb placed aboard a passenger airliner. A good script by Rod Sterling enchances the performances of Van Johnson, Jack Lord and Edmond O'Brien.

She Cried Murder! (xx), on 12 at 11:30. The Toronto subway sets the scene for a climatic chase sequence in this 1973 made-for-TV crime-drama starring Telly Savalas as a murdering cop and Lynda Day George as the woman who saw him do it.

Harvey (xxxx), on 2 at midnight. A delightful, entertaining and beautifully acted 1950 film version of Mary Chase's Pulitzer Prize-winning play about Elwood P. Dowd, a gentle, middle-aged bachelor with an invisible six-foot rabbit friend. James Stewart is excellent as the whimsical Mr. Dowd and Josephone Hull (Oscar winner) is a joy as his straight-laced sister who is continually embarrassed by his actions. (Stewart recently revived the role for the stage and was a resounding success.)



JAMES STEWART
. . . on 2 at Midnight

This Angry Breed, on 6 at midnight. No rating available on this 1968 story of opportunism and rebellious youth on the fringes of the movie industry, starring James McArthur and Jan Sterling.

The Caine Mutiny (xxxx), on 7 at midnight. A fine cast (Humphrey Bogart, Fred MacMurray, Van Johnson, Lee Marvin, Robert Francis and Jose Ferrer) highlight this excellent 1954 adaptation of Herman Wouk's Pulitzer Prize-winning Second World War novel about mine sweeper officers who revolt against a captain they consider mentally unfit. Bogart is a standout as the complex Captain Queeg. Recommended.

One Thousand Plane Raid (xx), on 8 at midnight. Routine 1969 Second World War action adventure starring Christopher George and Laraine Stevens.

Meet Me Tonight (xxx), on 6 at 1:50. A 1952 English-made trio of short Noel Coward plays: Red Peppers, with Kay Walsh and Ted Ray; Fumed Oak, with Stanley Holloway and Betty Ann Davis; Ways and Means, with Valerie Hobson, Nigel Patrick, Jack Warner and Jessie Royce Landis.

The Big Knife (xxx), on 8 at 2. A perceptive and powerful portrait of a ruthless Hollywood producer, starring Jack Palance, Ida Lupino and Wendell Corey.

Elvis Turns Tanya On

'I Learned How to Move By Watching Elvis Presley . . .'

Seeing Tanya Tucker in action, few would take her to be sixteen. The young country music sensation, who guests on the ABC Television Network's Timex Presents Opryland U.S.A. — 1975, Wednesday, May 14 (10:00-11:00 p.m.), makes music that gets you moving. Among her fellow guest stars on the program, originating at Nashville's Opryland Park, are Jonelle Allen and Jim Stafford. Dennis Weaver hosts the special with Sandy Duncan as co-host.

Whether she's writhing around a microphone, or singing sagas of pain and passion, she has the sophistication and stage presence of a veteran. "I learned how to move watching Elvis Presley," Tanya says. "I'd never seen a girl imitate him, so I thought I'd try it as soon as I could get up enough nerve. People don't believe me when I tell them how old I am. I guess I just have an older face."

Offstage, Tanya is a sports enthusiast. "My dad could tell you that. I'm just a kid who likes to ride horses, play basketball, go to rodeos."

And her active pace is emphasized when she performs. She dresses in leather and tight jumpsuits, tosses her golden hair around and moves. "Right now, I'm known best as a country singer, but I'd rather make music that has no label, music like Elvis makes." When she does live concerts, she often includes his songs in her performance — numbers like "Burnin' Love" and "Steamroller Blues."

Her choice of costume is consistent with her admiration for Elvis. "I like things that are leather, or that look like leather, and that fit really tight — fantastic! I can imitate Elvis in clothes like that. I can't really imitate him in a dress. And it doesn't really seem right to sing songs of his in ruffles and lace. The ideal would be to have Elvis' designer do my outfits, too."

Tanya, who cut her first record, Delta Dawn, when she was 13, met Elvis recently, and she was mroe than pleased. "He's the best," she said.

TANYA TUCKER (centre top), the 16-year-old country music sensation, joins Sandy Duncan centre bottom), Dennis Weaver (left) and Jim Stafford (right), for a country-music celebration filmed at Opryland, U.S.A., an entertainment park in Nashville, Tennessee, to be telecast on Wednesday at 10 p.m. on Channel 4. The program includes Miss Tucker's hit version of Delta Dawn.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT MOVIE — Faye Dunaway portrays a beautiful, but confused young woman, unable to cope with success as a high fashion model, who takes refuge on an isolated island to recover from a severe mental breakdown in, Puzzle of a Downfall Child, to be telecast on Channel 8 at 9 p.m. Starring with Miss Dunaway is Barry Primus (above) and Viveca Lindfors.

Familiar Television Faces Appear in Hailey Comedy

A small town Texas family, bewildered by change, and clinging desperately and riotously to primitive notions of right and wrong, are the main characters of Oliver Hailey's dark comedy, Who's Happy Now? This Theatre in America presentation — airing May 14 at 9:00 p.m. on KCTS-9 — blends bitterness and regret with broad visual and verbal humor.

Videotaped on location in the high desert of California, the play features Betty Garrett (Irene Lorenzo on All in the Family) as the wife, Rue McClanahan (Vivian on Maude) as the mistress, and Albert Salmi as the husband, in a strange romantic triangle. This trio is bound to each other, and to their desolate town of Sunray, but love — and by limited imagination.

The husband, Horse Hallan, a gruff "macho" butcher, is jealous of his wife and hates his son, Sonny. Capable of shocking violence, he remains sympathetic and appealing. He and his loving mistress Faye Precious — a simple woman who accepts the Hallans as her own family and does not dream of divorce — spend every evening at Pop's Bar. There, wife Mary and child Sonny join them nightly. Mary, fiercely protective of her son, and accepting of her husband's liason, brings Sonny to the bar because "this is the only place he gets a chance to know Horse. And it's important for a boy to know his father."

This odd domestic arrangement ends when Sonny grown up and leaves town. He becomes a successful author, whose play about his youth is televised. In adolescence, Sonny had tried to take Faye Precious away from his father by offering marriage. When that failed, he persuaded his mother to leave Horse. But his belief that his mother would be better off alone changes by the time his play is finished: in it, he allows Mary and Horse to stay together. As he realizes, "loving comes in all kinds of ways. The important thing is to get some of it."

The production is unique not only for its setting, but for the style in which it was taped. Although the performance is on tape, the scenes are each lit several different ways for different effects — as in film.

Movies

The Angry Hills (xx), on 8 at 12:45. A 1959 adventure, based on a lesser-known Leon Uris novel about the Greek Resistance work done during the Second World War starring Robert Mitchum, Stanley Baker and Gia Scala.

I'll Cry Tomorrow (xxxx), on 11 at 1. The late Susan Hayward gives a great performance in this superb 1956 drama based on singer Lillian Roth's bold and frank days as an alcoholic and her fight to conquer the dreaded disease. Miss Hayward is backed by an excellent performance by Jo Van Fleet as her bewildered mother, with Richard Conte, Don Taylor and Eddie Albert portraying her various husbands.

Bachelor in Paradise (xx), on 5 at 3:30. Bob Hope plays an author who upsets a suburban community when he moves in to write about life there, in this 1961 comedy, which benefits greatly from the performances of Lana Turner and Paula Prentiss.

Tell Them Willie Boy Is Here (xxx), 7 at 9. One of the few major Hollywood films to deal sensitively with the question of the American white man's treatment of the Indian, is this well-written and superbly acted 1969 drama. Set in 1909, the story finds a young sheriff (played by Robert Redford) rentlessly hunting down a renegade Indian (extremely well acted by Robert Blake, star of the currently successful Baretta). It's an absorbing drama, with a climatic finale, well-directed by Abraham Polonsky, a gifted director who was blacklisted by Hollywood for nearly 20 years.

SUSAN HAYWARD
. . . on 11 at 1 p.m.

Sands of the Kalahari (xxx), on 11 at 9. A rugged 1965 English-made survival tale about the aftermath of a plane crash in the South African desert, starring Stanley Baker, Stuart Whitman and Susannah York.

The Assassination Bureau (xxx), on 12 at 9:30. A neat, tongue-in-cheek black comedy about the adventures of a lady journalist on the trail of an organization specializing in timely eliminations, starring Diana Rigg, Oliver Reed and Telly Savalas.

The Young Savages (xxx), on 6 at midnight. Evan Hunter's powerful novel, A Matter of Conviction, served as the basis for this hard-hitting 1961 drama starring Burt Lancaster as a determined assistant DA determined to prosecute three teen-age killers. Brutally realistic, with an excellent supporting cast that includes Shelley Winters, Telly Savalas, Dina Merrill and Edward Andrews.

Sirocco (xx), on 7 at midnight. A slow-moving 1951 melodrama about sinister characters and their shady dealings, starring Humphrey Bogart, Lee J. Cobb and Marta Toren. Not one of Bogie's best.

ROBERT REDFORD
. . . on 7 at 9 p.m.

Return to Paradise (xx), on 8 at midnight. Gary Cooper and Roberta Haynes star in this 1953 adaptation of James A. Mitchner's romantic tale about a wanderer and his happy days in the South Pacific.

The Cruel Sea (xxxx), on 2 at 1. A superbly produced 1953 British war drama, adapted from Nicholas Monsarrat's best-seller about the officers and men of the Compass Rose, who faced the dangers of Nazi subs during the Second World War. Deserves praise in all departments including the fine cast (Jack Hawkins, Donald Sinden, Jack Stratton and Denholm Elliott.)

Murder, He Says (xx), on 7 at 2. Fred MacMurray, Helen Walker and Marjorie Main star in this silly, but often hilarious 1945 mystery-comedy about a public opinion analyst who stumbles across a crazy family.

Raising the Wind (xx), on 6 at 2:10. A London music school sets the scene for this 1961 British-made "Carry-On-type" comedy, starring James Robertson Justice, Sidney James and Kenneth Williams.

The Ceremony (xx), on 8 at 2:20. Laurence Harvey directed and stars in this grim and confused 1964 story about murder, robbery and romantic jealousy involving two brothers — one helping the other escape from a Tangier prison. Robert Walker, Sarah Miles and John Ireland co-star.

DAYTIME EMMY AWARDS

Monty Hall and Stephanie Edwards are co-hosts of the Second Annual Emmy Awards for Daytime Programming, to be telecast from the open deck of a New York excursion boat, on Thursday at 1:30 p.m. on Channel 4.

Newsman Comments On Current U.S. Events

Walter Cronkite, managing editor of the CBS Evening News, talks for about seven minutes daily on national television. He was interviewed in New York by Washington Star Staff Writer Allan Frank.

Question: Do you think that television could have changed the course of the war in Indochina if it had reported the war differently?

Cronkite: Well, if it had not reported the war, perhaps. If it had failed to do its job, it might have had an effect on the war in Indochina. The fact that the American people saw the horror of war, night after night, must have had an effect. I don't see how it could have failed to. This was what upset the Administrations of both Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon so much was that the public was let in on the secret of what war is really like and what we were doing out there. It was impossible for them to carry on a foreign military policy behind the curtain of remoteness which cars of the past permitted.

Q: Certainly that curtain isn't an opaque as it once was for the CIA either. What's your reaction to William Colby's briefing newsmen on the submarine story and then urging them not to use the material?

A: That's a very peculiar story. It seems rather clear to me that one of two things happened there — and both of them involved a kind of politics. Either he had some reason to want to get the story out or, if he was concerned about it not getting out, there must have been an internal political reason for it more than a real security reason. He just wouldn't have revealed the facts that he had to the members of the press.

Q: Do you think that the press should have held the story?

WALTER CRONKITE
. . . wouldn't turn Patty Hearst in

A: No. I don't think that the press should have held the story. Once a story is abroad in the land, once more than one person outside of the intelligence community or the military or whoever knows about the story, you can be pretty sure so too do the intelligence sources of foreign nations in Washington. They are not stupid. I think it's perfectly possible for one newsman to really have a story unto himself. Maybe he stumbled on something that's still secret and is of vital national security and hold onto it for a while, maybe forever. But if two newsmen know it, and each of them knows that the other knows it, you might as well print it. If two newsmen know it, so does the Russian spy network and the Transylvania spy network and everybody else in Washington.

Q: Have you ever been called by the CIA or the FBI and asked to hold a story?

A: Not recently. There were, of course, times during World War II when I was an active correspondent overseas with military forces. That did happen many times, particularly during the early days of the air war and the naval war. We kept things quiet. In peacetime, in the early days of our rocketry program, there were some. These involved hardware secrets and not great political type secrets. I haven't been asked in recent times.

Q: Do you believe that a news organization should turn in evidence that it receives that may be related to criminal cases?

A: No question about that, absolutely. If any knowledge in advance of a crime to be committed, yes, no question about that.

Q: If you were able to locate Patty Hearst, for an exclusive interview, would you take it? If you did would you then turn her into the police?

A: I'd like to withhold my answer on that 'till after I get the interview with Patty Hearst. I don't think in that case necessarily that I would turn her in. There is a very valuable public service to be rendered here in an interview with Patty Hearst, beyond the matter of capturing Patty Hearst. It would be too bad if the world lost the opportunity to find out what really happened to Patty Hearst, what psychological problems she had or how she came to political decisions. All of this I think is a rather important part in the history of our times and quite important to us all. Therefore I think I could justify interviewing Patty Hearst under pledge of secrecy of her locations, which would mean that I wouldn't turn her in.

Movies

The Mask of Sheba (x), on 8 at 12:45. A 1970 low-budget jungle adventure about an anthropoligical team searching for missing safari members and a priceless gold statue, starring Ingar Stevens and Walter Pidgeon.

Pardners (xx), on 11 at 1. A mild 1956 Dean Martin-Jerry Lewis comedy-western.

Man in the Middle (xx), on 5 at 3:30. This 1964 film starts off well, but before long it turns into a muddled courtroom drama which can't make its mind up on where to place the guilt. The story concerns an American sergeant stationed in India at the end of the Second World War, who shoots a British officer, and causes a minor rift between His Majesty and Uncle Sam. A good cast (Robert Mitchum, Trevor Howard and Keenan Wynn) is wasted.

Don't Drink the Water (xx), on 7 at 8. Jackie Gleason stars in this 1969 spoof of spies and American foreign policy, based on Woody Allen's Broadway hit about an American family whose Greek vacation is disrupted when their plane is hijacked. Others in the cast include Estelle Parsons, Ted Bessell and Joan Delaney.

JACKIE GLEASON
. . . on 7 at 8 p.m.

The Brides of Dracula, on 11 at 9. No rating available on this 1960 Eglish-made thriller that combines vampire lore with bits of Tennessee Williams and Freud, starring Peter Cushing, David Peel and Marita Hunt.

Behold a Pale Horse (xx), on 12 at 9. Gregory Peck is miscast in this vague, slow-moving 1964 account of personal conflicts during the Spanish Civil War. Others in the cast include Anthony Quinn and Omar Sharif.

Going Home, on 7 at 9:30. No rating available on this 1971 drama about a father-and-son reunion thirteen years after the father had killed the boy's mother. Robert Mitchum stars as the father, with Brenda Vaccaro as the young woman he would now like to marry.

Rio Bravo (xx), on 12 at 11:25. John Wayne, Dean Martin and Rickey Nelson star in this 1959 movie that attempts to mix horse opera with comedy. It doesn't work — Dike is his usual saddle-worn self, Dino looks out of place in a wild west saloon, and young Rick Nelson appears most uncomfortable in the role of a young cowboy itching for a gunfight. Angie Dickinson supplies the love interest.

The Slime People (x), on 6 at midnight. A low-budget 1963 sci-fi thriller about prehistoric monsters on the loose in Los Angeles.

ROBERT MITCHUM
. . . on 7 at 9:30 p.m.

The Curse of the Fly (x), on 7 at midnight. People change into monsters in this 1966 English-made thriller.

I Bury the Living (xx), on 8 at midnight. Richard Boone stars in this slightly better-than-average 1958 chiller about a cemetary manager plotting his victims' deaths.

The Wolf Man (xxx), on 7 at 1:30. Good acting (Claude Rains and Lon Chaney Jr.) and direction heighten the suspense in this 1941 version of the familiar Jekyll-Hyde tale about a man who changes into a hairy, prowling night creature at every full moon.

This Happy Breed (xxxx), on 6 at 1:35. A 1945 British-made adaptation of Noel Coward's panoramic story of a family and of the house in which they live through two wars, starring Robert Newton and Celia Johnson. A fine drama that captures the spirit of England itself.

Dead Men Tell No Tales (xx), on 8 at 1:35. Christopher George and Judy Carne play hide-and-seek with gansters in this moderately entertaining 1971 made-for-TV mystery.

The Virginian (xxx), on 7 at 2:55. A 1929 western classic about a ranch forman vs. a rustler, starring Gary Cooper, Richard Arlen and Walter Houston. Old but good, and in many ways more authentic than most westerns.

The New Jerusalem — the spiritual focus of a beleaguered culture. From the 16th century when Henry VIII assimilated the Welsh gentry into English life, Methodism gave a rationale to an abandoned peasantry. Highlight is Himself, by Anthony Grey, a British comedy-fantasy that makes full use of radio's ability to create illusions through soud. Himself is a young business executive, and we view him externally and internally as we follow his life in the outer world, and concurrently inside his body, where things are run in a usually orderly, if bureaucratic fashion,with the Brain Cells in power. When a crisis develops in the life of the body, Himself and the cells react like the crew of a trapped submarine. Sound effects from the BBC Radiophonic Workshop incude such aural wonders as electronically-created human sneezes and hiccups, heard from within.

8:03 (AM) Between Ourselves — The Road to Craigellachie is a documentary prepared by Digby Fodden on what the CPR meant to those who remember it between 1900 and 1940. Music recorded between 1911-1930 is reatured.

9:03 (FM) The Bush and the Salon — The Captivity of John Gyles, by Gordon Bowker, is based on the memoirs of Gyles who was captured by the Maliseet Indians in Maine in 1689 when he was nine, and dragged away as a slave to the river of Saint John in what is now New Brunswick. Gyles was probably one of the first white settlers to give a detailed account of Indian customs and beliefs. Incidential music by Steven Freygood is based on authentic 17th century English and Franch melodies. Indian ceremonial music recorded in the Maritimes is also featured.

10:03 (FM) Ideas — The Celts: Contemporary Celtic Nationalism. A survey of how nationalism can be nurtured on human values of language, culture, and community as opposed to industrial growth and governmental decree. Includes the last broadcast of Saunders Lewis, the English founder of the Welsh Nationalist Party: Gwynfor Evans, M.P., Efred Ffrancis; Dafydd Iwen and Gareth Miles. Also, Geraint Jones, Elwyn Edwards. Gwenor Jones and Gwyn Jones.

CBC House Orchestra Gets New Conductor

Boris Brott, musical director of the Hamilton Philharmonic Orchestra and conductor of the BBC Welsh Orchestra, has been appointed principal conductor of the CBC Winnipeg Orchestra, a major house-orchestra of the CBC.

Described in newspapers in Canada and abroad as a one-man powerhouse with a zest for music, 31-year-old Boris Brott has a knack of giving new appeal to old favorites, and popularizing music. His unique ability to involve his audiences has enhanced his reputation for excellent interpretations.

In 1971, he hosted a 90-minute CBC Radio series, Brott to You, in which he tried to deflate the pomposity from serious music, in a successful attempt to make listeners enjoy the musical experience. The London Daily Mail says he has a "musical wisdom far beyond his years, with great intellectual capacities."

While taking on his new position, he will retain his posts with the Hamilton Philharmonic and BBC Welsh Orchestra. The CBC Winnipeg Orchestra will shift its season from winter to two intensive sessions in September and in May-June. These performances are heard primarily on Canadian Concert Hall, Fridays at 2:30 p.m. on CBC-AM, and Tuesday at 9 p.m. on CBC-FM.

His appointment is expected to bring a whole new direction for the CBC Winnipeg Orchestra. Formed in 1948, the Orchestra was conducted for 26 season by Eric Wild, who helped build it to its present 56-piece status, with a repertoire of mainstream concert works and commissioned Canadian works. The Orchestra has introduced a number of Canadian soloists over the years, and provided a platform for guest conductors.
